Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Stop talking and giggling or Santa will be here before you're asleep. You wouldn't want him to come and find you awake. He might go away without leaving any presents."

Mother: "Get into your pajamas and we'll sing some Christmas carols before bedtime. Maybe Daddy will read a Christmas story."

Child: "Let's sit on the floor by the tree while we sing."

Christmas eve is the most exciting night of the year and it's hard for young children to settle down to sleep. Instead of false threats, try a relaxing hour of quiet companionship to calm them down.

Cranberry Salad Mould Adds to Christmas Menu

By MARY MOORE

On Monday in this column I suggested a Christmas dinner menu to you but did not have space to give you the recipe for a Jellied Cranberry Salad. I promised to give it to you today and hope you have the ingredients on hand, for it is a beauty.

CRANBERRY SALAD MOULD

2 cups raw cranberries
1 cup boiling water
½ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. plain gelatine
3 tbsps. cold water
2-3 cup finely diced inner celery
¼ cup chopped blanched almonds or pecans
1 cup canned (not fresh) drained, diced, pineapple

Add the boiling water to the raw cranberries in a saucepan and cook until cranberry skins break and cranberries are tender. Remove from heat. Soak gelatine in cold water 5 to 10 minutes. Stir into hot cranberries until dissolved, then add sugar and salt, stirring. Chill until it begins to set then add celery, nuts and pineapple. Turn into fancy mould for 8 to 10 individual moulds and chill until set. Serve on delicate cupped lettuce leaves garnished with sections of Mandarin oranges. Pass genuine mayonnaise.

Now is the time when I report to those of you who are interested in my personal peregrinations with my family. My children do not actually fight over me but since I spent last Christmas in Victoria with Marianne and her family it is Pete's turn this year.

I will be with him and Margaret in Toronto and their five little ones. By Christmas new little Justin will be 11-weeks-old, Margaret says he's happy and giggles and she and the children push him around in his low tote chair on the kitchen floor while she works. Jennifer who is all of seven years old, feeds him his orange juice. Maybe Grandma will get a turn too.

But it is Christmas Day that has been on my mind for over two months for I wanted to give you new and luscious goodies to make it memorable, never forgetting that it is your constant allegiance that keeps me going. I will be praying that all of your turkeys are tender and your puddings and sauces a success and when we say Pete's Latin grace before Christmas dinner my mind will fly to include Marianne and Herbie and their crowd in Kansas and to you all over Canada.

God Bless You Every One from Mary Moore.

Ann Landers

Husband Promoted; Wife Refuses to Move

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a middle-aged man who has just been offered the promotion he's been dreaming about. It means moving the family several hundred miles from here.

ANN LANDERS

My wife refuses to move. She says the kids are doing well in school and moving would mean leaving friends they have grown up with. She is also close to her family.

What can a man do when he is faced with rebellion like this? My wife says, "Money isn't everything." I agree, but this isn't just money. It's what I've been aiming for. It's satisfaction and progress. I'm 37 years old. If I turn down this promotion, I'll be stuck in this spot the rest of my life. Please help me. — BETWEEN THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP BLUE SEA.

DEAR BETWEEN: If the devil wins this battle she is going to have a frustrated, unhappy husband on her hands for many years to come. Maybe forever. In my opinion, your wife is letting you down badly. It is the woman's responsibility to make a house for her man wherever he can best pursue his profession or pty his trade. Remind her of those beautiful words: "Whither thou goest — I goest."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 31-year-old divorcee who has been going with a man 37. He is also divorced.

The problem: I'm in love with him but he can't make up his mind about me. After ten months of being together almost every night, he still needs to play around with other women.

I should tell you, in all candor, we are not engaged. We have talked of marriage but no commitment has been made. The problem boils down to this: I am satisfied with one man but he is not satisfied with one woman. Last night I told him he'd have to make up his mind. He called me "unreasonable" and "unfair." Am I? — A.T.K.

* * *

DEAR A.T.K.: Inasmuch as you are not engaged and no commitment has been made, the gentleman has a right to do as he pleases. By the same token, since you have devoted yourself exclusively to him for ten months, you have the right to tell him either — or. Don't be surprised if he "or." A man who cares deeply for a woman and wants her for his wife does not play around, — unless there's something wrong with him. Have you considered that possibility?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently you told a 19-year-old boy to join Alcoholics Anonymous. I didn't know A.A. took in kids that young. What are the requirements for joining A.A.? — INTERESTED FOR A REASON.

* * *

DEAR IN: The only requirements for membership in A.A. is the desire to stop drinking. There are no dues and no fees. A.A. is not allied with any sect, denomination, political party or organization. The primary purpose of A.A. is to help people stay sober and help other alcoholics achieve that goal.

Anyone interested in their literature should write to Alcoholics Anonymous, Box 459, Grand Central Post Office, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Another organization that does a tremendous job for alcoholics is: The National Council on Alcoholism, 2 Park Avenue, New York, New York.

School Children Present Concert

QUEENSBORO — A large group of children and adults attended the Christmas party in the United Church in Queensboro recently. The church was decorated with a lighted Christmas tree and candles.

In charge of the program were the teachers of the various classes. The senior class conducted a question and answer period. Douglas Leen acted as a reporter. The junior classes sang several carols with the primary class taking part in a nativity scene. At the close of the program Santa Claus arrived and gifts and treats were handed out to all the children.

Successful Living

Childhood Belief Made Christmas Happier

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: There has been in our world of today, a great deal of discussion on a very controversial subject: "Is there a Santa Claus?" Some say yes and some say no; teachers, preachers and doctors argue, and parents wonder: "Is there a Santa Claus?"

I am no authority on the subject but let me tell you what the Christmas season would have been to me if there had been no Santa Claus. In the first place, I had never been told that Santa was a jolly, old fat man who came down the chimney on Christmas Eve. I was taught, instead and I think wisely, that Santa Claus stood for the Spirit of Christmas, and the idea of giving and receiving gifts, as the Wise Men had on the first Christmas.

"Well," you ask, "What about Santa Claus in the store down town?" As far as I knew he was a helper of the real Santa. I guess it was because of this reasoning that I never stayed awake to see if I would meet him. However, it did not spoil any of the reality for me at all. I hung up my stocking and left lunches for Old St. Nick just like anyone else. When I awoke in the morning I knew beyond all doubt that my stocking was filled, because it was Christmas and the spirit of Christmas was there.

So you see, Santa Claus, in my belief of him, meant a great deal to me, and Christmas without him would never have been the same. When I did find out that it was Mother and Dad who filled my stockings, none of the thrill was gone, because I just thought of them as Santa's helpers, too. I don't think it is necessary to frighten children with all this talk about a man who won't leave you anything if you aren't good. It does seem, however, that children should have some conception of a good spirit or something similar.

As for me, I still believe in Santa Claus as a spirit of Christmas, who will go on living in the hearts and minds of both young and old for centuries to come, for when there ceases to be a Santa Claus, there also ceases to be kindness and generosity in the souls of men. — Fourteen-Year-Old Shirley

Shakespeare said it:
"Some say that ever 'gainst that season comes
Wherein our Savior's birth is celebrated,
The bird of dawning singeth all night long:
And then, they say, no (evil) spirit dare stir abroad:
The nights are wholesome;
then no planets strike,
No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm,
So hallow'ed and so gracious is the time."
—Doris

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 25

Your birthday today: The coming year is full of unaccustomed effort caused by the doings of relatives and a general increase of income or the necessity to cope with much more funds as manager or custodian. Your prosperity tends to increase significantly according to the demand for what you do and the adequacy of your preparations. This is a year of success if you make the investment of time and effort. Today's natives are prudent perfectionists.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This Christmas is just about as pleasant as you could expect. Enjoy everything as it comes. Avoid extremes in the evening. Relax early enough to keep your full energy level for tomorrow.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The holiday is perfect for a general celebration and family groups. If you know somebody who is alone be sure he has an invitation. The temptation is to overdo on refreshments in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Stretch yourself to stay ahead of the situation so that nobody is neglected or fails to find his share of the fun in your home today.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): All arrangements made with any reasonable thought fall into place nicely. Allow yourself a momentary respite from time to time.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Make it a quiet at-home holiday with all the normal festivities going on in dignity and peace.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Big surprises are few, but the little ones keep coming on to make an interesting day. Do your share amidst all the hubbub. In the quiet of evening, reflect on how you came to achieve your current circumstances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The holiday unwinds satisfactorily by itself, so add no more extra expenses or late evening doings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your role may be that of the leader of the party for the day. In any case, circulate so that you miss nobody within reach. The optimum course is to finish fairly early and balance the fun with rest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Enjoy it minute by minute for an unforgettable day. Stay fairly close to wherever you are spending the holiday, in preference to long journeys or restless movement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Start very early but conserve your energy. When you've made the rounds once, be at home to receive those who come to your hearth for evening greetings. Retire at a reasonable hour.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): For once, let others do all the talking and enjoy their reactions to the holiday and its doings. Your turn comes in the early evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): There is something for everybody. Enjoy what you find in those around you.

For December 26

Your birthday today: Much depends on your inherent capability of handling situations that are out of hand—THE coming personalities from the mediocre, rather cruelly and permanently. Strive to bring your potentials forth into full expression. Face your age and limitations honestly; make an estimate of what you may be able to achieve both near future and long-range.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Don't expect much close co-operation. Do first things first; after you've made a good start, others will join you and help finish he job. Attempt nothing beyond essential routines.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): No matter what is to be done or who is to do it, things get somewhat confused. If you will make a special effort to be on hand early and in good humor, everything goes tenfold better.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get by with doing the minimum today. Unguarded remarks by others furnish interesting news that you missed until now.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Yesterday was almost too good to be true so some people now feel the urge to stir things up. See that you have nothing to do with annoying activities.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): It is too soon to pick up the pieces. Settle accounts and wait a day or two and do it well. For diversion in the evening attend a good concert or a light show.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There are little odds and ends to do to keep the seasonal events for younger people going smoothly. Lend a hand wherever asked and help complete the perfection.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Friendship goes along erratically but thrives if no demand is placed upon it. Nothing else serious goes smoothly. Expect delays in transit, postal delivery, services in general.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Current promises are probably symbolic rather than realistic and should be treated as such. Decisions made today are certain to require revision fairly soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Make today a continuance. In muted tones, of yesterday's near perfect festival. Serious business is hindered in so many ways nothing other than emergency and basic routines should be attempted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Mechanical or fully scheduled routines survive the day. Other actions fall victim to human inconsistency and are omitted or botched.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): It is still not time to try to do business. Squeeze in some holiday recreation. No matter what your activity, remembering to play it safe.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You are left with the extra chores of gathering up the pieces and leftovers. Do the minimum.

For December 27

Your birthday today: Whatever your vocation, you must either make a fresh start in it from a determined, expansive point of view or switch to some calling that more nearly fits your potentials and present state of development. However, don't upset other people while you are preparing for the big jump-time in the latter part of the year.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Attend to a minimum of chores for the weekend plus the affairs of children, younger people in general.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): New activities should wait for a few days. For now, just tidy up and get things settled into appropriate places. Relax early with light entertainment.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): By now the importance of a long break, meditation, and prayer should come to you. Take on only light, simple tasks. After you have rested, new and enjoyable activity opens this evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): When you have rested, take the opportunity to begin making sketches of your long range plans. Facts and figures for year-end reports can be assembled now.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Make the day as nearly uneventful as you can manage. Find time to be alone with your reflections. Try composing a few lines of poetry or dabble in crayon or paint.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Declare this a special personal holiday for resting. Get up and go again in the late evening, as some interesting social doings take place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Enjoy the luxury of a routine day without any special pressure. Watch for new combinations formed during the holiday season, including some rather odd ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You almost certainly have some delicate work requiring concentration to do correctly. Now is your chance while nearly everybody is loafing or gone for a weekend escape.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Try out your newest sporting or games equipment, but take it easy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): When you have caught up with yourself a bit, review your situation and use the quiet for thought about new directions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Gather those of your working team that are available and get something done in the way of estimates of future projects. Enjoy seasonal festivities in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Prepare for the year-end transition which will be important to you in many subtle ways this year. Much of what you do now may be for the last time, at least under exact, present circumstances. Watch your diet as usual.

A NEW APPROACH

HALIFAX (CP) — The old gruff truancy officers of former years have been done away with here, but the city has a department to deal with absenteeism. Marjorie Cook, head of the department, said only 10 of the 18,000 school children in Halifax were charged with truancy in juvenile court last year. She said the department held about 1,000 interviews with parents and teachers in an effort to prevent serious truancy. The major cause, she said, was trouble in the home.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Her Nose Is Worry

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: All my life I have been self-conscious about my nose. Now here I am, 48 years old and I still feel the same way.

I could never find the courage to do anything about it. I've been too ashamed to ask a doctor. Where does one find a reliable surgeon? I'm ready. Life is too short to go on suffering. People with normal profiles can't even imagine how much one hates to get up in the morning and drag through the day — forever self-conscious and unhappy. I'll appreciate hearing from you. — Mrs. W.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have always been consciously bothered by the fact that I have an unusually large nose. I am 23. Is it common for males with my problem to have a "nose-job"? I certainly would like an answer as I have no personal physician. Am I being unnaturally vain? — Mr. J.

Comment: In a world filled with sufferers from heart disease, arthritis, cancer, ulcer and scores of other enemies of humanity, I confess it seems "unnaturally vain" and selfish to give so much thought to one's profile.

But suffering comes in various guises. I assure readers that some of the most unhappy people I have treated have been those patients, both male and female, who were suffering from psychological trauma due to physical unattractiveness.

Therefore, Mrs. W., I say it's about time! Get over being "too ashamed." And Mr. J., I am happy you are making your move at the early age of 23. All I can advise is sensible caution in the choice of a reputable plastic surgeon. Your doctor, local hospitals or local medical society will be glad to help. It's time people stopped being ashamed of trying to improve themselves.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a son who is 10 years old today. He is about 5-feet-2-inches tall and has been that for over a year. I am 5-feet and my husband is 5-feet-10.

The 16-year-old is saddened because he doesn't seem to be growing. We took him to our family doctor about six months ago. Our doctor, who is about 5 feet tall said, "Don't worry about it. I'm small myself and I'm doing right."

Are there any shots that will help this boy? I'd really like to see him taller in this world of giants. — Mrs. D.

Comment: This isn't a world of giants or for giants, Mrs. D. As your own "little doctor" says, he sees no reason for your son to worry too much now.

Although shots won't help, sufficient exercise, rest, and a well-rounded diet will indirectly contribute to any future growth. Until he gets to be in his early 20s, ordinarily there's still room for added growth. Tell your son these things, and perhaps he will be less dejected.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Will there ever be a cure for cancer? — Mrs. Mc.

Comment: Without reservation I say there will. It's only a question of time. Maybe not tomorrow, but who can be sure it won't be on the day after? Or next year? Many in medicine recall the days when there was no cure for diabetes, pernicious anemia, etc. Would you ever have dreamed that hearts could be transplanted?

At this time of year, may we prescribe all that's good as we thank you, our customers and dear fr...

BEST WISHES FOR A HAPPY HOLIDAY SEASON!

As your Reeve I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to you, the ratepayers and citizens of the Township of Thurlow, who have the Merriest Christmas ever and a most Happy New Year.

One of the nicest parts of being your Reeve is that one gets the opportunity to know many people whom we serve, and I appreciate this opportunity yet I must say that personally but I will continue to try to keep your record with party well above overhead problems in a fair and equitable basis.

1969 has been a most outstanding year in history as to the achievements on record and it has also been an outstanding year in local government, and let us hope many more changes in our local government, and let us hope many more changes in our democracy be as successful as our democracy let us all take active parts in all of local affairs.

Christmas is still a Holy Day. Let us never forget the warmness with which we were made aware of.

Peace on earth, goodwill towards men should ring from all the bells at Christmas. Let us not forget that it is still more blessed to give than to receive. Think of and share with someone who is not as fortunate as we are.

Let us keep Christmas — Its meaning never ends
Whatever trouble await us or what lines
Let us hold close this day — Remember friends."

In closing I would again on behalf of myself and your council like to wish all a Merry Christmas.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: I am going to Florida and will be returning about mid-January. I believe there is some change in the amount I may bring back into Canada duty-free. Can you let me know the latest regulations?

ANSWER: As of January 1, 1970, a resident of Canada who has been absent from this country for a period of not less than 12 days may import free of duty and taxes, goods up to the value of $100 once in each calendar year. The law respecting importation of goods, commonly referred to as the $25 exemption, is also being amended. At the present time, the maximum number of exemptions that may be claimed under this item within a 12-month period is three, whereas commencing Jan. 1, 1970, a person may be eligible to import goods under this item once in each quarter for a maximum of four exemptions a year.

QUESTION: What is the daily rate for the storage garage at the Malton (Toronto) International Airport, also what is the rate per month? What is the nearest and best storage garage to the Royal York Hotel, and also what is the cost?

ANSWER: The daily rate for storage at the Malton (Toronto) International Airport is $3 per day straight. There is no monthly rate. The best and nearest storage garage to the Royal York Hotel is the Silver Auto Park at the corner of Wood and Yonge Streets, and the cost is $25 per month. Airport buses leave the Royal York Hotel every 15 minutes, one-way fare $1.75. Taxis average $6 one way. Driving time between downtown Toronto and the airport is 30 to 40 minutes and slightly more during rush hours.

QUESTION: Do you have to have a license to drive a snowmobile in Ontario and is there any age limit?

ANSWER: 1. Under the new Act, motorized snow vehicles must be registered with the Ontario Department of Transport. On payment of a registration fee of $4 for two years, the owner will be issued a licence plate that must be attached to the front of the unit. You need a certificate of sale showing that the sales tax is paid and also the serial number of the snowmobile. A non-resident of Ontario whose snow vehicle carries a licence plate issued by another jurisdiction does not require Ontario registration.

2. Snowmobiles are not allowed on the 401 highway but are allowed on the side of secondary highways such as highways No. 2, 14 or 37.

3. No one under the age of 16 may operate a motorized snow vehicle on a highway.

4. It is not necessary to have a driver's licence, because the units are not defined as motor vehicles under the terms of the Ontario Highway Traffic Act.

5. Only those who have motor vehicle liability insurance may operate a motorized snow vehicle on the highway.

Canada's Las Vegas?

Quebec Company Formed to Operate Lotteries

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec national assembly Tuesday passed a government bill establishing the Quebec Corporation for Operating Lotteries and Races.

The bill would allow licenced gambling casinos to pour revenues into government coffers. The corporation can issue licences or run its own games of chance.

The cities of Montreal and Sherbrooke have operated lotteries recently but will close down operations because of a Supreme Court of Canada ruling Monday that Montreal's scheme is illegal.

Recent amendments to the Criminal Code allow provincial governments to enter the gambling business.

It has been reported that the Quebec government is considering Las Vegas-type casinos in various tourists spots, including Montreal's Man and His World exhibition, but no firm plans have been announced.

The corporation will be headed by Maurice Custeau, a former minister in the Union Nationale cabinet of Antonio Barrette.

Rogers Rejects Israel Demand Big Four End Mediation Work

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Against a background of deteriorating Israeli-U.S. relations, State Secretary William Rogers Tuesday rejected demands by Israel that the United States and its Big Four partners end their attempts to mediate in the Middle East.

In his first news conference in two months, Rogers also touched on other international problems, but the main tenor of his statements was that the U.S. intended to go on with its efforts to find a viable peace settlement for the troubled Middle East.

Rogers took a swipe at Israeli Premier Golda Meir for suggesting that the U.S. was trying to appease the Arab nations at Israel's expense.

He said the remark suggested that the Arabs were the enemies of the U.S.

"Of course, that is not true. We have had friendly relations with the Arabs for many years and we are on friendly terms with many Arabs now."

He agreed with Israel that the U.S. should not impose a settlement on the parties to the conflict. Nor should the Russians, he added.

But he said both the superpowers had the right to use their influence and make proposals for peace because of their vital interests in the area.

Rogers said the most recent American proposals for peace in the areas, to which Israel has objected, constituted an attempt to be fair to both sides in the dispute and were drawn up in the full realization that the U.S., along with other members of the United Nations, had an obligation to support Israel's sovereignty and security.

The proposals call for an Israeli withdrawal from Arab territories occupied during the six-day war of June, 1967, in return for an Arab assurance of a binding peace commitment.

Mrs. Meir has described the proposals as harmful to peace, saying Israel would not be bound by armistice lines drawn up after its 1948 war with the Arabs, and insisting it alone would draw up and negotiate terms for peace.

Rogers rejected suggestions that the U.S. might limit arms shipments to Israel because it had refused to go along with Washington's policy in the Middle East.

He said there is no link between the American peace proposals and Mrs. Meir's request for more U.S. military aid.

U.S.-Israeli relations took another plunge during the weekend with the leak of the latest American plan proposing a peace settlement between Israel and Jordan.

Under the plan, Arab refugees from the 1948 Palestine war would be given the choice of repatriation to Israel or resettlement in Arab countries with compensation from Israel.

The plan also called for the withdrawal of Israeli occupation forces from most of Jordan's west bank, agreement on a permanent frontier approximating the armistice demarcation line before the 1967 war and an agreement permitting both countries to share in civic economic responsibilities in a unified Jerusalem.

Mrs. Meir told the New York Times li would be treasonable for any Israeli government to accept the plan.

Rogers also touched on other world problems, saying the U.S.M is encouraged by the preliminary strategic arms limitation talks, which ended in Helsinki Monday with an announcement that full-scale talks would begin in Vienna in April.

He voiced optimism over President Nixon's program to withdraw U.S. forces from Vietnam and turn more of the fighting over to government troops.

But he said it was too early to tell whether a recent increase in North Vietnamese infiltration into the South meant that the Communists were merely replacing casualties or were preparing for a major offensive.

Canadian Jet Ready For Race

LONDON (CP) — A Falcon Jet of Canada's air transport command is waiting to take off Saturday morning in a special section of the England-to-Australia air race.

Other competitors took off earlier and are strung out between here and Sydney. The Canadian plane is racing a British-built Hawker Siddeley 125 Jet owned by Australia's Qantas airline for a trophy on their own.

The twin-jet Canadian plane and the Australian craft are leaving last because they should take considerably less time than most competitors to get to Australia. The Canadian forces machine cruises at 510 miles an hour and normally is used for fast light transport. It is attached to 412 Squadron at Ottawa.

GARDENING WITH A BANG

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Manuel Starling has a garden that produces bullets instead of tomatoes. Starling, 26, was planting flowers and tomatoes one day when his spade started turning up bullets. When the number reached 300, he called police to haul the ammunition away and resumed gardening. Again Starling dug up bullets. This time he called police and asked them to finish the job. Police declined. The FBI did too. Starling suggested police bring a mine detector. But he said they told him they can't do that until he uncovers a major community threat—like a hand grenade or mortar shell. "With the price of tomatoes going up," he said, "I'd like to grow my own. But you can't eat bullets."

PM Is Shaking Up External Affairs Department

OTTAWA (CP) — Major changes are about to take place in the operations of Canada's external affairs department. Traditional concepts of diplomacy are giving way to new concepts with a heavy flavor of straight commercialism.

Top-level switches announced by Prime Minister Trudeau Monday have to be seen as part of this trend, qualified sources said Tuesday.

The big switch involved a swap—or flip-flop as Mr. Trudeau called it—between External Affairs Undersecretary Marcel Cadieux and A.E. Ritchie, at present Canadian ambassador to Washington.

Basil Robinson, deputy undersecretary, is being moved out of external affairs altogether to become deputy minister of Indian affairs and northern development.

Paul Tremblay, ambassador to Belgium, Luxembourg and the European Economic Community, is coming back to Ottawa as associate undersecretary—a title that has been out of use in the department for many years.

Some observers saw the shuffle as part of an attack on the external affairs establishment by Mr. Trudeau, who has had a number of uncomplimentary things to say about the diplomatic profession since he took office.

However, a departmental source rejected any such interpretation. If Mr. Trudeau were aiming at the establishment, it was argued, he wouldn't give the undersecretary's job to Mr. Ritchie, described by the source as practically the top man in the diplomatic hierarchy.

Undersecretary is the external affairs equivalent of the deputy minister's post in other government departments.

Mr. Ritchie's appointment is viewed in official circles primarily as the symbol of a climate of change now beginning to permeate the department, and expected to have its greatest impact after he takes control.

Ideas in ferment envisage the consolidation of political, trade, cultural, immigration and other federal activities abroad and closer integration of the people who perform them.

One major result is likely to be greater use of Canadian diplomats overseas as salesmen—a role that until now has largely though not entirely been left to the commercial attaches of the trade and commerce department.

This new dimension already is visible at external headquarters in Ottawa, where 25 professional diplomats are permanently assigned to economic affairs. Another five handle basically the same type of work on loan to the Canadian International Development Agency.

The precise division of responsibilities between Mr. Ritchie and his associate undersecretary, Mr. Tremblay, has not yet been worked out. However, the word "associate" suggests a closer and possibly more equal relationship than the existing one between an undersecretary and deputy undersecretary.

Christmas Is Too Spiritual--in Wrong Way

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS
(Reprinted by Request)

Everyone says that what is wrong with Christmas is that it's "too commercial" — but that is not the trouble. What is wrong with Christmas is that it is "too spiritual" — in the wrong way.

The commercial aspect of Christmas can easily be ignored or repudiated by anyone who wants to take this holiday seriously. But the false "spiritual" aspect is harder to separate from the true message.

The three wise men, and the star of Bethlehem, and the Babe in the manger, and the mystery and the miracle — all these make it tempting and easy for us to forget what the whole story is about.

And the whole story — the whole message of the whole Messiahship — can be summed up in two sentences from Jesus' own lips:

"If anyone says 'I love God' and hates his brother, he is a liar." (I John 4:20)

"Inasmuch as you did it to one of the least of these, My brethren, you did it unto Me." (Matthew 25:40)

This is what Christmas — the mass of Christ — must mean, if it is to mean anything. If it does not mean this to us, then what we worship is superstition and idolatry.

You cannot love God without loving (which is not to say liking) every fellow creature He made; and an act of contempt or rejection or injustice or neglect toward the least—the lowest, the poorest, the weakest, the dumbest — is an act against Him.

If Christianity does not mean this, it means nothing. If this central fact is ignored or slurred or rationalized away, the whole structure of Christianity falls apart, and we are left with nothing but another primitive "magic" religion.

And it is not the impious, the pagans and unbelievers, who must be most on guard against forgetting this message. It is the believers, the "spiritual" people, who are prone to mistake form for substance, prayers for performance, worship for practice.

For Christianity is not a "spiritual" religion, like some creeds of the East. It is an intensely "practical" religion, having its moral roots in the practicality of Judaism. It was not designed to change the way men think or believe as much as to change the way they act.

It is easy to think Christmas, and easy to believe Christmas; but it is hard — sometimes intolerably hard — to act Christmas. It is not our false commercialism that prevents it, but our false spirituality. Not the clang of the cash register, but the jingle of bells, calling us to sentimentality, and seducing us from the year-round ministry of brotherhood.

Christmas Crowds Belleville's CN Station Last Night

In the Old Tradition

In keeping with Christmas tradition BGH chefs Murney Cooney and Nick Kindrell prepare to carve yuletide turkeys. Plenty of will is needed for the task — for the hospital's kitchens this year will prepare 600 pounds of turkey for tomorrow's Christmas dinner.

Travel Peak Sees No Delays

The Quinte Christmas reunion trail is swarming with happy homecomers.

Road and rail traffic today hits a peak with thousands rejoining their families for the holiday.

And once united, they'll be making more long - distance phone calls than ever to friens and relatives outside easy travelling distance.

Passengers crowded the Belleville CN station last night as the peak period neared.

Railroad officials reported some trains running late because of the heavier traffic volume.

"But we're not worried. They're running fairly well on schedule," a passenger service spokesman.

The city's Colonial Coach bus depot also is handling the Christmas travel rush with extra services.

Extra coaches also were placed on regular scheduled runs — mostly to Toronto, main rendezvous of outward-bound Bellevillians.

And Bell Canada is geared to process some 15,500 long-distance Christmas-Day calls from subscribers in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

This is an increase of 500 more than 1968, said local Bell manager George Thompson.

To staff busy switchboards 92 operators will be on duty—nearly 20 more than a normal day's work load demands.

A secondary reason for the big staff increase is reduction of work hours to permit operators more time with their own families, said the manager.

Cooking Dinner at BGH Biggest Chore in City

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Despite its all - year appeal, turkey 'n' trimmings still holds the centre of the traditional Christmas table.

But tradition can be a tall order when there's more than one table to trun with the festive centrepiece.

Despite its size, most Quinte-area housewives can ready a turkey dinner at a trot in a modern - equipped kitchen.

Yet, there are still places where the turkey trot becomes a marathon.

Take Belleville General Hospital.

Now being readied in the hgospital's kitchens are enough turkeys to make any dedicated housewife take flight.

When the staff of hospital food manager James Boughen have concluded the chore, BGH's Christmas cuisine will include close to 600 pounds of turkey — plus the trimmings.

Ready for cooking are two dozen 25 - pounders, part of a Christmas Day menu at the hospital that also includes prime ribs of beef and yorkshire pudding.

What with patients, visitors and a staff spread over three shifts — all entitled to traditional Yuletide fare — Mr. Boughen expects to cater 2,200 meals tomorrow.

By comparison, the chore for cooks at the big Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, is a minor operation.

Christmas leave and holidays vastly reduces the number of base personnel.

However, kitchen staff still have a houseful of demanding diners to keep happy.

About 100 people will be on duty — all in need of Christmas dinners.

To meet the demand cooks will prepare 100 pounds of turkey, plus a 60-pound hip of beef and hams for good measure.

Meantime, at Hastings Manor in Belleville there's a far-size chore facing chefs catering for elderly residents.

Second biggest kitchen chore in the Belleville area will be centred this Christmas at Hastings Manor.

Some 210 elderly residents and 50 staff must be served the traditional fare.

To meet the demand Manor chefs are readying 16 turkeys and six capons — with 36 mince pies for good measure.

Fan Jet Known Here Starts Air Race Saturday

"Those magnificent men in their flying machines" will be taking off from Gatwick airport in London, England Dec. 27.

According to Capt. Ronald Day at CFB Trenton, Canada's entry in an international air race from Gatwick to Adelaide Airport in Sydney, hopes to make the 12,000-mile flight in 30 hours.

The Canadian entrant will be a Canadian Armed Forces Falcon jet from 412 Squadron. Although based in Ottawa the plane is no stranger to Trenton.

It will make nine stops enroute before setling down in Sydney.

The stops — at Athens, Tehran, Karachi, Calcutta, Bangkok, Singapore, Djaandi, Darwin and Adelaide — will, barring repairs, be only 30-minute refueling stops.

The race, co-sponsored by British Petroleum, the Royal Aero Club of Britain, and the Royal Federation of Aero Clubs of Australia, is held to commemorate the first England-to-Australia flight in 1919 and is celebrate the bicentenary of Captain Cook's exploration of the east coast of Australia.

Prizes for the various categories in the race amount to over $100,000.

Capt. Day, who co-ordinated Canada's entrance in the race did all the arranging for the aircraft.

He said there were no Trenton pilots involved in the flight, although the flight commander, Maj. D. G "Doc" O'Connor of Capreol, Ontario, was once based in Trenton.

Capt. Day explained that the idea for the race originated last year although CFB Trenton did not hear of it until the summer.

He and other air force personnel unofficially visited Gatwick to learn of the particulars of the race and there they "got the rules and regulations straightened out."

"Unofficially the Canadian Forces got into the act in October," he said.

Capt.- Day told the Intelligencer that Canada's entry was probably the only armed forces competitor in the event.

The 60 to 70 planes involved are all classes of aircraft from 5,000-pounds up.

Pan American Airlines in the United States will be assisting the Canadian entrant on the ground as far as refuelling and repairs are concerned.

The Falcon fan-jet, used to provide fast medium range communications transport, has a top speed of 500 miles per hour and can carry up to 10 passengers.

Pact with China Is Reported Near

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canada and China are nearing accord on recognition and diplomatic ties.

The newspaper says the major hurdle—the question of Formosa—has been cleared and the talks now have moved to "housekeeping matters" and the wording of a joint communique.

Describing the Formosa problem, the newspaper said Peking wanted Ottawa to make a statement recognizing its sovereignty over the Nationalist ruled island, which both Communist and Nationalist governments consider an integral part of China.

Canada, through External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, has simply indicated it will not accept a two-China policy. The Formosa representatives will have to leave Ottawa when Canada recognizes Peking as the legal government of China.

The "recognition communique probably will simply contain a statement that the two governments have agreed to establish diplomatic relations," the story says.

It said, "elaborate" arrangements

Shopping Sales Up Say City Merchants

Industrial expansion in Belleville has handed merchants a big Christmas present.

Volume of sales is up this season, due largely to area businesses and industry in the city, merchants' representatives said this morning.

Doug Shaw chairman of the plaza merchants association said the coming of the Unemployment Insurance Commission is responsible for at least one-half the increase in sales in his furniture store.

"We are very pleased with Christmas sales," he said. "They are certainly up over the previous year.

Ben Clarke, chairman of the downtown businessmen's association, agreed.

"Sales are ahead this year, no doubt about it," he said. "People have more money to spend."

Improvement in another line was noted this morning by Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

He said police have received fewer shoplifting complaints this year than in previous years.

"The record, as far as we are concerned, is much better this Christmas," he said.

Woman Breaks Hip And Legs

A Belleville woman is in hospital this morning, suffering from a fractured pelvis and two broken legs sustained in a accident last night.

Betty Wilks, 51, of 205 John St, was struck by a westbound vehicle as she was crossing Victoria Ave. Police said the woman was wearing dark clothing when she ran across the road to mail a letter.

No charges will be laid against the driver of the vehicle.

Blues Overtake Stars But Berenson Hears 'Something Snap'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Louis Blues scored four unanswered goals in the third period Tuesday night to down Minnesota North Stars 5-3 in the only National Hockey League game played.

The victory was a costly one for the Western Division leaders as Red Berenson, Blues' high-scoring centre, was taken to hospital with an ankle injury.

Berenson, who last season won the division scoring title with 82 points and tied for eighth place over all with Montreal Canadiens' captain Jean Beliveau, now is ninth with 16 goals and 17 assists for 33 points.

The 30-year-old Regina native limped off with the injury late in the second period and is a doubtful starter for the Blues next game, Friday at home to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Berenson was taken to hospital but x-rays showed no bone damage. He said he heard "something snap" when he was turning on a play. Further x-rays are to be taken today.

The Blues, trailing 3-1 after 40 minutes, came to life in the third period before 15,032 home fans.

Gary Sabourin scored his 11th goal of the season at 2:18 of the period for St. Louis and Ab McDonald, with his 18th of the year, tied the score 34 seconds later.

Bill McCreary scored the winning goal unassisted at 5:42 while killing a penalty to teammate Jean-Guy Talbot. Frank St. Marseille with his 15th goal, struck on a power play for the Blues to complete the scoring in the third period.

Tim Ecclestone scored the other Blues goal in the second period after Charlie Burns, Jean-Paul Parise and Danny Grant had given the North Stars a 3-0 lead.

Phil Goyette collected two assists, raising his season total to 30. He increased his points-total to 45 and moved three back of the leader, Boston Bruins' defenceman Bobby Orr. The Blues victory, their 16th of the season, moved them 11 points up on Minnesota as they bid for their second straight regular-season division title.

Tonight's only game features a meeting of two last-place clubs as Toronto is at home to Los Angeles Kings in an interlocking game.

Toronto is six points back of Chicago Black Hawks, occupants of fifth place in the East Division.

'Twas the night before Christmas, and from here in Lacerne, not a creature was stirring — even Bunny Ahearne;

The J-straps all hung by the lockers with care, in hopes that the laundryman soon would be there;

When out in B.C. there arose such a clatter, "The Nats beat the Ruskies," the sport scribes did chatter;

But we heard them exclaim, 'ere they flew back to Minsk, "We ready in March, or we'll put you in splints."

• • •

Christmas-wise, we could all use more stocking-stuffers like the two wins Canada's National Pro-Am team got within the past week off the Soviet hockeynauts.

On those two evenings, Canadian hockey pride got a transfusion that helped ease the bleeding hearts we have collectively suffered in seven years of not beating "THEM."

So please, Santa, we'll take one large lopsided National Team win against the Soviets before they trundle back to the salt mines, or the compulsory vacation of their choice.

Mark it "10-0 — To Russia, with love."

• • •

On behalf of NHL president Clarence Campbell, we have asked Santa for a girl-edged ruler to rap referees' knuckles, a belt coin changer to expedite the collecting of fines, and a pin-head on which are engraved the names of all the Montreal members of Mr. Campbell's Fan Club.

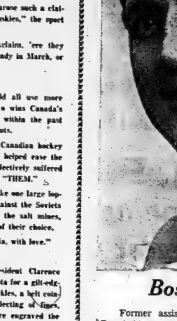
• • •

Cancel that rocking chair order for Gordie Howe, Santa. Tiny Tim's favorite hockey player has 13 goals already this year, and I think we were a bit hasty in talking about his retirement.

• • •

Locally, the Belleville McHawks wouldn't object to an Allan Cup, and the Ellis Junior B's would settle for fourth place.

Peggy and Jane McCutcheon could use a few breaks in their skating future, and we don't mean boxes.



Wanted for the Apollo Barbell Club: four sets of size 12 biceps, eight medium triceps, and one pair of forceps in time for May's Commonwealth Game weightlifting trials in the city.

Archer Carol Armstrong could use $2,500, Santa, to bring the Canadian team member's total subsidy to $2,500.

And you, Santa, have a peaceful holiday, and don't get a bag on during your rounds.

Ex-Colt New Coach

Winnipeg Whip to Crack

WINNIPEG (CP) — The new head coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers is a strict disciplinarian who expects no less than "110 per cent" from his players.

So says Jim Spavital, whose appointment was made official by the Bombers' general manager, Earl Lunsford, at a news conference Tuesday.

Spavital, 43, comes to Winnipeg from an assistant coaching job with Saskatchewan Roughriders. He fills the vacancy left by Joe Zaleski, fired at the end of the 1969 Western Football Conference season.

"I believe in self-discipline and I expect the same from my players," he said. "The first time a player turns his nose a little cooked, he's gone."

Spavital, a product of Oklahoma State University and a former fullback with Winnipeg, said the Bombers have "the nucleus of becoming a real good football team."

"I think we can bring in a few people offensively and defensively who can help us. But I'll know better what is needed after I study films and grade them."

He also sees great promise in Bombers' quarterback Wally Gabler, who joined Winnipeg in mid-season in a trade with Toronto Argonauts involving halfback Dave Raimey.

"He looks like a winner," Spavital said.

As Spavital looks at it, all players and coaches should give more than 100 per cent effort for the good of the team. He said "ready sheets" will be prepared before each game, setting out the game plan and listing plays to be used under different circumstances.

Spavital's arrival in Winnipeg was like a homecoming. He had played for Bombers in 1951. Before that, he played two seasons for Baltimore Colts of the National Football League and still holds the record for the longest touchdown run, 96 yards, from scrimmage.

He went to Saskatchewan under coach Eagle Keys in 1958.

Boss Bomber

Former assistant coach with Saskatchewan Roughriders, 43-year-old Jim Spartial, Tuesday was named head coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference, replacing Joe Zaleski who was fired at the end of the 1969 season.

Senior A Flyers Sore

Corby Adams Elopes With Nats

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Canada's national hockey team, already subjected to criticism for seeking to recruit professional players, now has come under fire for picking up an amateur.

For months, the Nationals have been quietly wooing Corby Adams, captain and last year's high scorer for Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series. Last week, Adams packed his suitcase and closed all the way to the Pacific Coast, where he helped the Nationals split two weekend games against Russia.

Meanwhile, the bereaved Flyers also broke even in two weekend starts, dropping to fifth place in their eight-team league.

Now, no one is sure where Adams' allegiance lies.

The Nationals, still embroiled in international controversy over eligibility of professionals for the world hockey tournament in Winnipeg and Montreal next March, will not choose their final lineup, in any event, until they complete their current exhibition series against Russia and another against Czechoslovakia next month.

Adams, returning to Barrie Monday, said he plans to play for Canada against the Russians in Toronto on Boxing Day and in the four games against the Czechs.

No one in the Flyers' front office was saying much, except that they never gave him permission to join the Nationals. The club is rumored to be asking from $1,000 to $3,000 as the price of Adams' release.

Larry Wood, manager of the Flyers, said Tuesday the Barrie executive has heard neither from Adams nor from the Nationals and would like to clear up the matter soon. If Adams leaves the club, a replacement must be signed before the league's Dec. 31 deadline.

Adams called the incident a "difference of opinion." He said the Barrie executive could solve the problem by getting in touch with top officials of Hockey Canada, the organization in charge of the national team.

Tarasov Not Tickled With Ottawa Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Anatoly Tarasov of the Russian national hockey team was less than happy Tuesday night following his team's 8-3 victory over Ottawa 67s of the Ontario Hockey Association, a Junior A league.

He told reporters he was unhappy with the Russian team's Canadian schedule which includes games with junior teams such as 67s. "I am not happy to play with teams that are not good," he said.

Mr. Tarasov would not elaborate on his complaint when pressed by reporters. Russia is scheduled to play another junior team, London Knights of the OHA, Thursday night.

Tuesday night's game, played in two 20-minute periods, saw four players ejected in the third period for fighting.

Zzgeny Zimin led the Russian scoring with three goals. Vladimir Vikulov and Anatoly Firsov had two each with Victor Polupanov scoring a single.

Doug Keeler, Dan Maloney and Jean Payette scored for Ottawa.

Maloney and Igor Romishevski of the Russian team received major penalties after only 23 seconds of the third period for fighting. Under international rules, a major penalty means automatic exclusion from the game.

Vladimir Petrov of Russia and Ron Climie of the 67s received the other majors, also for fighting, at 18.33 of the final period.

Russia now has three wins and two losers on the Canadian tour. The Russians won two and lost two in meetings with the Canadian national team.

Their supremacy over the heavily reinforced 67s was demonstrated by shots on goal as well as by the score: Russia outshot Ottawa 31-14.

Ottawa reinforcements included Maloney from London Knights and Payette from St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, N.S.

The Russians held a 4-1 lead at the close of the first period and a 7-3 edge at the end of the second in the game before 6,422 fans.

Mo-Hawks Come Close; 'Leaners' Don't Count

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

It's a good job Kingston Aces weren't playing Belleville Mo-Hawks horseshoes instead of a Senior A hockey game last night.

If ten per cent of their "almosts" counted, the Mo-Hawks wouldn't have suffered a 3-1 loss, their first on home ice to Kingston in three winters.

The reaction when Ralph Plane slammed home Gary Dalliday's pass-out to spoil Neil Perry's 45-minute shutout was as much a roar of relieved frustration as enthusiasm on the part of the 1,600 spectators.

They had seen the Aces take a 2-0 first period lead on goals by Tom Smallman and Charlie Convery, and boost it to 3-0 on Hugh Harvey's goal early in the third period.

Meanwhile, would-be Mo-Hawk goal-scorers were having the same kind of success Baltimore Oriole long-ball hitters had against New York Met outfielders.

In one two-minute span, alone — a Belleville power-play mid-way through the second period with veteran Bill Burega in the penalty box — the locals passed that maybe even death and taxes aren't sure things.

First Lou Kazowski's shot from the left point went through Perry's legs — and didn't end up in the net!

The puck came back to the right point, and Davey Jones promptly rapped a perfect low shot right off the nearest goal post.

And so-on, and so-forth.

But, if the Mo-Hawks weren't getting the breaks, the Aces were making all of theirs count.

The Aces got first blood largely due to some dogged forechecking by Bob Collins, who fought the puck away from two Mo-Hawks and fed a perfect pass out to Tom Smallman.

RALPH PLANE
'The Spoiler'

Smallman, uncovered at the Belleville crease, faked one way, and slid the puck past Steve Reze's other side.

Two minutes later, Charlie Convery coincided a cruise by the Belleville net perfectly with Hugh Harvey's pass from the right boards, and flipped the puck into the open side of the net.

Coach Davey Jones made no excuses, despite the fact the Mo-Hawks were playing their fourth game in seven days. Kingston duplicated that.

"How can you pick three stars tonight," he fumed from the penalty box where he was sitting out a holding minor in the game's dying minutes. "Show me three guys who played well!"

One unanimous choice would have to be Steve Reze, who handled 33 shots, including 16 in the final 20 minutes. And most of them were not of the lead-pipe cinch variety.

Perry was sharp in the Kingston goal on most of the 32-shots the Mo-Hawks levelled at him, especially so considering he was doing rare stand-in duty for an ailing Tom Mercer.

Next action for the Mo-Hawks comes Friday night, when they head into Woodstock, who repay the visit a week Friday back in Belleville.

"YOUR DATSUN DEALER"

HIGHER EDUCATION..... VIA A NEWSPAPER ROUTE

Why do educators frequently encourage youngsters to apply for a newspaper route? And why are more and more schools giving "credit" for newspaper route experience?

Because the attitude of a boy towards higher education frequently changes, when, as a Little Merchant newspaperboy, in business for himself, he begins to understand the value of book learning combined with practical experience.

He buys at wholesale—sells at retail—makes his own deliveries and collections—learns simple bookkeeping—and often develops into a surprisingly good salesman.

And the money he banks while a newspaperboy frequently makes it possible for him to attend the college of his choice.

If you think your son or some other youngster might profit from newspaperboy experience, have him come in and talk to us.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange closed slightly lower Tuesday, but industrial issues, which had touched a low for the day, on index, at 182.1 at 1 p.m. EST, regained most of their losses by the end of the day's trading.

Industrials were off .28 on the index, to 183.02. Golds, however, reached a low for the year of 141.34, down 2.62 on the index.

Base metals were off .64 to 112.29 and western oils .52 to 186.46.

Although a few issues rose well, declines outnumbered advances 204 to 186, with 238 issues unchanged.

Total shares traded was 1,523,000 compared with 1,676,800 Monday.

Convest Explorations was the day's most active trader, up 1½ to 15 on 66,000 shares. Company officials said the reason appeared to be Convest's announced 50,000-share interest in Poseidon, a high-flying Australian mining stock, whose shares reached $215 on the London stock exchange Monday.

Rio Algom rose ¾ to 18¼ after announcing that a subsidiary, Lormex Mining Corp., had formed financing and contract sale of its output of copper concentrates in the Highland Valley area of British Columbia.

In industrials, Molson A dropped 1 to 21½ and Molson B 1 to 20¾, as the fate of the takeover bid for Maple Leaf Mills remained uncertain.

Quinte Area Spared Brunt of Snowstorm

Eastern U. S. Is Smothered

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Quinte area residents were treated to a white Christmas with an additional three to four inches of fluffy snow falling over the holiday.

But they escaped the heavy snowfall of up to 18 inches, which over the holiday, plugged highways all the way from the Carolinas up through the New England states to Eastern Canada.

Parts of the New York Throughway and the Massachusetts Turnpike were closed to traffic while the season's first blizzard and drifting snow blocked many of Quebec's highways on Boxing Day.

The duty forecaster at the Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, says the five - day forecast, which becomes effective this morning, calls for colder weather and more snow for the Quinte area.

It was cold on Christmas day in the Quinte district, with the mercury dropping to eight below. Temperatures eased on Boxing Day with a high of 19 degrees.

At Trenton slightly more than an inch of snow accompanied the warmer weather on Friday, while in the Picton area 4.8 inches of snow was reported over the holiday.

Heavy snows and strong winds continued to belt the eastern United States Friday night and early today.

Snow was falling from the north Atlantic Coast to the Great Lakes and the central Appalachians with as much as two feet on the ground from New York state to northern New England.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect over north and central Maine and gale warnings were issued from Virginia Beach, Va., to Eastport, Me.

Light snow continued to fall over eastern upstate New York as the area dug out from depths up to two feet. At least three deaths were attributed to the storm.

Freezing drizzle also continued to fall over the Lower Hudson Valley region.

New York's northern and western counties escaped most of the heavy snow.

Three men died after suffering apparent heart seizures as they shovelled snow.

In New York City, a series of multi-vehicle mishaps were blamed on slippery streets clogged with snow and slush.

Travellers warnings were in effect today for the Finger Lakes region and counties east of Lake Ontario, where three or more additional inches of snow was indicated.

Quinte Christmas

Snowmobiling is a booming sport and Christmas Day marked the arrival of many more snow vehicles in the Quinte district. Like a host of other sportsmen, Don and Merle Dafoe took to the outdoors Christmas Day to test their machines at Zwick's Island.

Munitions Ship Burns, 25 of Crew Are Missing

HONOLULU (AP) — A South Vietnam-bound cargo ship loaded with bombs and rockets burned in the mid-Pacific today while a Greek freighter hunted 25 missing crew members.

Fourteen of the 39 men aboard the Badger State, including its skipper, Captain Charles Wilson, were reported picked up within hours by the Greek freighter Khian Star, the only vessel within range of the stricken ship.

"We have no report of casualties," the U.S. Navy said, "but we can't say for sure if all the men are accounted for."

Wilson radioed the cargo had broken loose and the munitions ship was breaking up in 25 foot swells 580 miles northeast of Midway Island Friday morning, and he gave the order to abandon ship.

Seventy minutes later an explosion tore a huge hole in the hull of the Badger State.

"We don't know what went up," a naval spokesman said.

here. "There was nobody on the ship when she blew."

A rescue plane remained in the area to drop flares after another plane had spotted all the liferafts with dye and smoke markers, the navy said.

The night-long search was hindered by fears the smoking Badger State might blow up at any moment. The Greek freighter was forced to stay three miles from it.

The Badger State, a U.S. Military Sea Transport Service ship, was loaded with 8,000 rockets and tons of bombs ranging to the 2,000 tons of TNT, the navy said.

Norwegian Firm Buys Gunboats Built for Israel

PARIS (Reuters) — A mystery over five gunboats built in France for Israel, which suddenly vanished from Cherbourg during Christmas, was cleared up early today by French and Israeli officials.

The French defence ministry said the boats—held in the channel port of Cherbourg under a total French embargo on arms shipments to Israel—had been sold to a Norwegian company and were believed on their way to Oslo.

Customs officials in Cherbourg identified the purchaser as Starboat and Weill, S. A., Oil Shipping Services. The firm said the destination was Oslo and that they planned to use the boats for transport in deep sea drilling.

In Oslo, Johannes Dalsto, head of Norway's trade ministry shipping department, said there was no record of an import licence or of Starboat and Weill. Deputy Defence Minister Erik Himle of Norway also denied knowledge of the purchase.

The gunboats are 147 feet long, weigh 270 tons and have a range of 1,600 miles.

A few hours later an Israeli embassy spokesman said his government had been repaid by the French builders of the boats, which were capable of carrying missiles but were not armed.

The embassy spokesman also cleared up another puzzling point in the mystery—the disappearance of 30 Israeli navy seamen who were aboard the craft at Cherbourg.

He said the Israeli government gave the new owners permission temporarily to employ the seamen.

The embassy spokesman said the Israeli government had been reimbursed by the French builders and the ships were created from the boats and had therefore renounced their ownership.

"The boats have been sold to a third party who can dispose of them as he pleases," he added.

The five vessels were part of an order of 12 built for Israel. The seven others left Cherbourg for delivery to the Israelis before the embargo on arms shipments to Israel was declared in January by the government of former president Charles de Gaulle.

When the news first broke that the 40 knot gunboats had suddenly left Cherbourg during Christmas, there was speculation they had slipped out in defiance of the French embargo.

Later, a defence ministry spokesman announced that they had been sold by the builders to a Norwegian company, which he did not name.

They left Cherbourg during the night of Dec. 21 and 25 under the Norwegian flag after undergoing customs formalities," he said.

Israeli officials have said the boats were regarded in Israel as the answer to the Soviet Osa missile launching vessels which the Egyptian navy used to sink the Israeli destroyer Elath in October, 1967.

The French boats are capable of firing Israeli-made Gabriel sea-to-sea and sea-to-air missiles.

Man Dies In Prison Cell Fire

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — An autopsy has been ordered on the body of Brian Joseph Hachey, 19, of Toronto, who died Wednesday in a fire in his Kingston penitentiary cell.

The youth's body was found shortly after 8 p.m. Wednesday, about 26 hours after he was transferred from Toronto's Don Jail to serve five years for breaking and entering and theft.

Warden Arthur Jarvis said Hachey may have started the fire himself.

The Ontario fire marshal's office is investigating the death.

Departure Said Illegal

OSLO (Reuters) — Norway told France today that five gunboats allegedly sold to a Norwegian firm, had illegally left France under the Norwegian flag.

A foreign ministry spokesman said that extensive investigations proved the gunboats which left Cherbourg early Christmas Day, were not registered in Norway.

He said the French embassy in Oslo had been informed of the findings.

Although Mr. McKeough did not comment on it, his statements appeared in part to complement a proposal on development of Ontario County made last week by a provincial-municipal study commission.

The commission, in a report on a preliminary study, suggested four alternatives for regional government in the Oshawa-Pickering-Whitby area.

One of these was formation of a medium-size region which would include Pickering Township with the exception of the West Rouge area, which would be added to the Toronto borough of Scarborough. The region would extend east to include Darlington Township.

Neither Mr. McKeough nor any other provincial official has yet commented publicly on the commission study, which is to be completed in July with the aim of preparing an urban development plan for the area by 1972.

As for York County, Metro has been considering extending water and sewage services into neighboring Markham and Vaughan Townships.

Mr. McKeough said he does not agree with the argument of some civic planners that Metro could provide these services faster than could the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Vietnam Battle Is Raging

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces fought their biggest single battle in 1½ months today.

The American forces spotted as many as 200 North Vietnamese troops within two miles of the Cambodian border 100 miles north of Saigon and attacked them with jet bombers, helicopters, tanks and armored personnel carriers.

McKeough Says Metro Toronto Won't Be Allowed to Expand

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough said Friday the provincial government is not prepared to let Metropolitan Toronto expand beyond its present boundaries.

He said in an interview that only the province or regional governments would have the resources and ability to establish the necessary pattern of development beyond Metro's 240-square miles.

The government's primary objective, he said, would be to establish a green belt between Metro and the rapidly developing urbanized areas to the north, in York County, and to the east, in Ontario County.

He said there could be one exception to this general view—an easterly extension to take in 827 acres and 3,411 persons in the West Rouge area of Pickering Township.

Mr. McKeough also said the province has been waiting to conclude negotiations with Metro that would transfer zoning authority within the Metro area to the Metropolitan Toronto Planning Board from the Municipal Board.

The minister first mentioned this possibility in 1968, when he said the existing 720 square-mile Metro planning area would shrink to the 240 square-mile area of the Metro federation once regional municipalities were created on Metro's borders.

Metro Chairman Albert Campbell said Friday Mr. McKeough had never made a formal request for discussion on the matter of transference of zoning authority.

Metro council in September approved the principal of expanding Metro's eastern boundary to absorb Pickering Township, Pickering village and Ajax.

Christmas Mothers

These Belleville women had much to toast Christmas Day — even though they were both in hospital. Mrs. Eugene Holland (right) gave birth to the first Christmas baby born in Belleville General — a boy, at 12:16 a.m. The arrival was followed by a girl at 3:42 a.m. to Mrs. Robert Jones. Later, both women celebrated unique events with fruit-juice cocktails poured by ward supervisor Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson.

Family Loses All Possessions

MADOC — An appeal has been launched here to help a rural family of six left without home or possessions in a sudden fire yesterday hour after they returned from sharing Christmas with relatives.

Homeless are Mr. and Mrs. John Helm and their four children, ranging in age from 18 months to seven years.

They had no insurance on their two - storey frame home at Millbridge, 12 miles north of here near Highway 62 in Tudor township.

The Helms saved only a table and two chairs in the blaze, said Raymond Healey, a brother of Mrs. Helm.

The blaze broke out in a chimney after the Helms had lit a fire in a kitchen wood stove to warm the house on their return, he said.

Rev. J. H. Thompson, pastor of St. John the Baptist Anglican church here last night launched an appeal to help the stricken family with clothing and household possessions.

Woman Found In Madoc Field

A middle - aged woman is being treated in Belleville General Hospital for severe frostbite after she was found lying in a field near Madoc Christmas Eve.

Police said the woman apparently collapsed as she walked across fields east of the village and was found several hours later by youngsters snowmobiling near Highway 7.

Police said the woman was a transient, believed with relatives in the Peterborough area.

They said she stayed Tuesday night at the Madoc Hotel, but left early Dec. 24.

Temperatures were below zero in the area at the time and the woman had no heavy winter clothing.

Hospital authorities said the woman was being treated for frostbite to her hands and feet.

Dog Walks Street Looking For Son

Rennie lost a son Christmas Day — although no one blames him for lack of parental responsibility.

But the loss brought disappointment to a Belleville family reunion, turning it into a two-day yuletide vigil.

Rennie is a pooch — the household pet of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Phillips, 35 Bongard Crescent.

His offspring is a six-month old pup named Skip, proud possession of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Phillips, of Kemptville.

The younger Phillips came home for Christmas — bringing Skip with them. Came Christmas morning and both dogs were let out to romp in the neighborhood snow.

Only Rennie returned. Skip, shaggy - haired and colored brown and white, was missing.

His continued absence baffled the household — dulling the edge of its Christmas celebration. Both families made regular patrols of the area Christmas and Boxing Day seeking the missing pet.

The search continued this morning until Ronald and his wife reluctantly returned to Kemptville without the pet they described as "spoiled rotten."

However, the senior Phillipses will keep looking over the weekend, hopeful of good news.

Seeking A Son

Shaggy-haired Rennie had reason for being disconsolate yesterday. He patrols Bongard Crescent area with Ronald Phillips. Man and dog were seeking Rennie's pup offspring, Skip, who disappeared from family reunion Christmas Day.

Surface Serenity Characterized Trenton's Christmas -- But Inside It Was Busy

Outwardly Trenton is calm and not a soul is in sight, as a southerly view down Dufferin Avenue at 2 p.m. Christmas Day clearly shows (left) — but Telephone Answering Service switchboard operator Georgina Tremblay (centre) has her hands full with the heavy Christmas Day telephone traffic. Meanwhile police constable Carmen Schwager has a lonely row to walk as he patrols Dundas Street West — Trenton's main street — late Christmas morning. The temperature — which dropped to six degrees below zero — was a major factor in keeping Trenton residents indoors on Christmas Day and played a helping hand in the deserted appearance of the landscape.

Folksingers Wanted

Young People Have Choice of Active Holiday Season

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Though the weather outside be frosty, Belleville's young people are going to have plenty of activity in which to while away holiday hours until school starts once more.

With three drop - in centres in operation and a score of rock dances, the city's teens will have a varied program of events in which to participate.

Roland Belanger, spokesfor By Word of Mouth, told The Intelligencer that the hours of the Front Street drop - in centre will probably be extended to accommodate the overflow of young adults during the holidays.

He said that there are more teenagers going to the centre now that colder weather is here and that increased activities for them would be the order of the day.

Sam, a local rock group played a rock dance at the centre Friday night and will lead off a series of dances that will continue over the holidays.

Should the hours be extended, as it is hoped, from noon until 11 p.m. every day, co - ordinators will be looking for entertainers, primarily of the folksinging variety.

"We have a sound system that would accommodate them," Mr. Belanger said.

Even if organized activities are not arranged for all opening hours of the centre, the juke box and a relaxed atmosphere will be available at By Word of Mouth.

The Record, on Victoria Avenue, will also be open all through the holidays, and special holiday activities are planned. Plans for a toboggan party Jan. 1 and for a roller-skating party are in motion.

Marvin Mountenay, a co-ordinator of the coffee house, said that more and more young people were entering the centre as the weather got colder.

Inside, organizers are serving coffee and other refreshments and a series of games are available. Records are also being provided as well as the opportunity to sit down and talk.

After Christmas the Record will probably make a stab at entertainment and dances.

The Living Room, at present residing at the Recreation Centre, is offering "a very casual kind of thing," said Mrs. Denton Taylor, one of the centre's adult organizers.

"We're offering things that just kind of happen," she said, explaining that nothing was definitely organized.

Bands and folksingers have been entertaining at the Living Room but their appearances have been spontaneous. The centre is limited by hours and will only be open on Friday and Sunday nights during the holidays. It will offer games such as cards and chess, records and more group discussions.

Later on in January the Living Room is planning a dance complete with live entertainment.

Outside of the drop in centre network, local promoter, Ken Williams, is offering a series of rock dances featuring such groups as the Sands of Time, Neon Rose and Two-Minute Hate.

An the activity continues far into January with the Belleville Theatre Guild's Moira Riverbottom Blues Festival on Jan. 23, a dance-concert featuring Whiskey Howl, Milkwood, Two Minute Hate and Bill the Lizard.

Christmas Moves to Hospital

Like thousands of Quinte youngsters Paul Woodcock celebrated Christmas with his family — but in unexpected surroundings.

The seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Woodcock, 283 Bleecker, was sent to Belleville General Hospital Christmas Eve after a traffic accident on Dundas Street East.

Paul received leg fractures when, say police, he darted in front of an automobile, driven by Robert Fort of Kingston.

Come Christmas Day, reported Mr. Woodcock, the family — including Paul's brother and two sisters — brought his Christmas gifts to his bedside.

The accident was one of a rash of incidents that erupted late Christmas Eve afternoon as the yuletide rush built to a hectic peak in Belleville.

Within little more than an hour, 5275 city police, they were called to eight accidents in different parts of the city.

In the same period, police traffic patrols charged three men with impaired driving. A number of Bellevillians also were charged with other liquor infractions before the rush of events subsided.

By the time telephones had stopped ringing at headquarters downtown the city and district was settling into traditional Christmas tranquility.

The peace and calm held good for the next two days.

Christmas dawned crisp and cold in the Quinte district — with most families apparently opting for a minimum of exposure outdoors.

Temperatures dropped to a low of four degrees below Christmas morning, later rising to a high of 15 degrees in the Belleville area.

Icy gusts in open areas dropped the mercury even lower in spots.

Hardiest outdoor venturers appeared to be the owners of new snowmobiles — end-of-the-year participants in a snow-vehicle sales boom.

Boxing Day came in with storm warnings which never fully materialized in the Quinte area.

However, late afternoon brought foul weather in the Belleville zone — slowing the homeward trek of many holidayers on local highways.

Heavy drifting compounded driving conditions as two inches of snow came with nightfall.

However, police reported no serious mishaps.

Boxing Day Business Great for Those Open

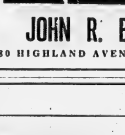
Business on Boxing Day? According to a few Belleville merchants the two go together quite well.

Although the Christmas holiday season usually takes quite a few families out of town, the absence of some did not hinder the amount of sales. Surprisingly enough, many took advantage of the post-Christmas sales.

Rana Rolul, speaking of business at Rolul's yesterday, said the crowds were "very good". We had people in the store even before 9 a.m. to buy Christmas cards".

At Towers, business was "fabulous", according to Ken Gear, assistant manager. By noon, there were close to 800 people shopping at the centre and within half an hour, "it seemed like half the city" was there, said Mr. Gear.

Kelly's Drug Store was also open Boxing Day and though business was not above normal, it was "busy".



A special holiday feature in Belleville this Christmas is the playin gof "Funny Girl", now showing at the Belle Theatre. First performance was held last night and according to Mrs. Stella Culhane, manager: "It was wonderful!" Though it is a little unusual to have such a popular and acclaimed show playing at a time when so many might be on holidays, Funny Girl was greeted last night by a good turn-out of Bellevillans. "The crowd was delighted with it. It is typical of the kind of show that should be shown around Christmas", said Mrs. Culhane.

Consolation Awards Here

The Farm Scene

Belleville is known for many things. It is a railroad community, it has long been associated with the production of cheese, today it is a growing industrial centre; but it is also the hub of the area's agricultural industry and it is this latter enterprise with which city folk at least seem least acquainted."

Other than the farmers who sell their produce at the market in the summer months Bellevillians have little contact with the rural scene. Even a weekend drive in the country reveals little of the actual farm activity that is so vital to national health and wealth. A few tractors plowing the good earth maybe — but that is about all. Even the farm homes appear somnolent amid the vastness of the outdoors.

Yet we know the farms are anything but idle. How far though does the city resident's limited knowledge go? How many have ever milked a cow, plowed a furrow or helped gather in the harvest?

What about the farmers themselves? How many have entered this vital activity from family tradition, acquiring their knowledge in apprentice fashion, from father to son; and how many of the younger ones are now coming by their skills as the result of attendance at such agricultural training centres as Guelph and Kemptville?

How much of the rural atmosphere is injected into the latter-day school curriculum? For if farms are to remain productive and economically stable — and we do know that the economics of farming are extremely uncertain — manpower as well as modern machinery are necessary.

In this context it may be noted that farmers' total cash receipts from farming operations in Canada declined nearly three per cent in the first nine months of this year. In Saskatchewan, because of the wheat glut, the figure was 20 per cent.

It is a fact also that the Stirling office of the Ontario department of agriculture and food is looking for men with farm backgrounds to take a dairy herd workers' course at Kemptville, and that on completing the course they would be assured full-time employment on large dairy farms in the province.

Not only is there a demand for such personnel but officials suggest many low-income farmers would be better off financially working on that of farms.

There is this general need too for farm and country to come closer together, for city and rural dwellers to get to know each other better. Belleville Rotary Club for instance, has its annual rural-urban meeting attended by many members of the farming community in this area.

To give such a gathering of the clans further impetus perhaps the schools could arrange more exchange trips between urban and rural communities. There should be mutual benefit in such visits, giving young people a keener appreciation of each other's environment.

End of A Dream

Now that implementation of any urban renewal scheme across Canada has been effectively killed by the government's limitation of federal contributions to municipal projects, what of the immediate future?

With new industries being established here, including the prospect of a new plaza the city will not be exactly standing still. We wonder though if in the absence of urban renewal proper an attempt might be made to improve the existing downtown scene with a Norwich Plan style of project.

We have mentioned this many times in the past, for such a plan first unveiled in Norwich, England some years ago) involved nothing so much as a coat of paint and concerted effort by merchants to improve the facades of their establishments. Where these are leased, then the co-operation of owners of the buildings would be necessary too.

Belleville store interiors for the most part are bright and attractive. A matching effort on the buildings outside would go far toward making downtown a more attractive area.

The economics of the situation that have led the government-to virtual abandonment of urban renewal policies set out in legislation in 1964 were outlined recently by Robert Andras, minister without portfolio in charge of housing. He said implementation of schemes across Canada that were ready to go ahead would cost Ottawa as much as $400 million in grants alone. As a result, he said, the federal contribution to municipal projects between 1970 and 1974 will be held at $25 million annually.

Thus ends a dream, for the time being at least. At least there should be some to spare from Ottawa's $25 million annually for a modest scheme of the kind suggested above.

MPPs Suggestion

Toward Progress on the Farm—What About Computers?

London Free Press

In the debate on estimates for the department of agriculture in the Ontario Legislature Donald MacDonald, NDP leader, intimated that failure to implement the findings of the farm Income committee stemmed from the fact that the farmer considers himself the last of the free enterprisers. One wonders what a farmer in Russia, or China would think of this statement.

One feature, most countries have in common, regardless of their ideology, is that the farmer either is, or considers himself, the low man on the economic totem pole. Yet he stands at the base of a pyramid, supporting all the rest. Cities since the dawn of history, have only been able to exist if farmers produced more than they and their families ate.

Oddly enough the tremendous increase in farm productivity in recent times has not freed the farmer from his problems. Increased production seems inevitably to bring lower prices. The particular case in point is the situation of the wheat producer in Western Canada. Sales to Russia and China as well as other Communist lands prompted governments to call on the prairie farmers for new efforts to meet the demand for wheat. Then Russian crops improved and Russians postponed picking up the wheat for which they had contracted. This put the prairie farmer in a bind, particularly as it occurred just when world wheat prices broke.

Prof. H. B. Huff of Guelph University said recently policies are needed to match production to demand and so stabilize prices? A similar idea was presented to the Ontario Legislature by Donald Paterson, the Liberal MPP for Essex South. He suggested that a computer system be set up to evaluate supply and demand factors and keep farmers up to date. This would indeed be a big leap forward, and it remains to be seen whether farmers would take it. There are so many variables involved on both the production and demand sides of the picture that even the computer system would be taxed to cope with them. If the farmer could be freed to concentrate on production his task would be simpler, but experience teaches him that the advice he gets is not necessarily good.

'Big Brother' Movement

Winnipeg Free Press

What's in a name? After George Orwell, the appellation "big brother" has come to mean something sinister — the all-pervading eye of the state prying into the individual citizen's affairs until he had no individuality left but was no more than an object existing to do the state's bidding.

On this continent, however, the term "Big Brother" has been rescued from its Orwellian setting and given a new significance. It has become the name of a movement, both philanthropic and humanitarian, which stresses rather than denigrates the value of the individual. Its concern is with fatherless boys.

It asks for volunteers to guide, advise and be companions of boys who need someone to be denied these benefits in their formative years.

For some time now there have been men in Winnipeg who have undertaken this "big brother" role on a voluntary basis. Now the Big Brothers Association of Greater Winnipeg has been incorporated. Its first city-wide appeal in the public will be a recruiting blitz scheduled for Big Brother Week, January 4 to 11. It is an appeal that seeks to answer a genuine need, that speaks to the individual conscience and deserves widespread support.

Future of the Seaway

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

United States prophets of gloom and doom would have us believe the St. Lawrence Seaway is tottering on the brink of bankruptcy, that shippers are shunning it and shipbuilders cursing it. But we are convinced that the basic concept of the inland waterway is sound and that it will continue to serve Canada well for many years to come.

One gets some indication of official suggests the system "may go to pot" rather than close down. It is unlikely, but the first part of the statement could occur as far as facilities on the American side are concerned. But suggestion that the seaway could close is downright silly.

Perhaps the Americans would be doing Canada a favor if they decided to give up on the system, let harbors at Cleveland, Chicago Duluth and other centres become catch basins for silt and just let the locks at Massena fall apart from lack of maintenance and repairs. Canada would then have to build locks at Cornwall and forge ahead with the all-Canadian seaway.

But don't count on it happening. The Americans are not that stupid. Right now strong east coast port and railway lobbies appear to have the upper hand and are hurting the seaway in the United States, Preferential rail transportation rates to east coast ports are making Great Lakes ports such as Cleveland and Chicago pay higher rates. But all this will change in time.

We feel confident of this because Americans are basically very intelligent businessmen. They know that most products can be shipped far more cheaply to more markets in bulk carriers plying the seaway. It is only a matter of time until the peanuts switches back to water transportation.

Mere likely than a cutback in seaway tonnage in the years ahead is a significant increase in it. And this is likely to be accommodated by larger locks, a further deepening of the 27-foot channel and even larger ships' lengths.

Granted there was a reduction in seaway tonnage this year. But much of this was caused by strikes which restricted the movement of iron ore,

Proposed Rail Staff Transfer

Does Reaction Reflect Local Prejudice?

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I feel obliged to comment on Mr. Grills' statement in the House of Commons, concerning the proposed move of CNR employees to Montreal.

According to the report, our Hastings MP stated that such a transfer is "inhuman", and went on to say that, the employees involved were fearful of the move because they don't speak French and that they were worried about getting English language schooling for their children.

Now, it's quite possible that Mr. Grills had words put into his mouth by some local railway people, but if we read between the lines, his statement could have been.

"Gentlemen — I represent a group of people who are fearful of a transfer to Montreal because they do not wish to budge from their Ontario Anglo Saxon separatist ghettos. It is a well-known fact that their children have the opportunity and the right to an English education in Quebec, but they wish to stir up controversy, and attacking the French Canadian and his ways has always been a bit of a game in my riding. I would also suggest that when they say they don't speak French, what they really mean is that they won't speak French and are unwilling to admit that the average French Canadian will more than meet them half way, if they do not go down there with chips on their shoulders".

This may all sound a little harsh, but the unrest in Quebec today is a direct result of misunderstanding and non-appreciation of our fellow man, and a good portion of it in this area stems from the Toronto press, a few weeks ago, The Intelligencer carried an editorial from the Hamilton Spectator, condemning the Montreal newspapers for their attacks on Montreal.

So it happens. They've attacked Quebec highways, Quebec drivers, Quebec politics, Quebec schools, Expo, the Montreal Canadiens, Jean Drapeau, and even got into the act on this year's Grey Cup Parade. Professional jealousy sure goes haywire on Bay Street.

Getting back to the local problem, if people in line for transfers were to get their information from the correct source instead of hearsay, they would be able to make the move with less apprehension, and more spirit and goodwill.

Let us hope that the majority of the people in the Quinte area are free thinking and worldly-minded enough to be above the level which our MP chooses to place us. The name of the game at this time of year is still supposed to be: Peace on Earth and Good Will Towards Men.

J. A. McGOVERN.

The Law and Marriage

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

At first look, proposals of the Ontario Law Reform Commission seem to strike a blow at the security of the marriage tie. After a review of the law governing family life, the commission says it should be made legal for spouses to sue each other.

In Ontario we have held to the principle of the British common law which says that husband and wife are one legal entity. Neither can be compelled to give evidence against the other.

A second look the radical suggestion that this age-old tenet should be abolished may not necessarily be a bad thing.

If husband and wife are so angry at each other that one or the other wants to sue, they might better be working off their choler in the decorous atmosphere of a courtroom than throwing things at each other in the privacy of their home.

A lawsuit might relieve tensions although it would also relieve them, whatever the decision, of the money needed to pay legal costs.

In at least one kind of situation the law that prohibits the suing of spouse by spouse serves to protect, oddly enough, the automobile insurance companies. In the era of the two-car family it happens not-unusually that someone who thought he had liability insurance finds he has not.

If husband and wife each has a car, and the two cars collide, they are likely to find that neither one has liability insurance, even though the policies are in force and the premiums paid up.

Suppose that a husband, backing his car out of the garage, backs into his wife's car, which she has left parked where he did not expect it to be. The way most liability policies are written, there is no liability coverage. If it was his fault, she cannot collect from the insurance company, and vice versa.

The reason is simply that as the law stands husband cannot sue wife, nor vice versa. If there is no legal recourse there is no liability. The only way a two-car family can protect itself against such mishaps is with collision insurance.

The commission advises that wives and husbands should be given the right to sue each other for libel, slander, property damage or compensation for injuries caused by negligence or assault.

This opens a wide array of possibilities. On at least one narrow count, however, a husband and wife on the most amicable of terms with each other could gain a joint advantage by being able to start an intra-family lawsuit.

Central Heating Long Ago

German Features

AACHEN — Charlemagne, famous 8th century King of the Franks and founder of the Holy Roman Empire, enjoyed central heating, a new historical find at his quarters here reveals.

In repairing the Granusarium, the building in Aachen where the king and emperor once slept, workmen recently uncovered a network of passages in walls of the king's rooms which led directly to the central heating oven — the walls themselves are about five feet thick.

The passages obviously served as a central heating system for Charlemagne (742-814 A.D.). Experts believe the network was covered during renovation on the building during the Middle Ages, hence had been forgotten.

Focus on Urban Policy

Peterborough Examiner

Prime Minister Trudeau and his Liberal colleagues need to be called to account for their non-existent urban policy, but that will not be achieved through well-bearded opposition attacks like the one led recently by Robert Stanfield.

If the Opposition parties are to make any contribution to a solution of urban problems they must begin making specific proposals for action. The federal government is involved in the cities through transportation, urban renewal, housing and public works. What is needed are new suggestions on how to make these effective means to positive solutions.

California Will Start Taxing Church Businesses January 1

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California starts taxing some church businesses on Jan. 1—but no one in the state government or the churches themselves seems to know exactly who will be taxed, where they are, or how much money will be raised.

A law passed by the 1969 legislature extends the state's corporation tax to businesses directly operated by religious organizations but unrelated to their spiritual function.

Church and state officials alike say they cannot at the moment think of a specific business which isn't taxed now but will be under the new law.

Such things as cemeteries, publications, old-age homes and other activities directly associated with church functioning won't be considered unrelated income. They will remain tax free.

But if a church ran a movie house devoted to family type films, for instance, it would be taxed. The new law requires all churches to list types and sources of income. The amount need not be reported unless it comes from an unrelated business.

Sponsor of the law was Democratic Senator Anthony C. Beilenson, of Beverly Hills, who is Jewish. He says he was surprised at how easily the bill went through and became law. Most major denominations had endorsed some such form of legislation.

In the rest of the United States during the last few months many denominations have expressed an almost eager willingness, in the name of fallpaint alleges that tax exemptions for churches and synagogues violate the American constitution's church-state separation tradition.

William R. Burke, legislative counsel for the Roman Catholic bishops of California, said he would be surprised if "a great deal of tax money" resulted from the law.

The California corporation tax rate is seven per cent of net income. Businesses run by churches get a special $1,000 deduction. Businesses in which a church holds a controlling interest, but which are actually run by lay management, are not affected because those already are taxed.

Churches Suspicious Of Training Program

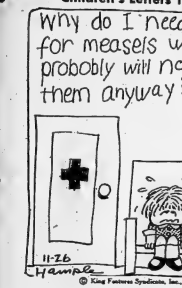
TORONTO (CP) — Three years after Dr. Edgar Fife started the Canadian Urban Training Project for Christian Service, he feels his work so far has been only a partial success.

The project, an ecumenical effort to train church workers for urban ministries, has been recommended in a report written for the Ontario Institute of Studies in Education: yet, he said, many churches look at it with suspicion.

Dr. Fife, 38, holder of a divinity degree and a doctorate in religious sociology from Boston University, set up the training program when he found Canada had no centres for formal training for urban ministers.



Operating on a budget of about $50,000, mostly provided by the United, Anglican and Presbyterian churches, he offers six-month and one-year programs for men and women of nine denominations, and also a summer session for university students.

In his words, the aim is to train people to identify situations needing social change and to show them how to do it. "It is training people to be agents of social change toward greater social justice," he said in an interview.

He said the true end is to help ministers find the answer to a possibly dangerous question—"How do you usefully rock the boat?

Typically, ministers, after graduation, ask permission to divide their time between their congregations and the general community.

Mrs. W. Barber arranges a display of flowers

Christmas Flowers

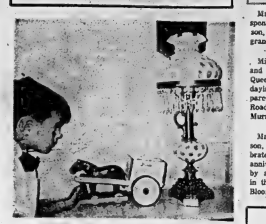
Flowers seem to sell well all year round but the Christmas season found the flower shops busier than usual. "The use of greenery at Christmas grew out of ancient Greek and Roman custom." Holly was used by the Romans to honor their god Saturn. Today it is usually used for wreaths. This red berried plant, arranged in a circular shape, symbolizes the hope of eternal life.



Selling well this year were poinsettias, cyclamen, azaleas and carnations, which are used for flower arrangements.

The poinsettia, however, has become the symbol of Christmas. This plant is a Mexican and South American shrub with yellow flowers surrounded by tapering red leaves resembling petals. It is sometimes called "Flor de Noche Buena" — flower of the Holy Night. The plant supposedly derived this name when a Mexican girl, lacking anything of beauty to give to the Virgin Mary plucked some roadside weeds and placed them at the statue's feet. They were immediately changed into poinsettias.

Flowering plants have to be especially well taken care of. All of them need lots of light. Poinsettias, in particular, need lots of light, moisture and a room temperature of not more than 70 degrees and not less than 60 degrees.

Wood Carving Resulted From Art of Whittling

Whittling has a long record in Canada. It was raised to an art as wood carving by Bishop Laval in Quebec who established an Ecole des Arts et Metiers at the Seminary of St. Joachim in 1675. Although the school disappeared in the early 19th century an apprentice system kept the craft alive.

Carving in pine reached its peak in the early 19th century under the influence of Quevillon. His studio, Les Ecorres, in the village of St. Vincent de Paul maintained his tradition up to about 1860.

Almost the entire production up to this point was religious in character. The decline of wood-carving was hastened by the importation of an Italian sculptor by the Bishop of Quebec in 1866. He began casting in plaster and wood-carving was almost abandoned.

After 1860 wood-carving was taken up more as a hobby than an occupation, this time representing the habitant life. Skilful carving, almost caricature, characterizes present Quebec wood - carving. Their designs are much finer and more detailed than the horse and wagon shown. Many farm figures, horses and other animals, can be found. They are frequently painted. Few date as far back as the beginning of this century.

The horse illustrated is whittled from pine. The carving was made more realistic by covering it with horsehair, long since worn off. The breed represented is a Percheron. Perche is a district of France that includes Normandy. It was known for providing the post - horses of France, famous for their strength, lightness and speed. The breed was recognized there by 1875 although historically much earlier.

The Percheron in Canada owes its name to France but is a breed developed from the Clydesdale and the Shire. Shire is another name for the old English black horse known as long ago as the time of Henry VIII as the War Horse of Great Horse. It is the largest of the draught horses, originally bred to carry knights in armour. It combined great strength with docility and intelligence.

It can be assumed that the toy horse and cart dates from 1910-1940 probably whittled out in the winter months. It likely represents the favorite family horse and was intended for the children of the family and not for sale.

The original whittler, perhaps the hired man, would be surprised to learn that his horse is worth about $20 today and likely to be collected as a Canadian primitive by a discerning collector who would not dream of allowing it to be used as a toy.

PRICE OF LOVE

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP) — The local government council has limited bride prices in New Guinea to $2,240, presumably because some grooms have complained of being overcharged. Where dollars are scarce, this can be paid in tinned food, mother of pearl, pigs and dogs' teeth.

Doctors Use Machine That Scans Brain Waves For Purpose of Detecting Deafness in Infants

TORONTO (CP) — A brain wave is helping doctors in two Toronto hospitals to detect deafness in infants.

Until recently, doctors couldn't check the hearing of children until they were old enough to co-operate.

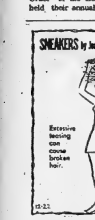
Now, using a machine that scans brain waves, they can pick up impulses that will show if infants have a hearing problem.

Dr. David P. Mitchell, chief of the otology department of the Hospital for Sick Children, says it's important to find out early if a child can't hear.

This is because a baby starts learning speech sounds at six months and the bulk of his speech knowledge is gained in the first few years.

Normally, deaf children are three years old before their hearing disability is discovered.

"Our aim is to get that average down to one year," he says. Toronto General Hospital also uses the machine.



Dr. Mitchell said babies with hearing problems are fitted with sound amplifiers at six months.

"We teach the mothers to keep the child close to her and speak directly into his ear to give him lots of sound stimulus."

Dr. Mitchell's team is conducting research into the causes of deafness, particularly the possibility that the inner ear can be bypassed and stimulation delivered directly to the brain.

Belleville Chapter No. 55 OES Holds Yule Party

Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, held their annual Christmas party Friday evening, Dec. 19. Over 200 members and visitors assembled in the Masonic Temple for this event.

At the close of the chapter meeting, a dinner was held in the auditorium, which was gayly decorated for the occasion, a beautiful Christmas tree with gifts piled high around the base. The long, white clothed tables, with their colorful Christmas decorations were brightly lit with Christmas candles; and at each place a decorated Christmas stocking was filled with candy.

The head table guests and officers marched in to the strains of Christmas music played on the organ by Mr. William Connor.

The worthy matron, Mrs. Marjorie Gray and worthy patron, Robert Connor, welcomed all, and wished for them a very merry Christmas and happy New Year. The worthy patron, who was master of ceremonies for the evening, introduced the head table, then grace was said by the Reverend Virgil Earle.

After partaking of a sumptuous dinner, carols were sung, and the chapter Choir entertained with several Christmas songs and carols, under the direction of the choir — leader Sister Beverley Shaw, and the accompaniment of Mr. Connor on the organ.

Mr. Earl Gray P. P. and husband of the worthy matron, introduced the guest speaker, the Reverend Virgil Earle, of the Anglican Church Parish of Roslin an d'Tweed, The theme of Mr. Earle's Christmas message was "What Does Christmas Mean to Me?" Christmas means many things, the church services, the carol singing; buying, —wrapping, and giving of presents to loved ones; gathering in the homes for Christmas dinners; Christmas parties. But let us remember that it is the birthday of Jesus that we are celebrating, the Son of God Incarnate, who came to bring to us the gift of forgiveness for our sins, and we should stop and think what this world would be like if He had not been born." The speaker was thanked by Rex Chaplin, associate patron. He and Mrs. Earle were each presented with a gift.

Keith Elliott thanked Mrs. Wilma Smith for loaning her organ for the evening, and William Connor for playing for the group. He also gave thanks to the choir, the lunch committee, and all who worked so hard to make the party such a success.

Then Santa Claus arrived, greeted everyone, and wished them a merry Christmas. He and his helpers distributed gifts to everyone. The less fortunate were not forgotten either, as the members had brought "White gifts" to make up Christmas baskets for the needy. Thus another happy Yule-tide celebration was brought to a close.

Ann Landers

Diabetic Child Considered A 'Burden'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our four-year-old child is diabetic. The only difference between her and the children she plays with is that she must stay on a restricted diet, eat regularly and take insulin every day.

ANN LANDERS

We enrolled her in playschool, three mornings a week. She loved being with the other children and looked forward to going. After three weeks, the school told us they didn't want her because she was a "burden." It was too much trouble, they said, to give her a 10:00 a.m. snack and extra candy before siesta-time. They said they wanted only normal children who presented no problems.

Our little girl was heartbroken. She cried for three days. It was impossible to explain why they didn't want her. For two years we have worked hard to make her feel she was no different than anyone else, and now this had to happen. Why? — ATLANTA.

DEAR ATLANTA: There's a possibility that the school feared a lawsuit if something happened to your daughter while she was in their care. This contingency might have been eliminated, however, had you and your husband signed a release.

From the humanitarian point of view the school gets very low marks. I do hope there is another playschool in your area where your child can be enrolled as soon as possible.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For reasons which are nobody's business, my husband and I do not have any children, nor do we wish to have any. The problem is how to cope with people who persist in prodding us with questions regarding our childless state.

We don't want to be rude, but on the other hand we resent being made uncomfortable by nosy clods. Please tell us what to say to discourage these people.—NETTLED AND IRRITATED.

DEAR N AND I: An effective response to a None-Of-Their-Business-type query is as follows: Look the person in the eye and say, "You have just asked me an extremely personal question. I will forgive you for asking if you will forgive me for not answering."

This should melt the bridgework of even the brassiest clod.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I never let Tommy see me cuddling and playing with the baby. I don't want him to feel jealous. He doesn't think I pay much attention to the baby."

Don't delude an older child into thinking the new baby is not cherished, too, or he may not learn to be affectionate with her. Emphasize his importance to you and he will continue to feel special and secure in your love.

Tommy: "We don't like the baby, do we?"

Mother: "Oh, yes, we love the baby. We have to do everything for her now because she's so little. I'm glad I have you to help me."

Church Groups

ST. ANNE'S C.W.L.

Successful Living

Tragedy of the '30's

By DORIS CLARK

"In fact there was almost no starvation in the Depression of the 30's, as a coroner would define starvation.

"A much greater tragedy was demoralization: the demoralization of able men, standing on street corners selling themselves for $2, $1, 50 cents, anything; of an unending procession of 'hobos' knocking on the back doors of restaurants for the scraps, then hitting the rods again.

"There was the demoralization of children going to school without shoes; the demoralization of even those not faced with hardship but unable to face its spectre; the demoralization of a nation fast losing its anchors and assurances." — Ralph Allen, from "Careers Today", Curriculum Resource Books Series, by Joan Morris.

The Great Depression happened nearly 40 years ago. To be demoralized means not to try any more. During the Depression, it was our economy that was at fault; and hands too long idle could mean broken spirits.

Yet there were many who sailed through hard times and came out smiling. Today there are still reasons for lagging spirits: worries about money, worries about health, handicaps, hazards of all kinds.

Whatever your own special breed of hard luck, don't let it get you down. Do something!

* * *

Dear Doris: Do you still have a copy of Eight Games For Very Young People and the collection of recipes from the Depression era? I'd like them.

The latter was mentioned recently by "Depression Daughter". I am one of those, too, and like D.D., I didn't realize it was all that bad because my farmer parents were such good managers and my mother so cheerful and such a good cook.

I remember our receiving through the Municipal office a bag of brown apples (russets, I believe) from Ontario. This carload of apples was a gift from the people of Ontario to those in Saskatchewan. It made us realize what it felt like to be receiving "aid" from someone else. — Prairie Betty

Dear Betty: When good cheer is packed into good cooking you've got fare fit for a king even if it's just beans. The two leaflets are on their way.

But how did it feel?

LBJ Says He Would Have Won Election

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Former president Lyndon B. Johnson says a proposal by Hubert H. Humphrey for a halt to the United States bombing of North Vietnam cost Humphrey the 1968 presidential election and set back the Paris peace talks.

Johnson expresses his view about the former vice-president in a televised interview in which he explains his own decision not to seek another four-year term in 1968.

Johnson had no doubt that he would have won had he decided to run for re-election last year.

"If you are asking me . . . whether I had any doubt about my election as president, the answer is an absolute, positive 'no'," he declares.

During the interview, Johnson says he had not wanted to run for the White House in 1964—when he won the presidency by the largest vote majority in American history—did not feel he was fit for the presidency, and always believed that every job he held in his long political career was too big for him.

Reporters who saw an advance screening of the interview were astounded by the former Democratic president's admissions of insecurity. Johnson has always been judged to be one of the most dominating personalities in recent political history, who relished power and used it successfully all his life.

The interview taped in September, will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System tonight.

Agnew Wants Asians To Be Self-Sufficient

HONOLULU (AP) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew says the Nixon administration wants Asian nations to "develop an economic balance and self-sufficiency so that it will be unnecessary for the United States to step in if things go wrong."

But Agnew told reporters as he launched his 10-nation, 37,000-mile trip Friday that he plans to emphasize, in bilateral talks with Asian leaders, the intention of the United States to stand by its treaty obligations.

Agnew spent the night here on the first leg of a trans-Pacific hop that takes him today to Guam and then on to the Philippines for Tuesday's inauguration of President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

About 30 minutes after the vice-president's plane, Air Force Two, took off from Washington on its flight to Hawaii, Agnew visited the rear cabin to chat with reporters on the political and diplomatic aspects of his trip.

Asked about the Senate's rejection of the foreign aid bill because it included $54,500,000 in unbudgeted and unauthorized funds to buy military jets for Formosa, Agnew said:

"It will be my purpose to reassure (Nationalist China's President) Chiang Kai-shek that this does not represent any weakening of our treaty commitment."

The House of Representatives approved the funds but the Senate rejected them, leaving the foreign aid money bill in limbo until Congress goes back to work in January.

Agnew said the Nixon doctrine, outlined by the president at Guam on his Asian trip last July, includes a pledge to stand by U.S. commitments, a nuclear shield against threats to Asian nations and the stimulation of economic growth and nationalism.

"We expect them to handle insurgency within their own borders with their own people," he said, adding that "in the event we determine that any action against them threatens the general economy of the Asian hemisphere, we will support them with material and other forms of assistance."

But he said any decision on whether such aid would include U.S. troops would have to be made at the time by the president.

Montreal 'Funny-hats' Picked Canada's '69 Sport Thrill

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Back in April, a brand-new baseball team ran bo to the field in Shea Stadium and beat New York Mets 11-10.

A week later, the same "team in the funny hats"—Montreal Expos—took on St. Louis Cardinals in the Montreal season-opener and won that one also, 8-7.

Things just couldn't go on that way, of course. The Expos ended the season last in their division but what Canada's first major league ball club lacked at the plate they made up for at the gate.

The Expos drew 1,212,608 fans into Jarry Park.

Sports writers and broadcasters across Canada, voting in the annual Canadian Press year-end poll, chose the entire Expo scene as the thrill of the year in sport. The club's fiscal success was the surprise of the year among the more than 130 who voted.

And the whole situation even drew some votes as the oddity of 1969 on the Canadian sports scene.

Only one other incident drew votes in all three categories—the hirings and firings at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

The firing of Gardens president Stafford Smythe and vice-president Harold Ballard, only to have them restored to power, drew most votes as the oddity.

The surprise of the year, behind the showing of the Expos, was the firing by the Leafs of coach Punch Imlach minutes after his club was knocked out of the Stanley Cup playoffs by Boston Bruins.

But the Smythe-Ballard hiring-firing also drew votes in that category.

There were even two votes for the firing of Punch as "sports thrill of 1969."

Second place in the category of thrill was a tie between the Boston and Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup semi-final and the departure of Russ Jackson from football in emotional, victorious fashion.

Ranking well up there in the thrill category was the success of the Canada Games in Halifax. The Games, without any name athletes on the card, drew as well that the organizers ended up moving portable bleachers all over town as the various events occurred.

The success of the Canada Games also ranked high in the voting for surprise of the year, outstripping Phil Esposito's record-breaking 126 points scored in National Hockey League competition and the fact that the NHL put a $6,000,000 price tag on expansion franchises.

The firing of Bill Gadsby as coach of Detroit Red Wings was the surprise of the year to some. It came when he was riding a 2-0 win streak.

There were lots of others—Graydon Robinson was crowned world bowling champion in Tokyo; Hap Emms quit as head of the Canadian National Hockey team; Montreal Alouettes were sold to an Ottawa football man and British Columbia Lions came off a 1-10 record to end the season 5-11 and make the Western Football Conference playoffs.

But it was in the category of oddity of the year that the voters indulged their whimsy.

Canada: 3-2

Nats Hold Soviets in Check

TORONTO (CP) — Perhaps the Russians were tired or relaxed after two easy games against inferior opposition.

In any event, the team that has awed international amateur competition for eight years was beaten 3-2 at its own skating game by the Canadian national hockey team Friday night.

The victory also gave the Canadians a 3-2 edge in games against the world champion Russians, who wind up their tour of Canada at Montreal against a Montreal Canadiens farm club team Monday.

WAYNE STEPHENSON
Busy In First

During the first 40 minutes here Friday night and the Canadians skated the Russians to a standstill in the final period before 15,614 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Vladimor Petrov and Valerie Kharlamov scored the Russian goals, both in the first period, on intricate passing plays but never really shook off the tenacious checking of the Canadians in the second and third periods.

The Russians, who have ruled the international scene with skating ability, were beaten by a team that utilized four forward lines and three defensive pairings.

The Russians outshot the Canadians 38-28, but 20 of the shots on Wayne Stephenson were recorded in the first period before the Canadians began employing a man-to-man system of checking.

During the final 20 minutes, the Russians took only six shots and most were harmless.

Charles Hay, president of Hockey Canada which operates the Canadian team, said he was pleased with the effort but emphasized that several changes are still to be made.

"We're looking for about six additions. We really need another good forward line and some backup strength in goal."

The Canadian team currently has goaltender Ken Dryden on the roster.

The Russians took three of the four minor penalties and Canada scored its second goal on the power play.

BARRY MacKENZIE
Made It

Alexander Ragulin was sitting out an interference penalty when MacKenzie's drive from inside the blueline skipped over goaltender Vladislav Tretjak's pads to give Canada a 2-1 lead.

The first period ended in a 2-2 tie and the Russians showed definite signs of slowing late in the second period.

Heindl got the winner at 15:01 of the second period, beating the Russian defence and Tretjak with a 15-foot shot that bounced off the goaltender's pads.

Defenceman Steve Carlyle started the play by pouncing on a Russian lead pass at the Soviet's blueline and feeding Heindl.

Santa Came Late

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

George Westfall will probably always remember the goal he didn't score that counted.

Westfall was awarded the goal after being pulled down from behind during a breakaway on the open net Friday night as Orillia Terriers defeated Owen Sound Terriers 5-3 in Ontario Hockey Association senior action.

In other scheduled action, Kingston Aces and Barrie Flyers battled 3-3 after the overtime and Belleville Mohawks defeated Woodstock Athletics 5-3.

The goal was the second of the night for Westfall, Clare Alexander, Gary Milroy and John Hall added singles. Keith Sawyer, Bill Adams and Joe Hamley replied for Owen Sound.

Rod Graham, Hugh Harvey and Doug Senior of Kingston and Ray Orr, Jim Thompson and Jon Weeks for Barrie accounted for the tie.

Expansion Label Fades As Penguins Trip Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Penguins and St. Louis Blues hammered a couple more nails into the coffin ild labelled "Expansion Division" with key victories over established Eastern Division squads Friday night.

The Penguins were in fourth spot in the West Division, but a 3-2 upset over New York Rangers, leaders in the East, pulled them into a tie with Philadelphia Flyers, just three points back of second-place Minnesota North Stars.

The Blues, meanwhile, increased their lead over Minnesota to 12 points with a 3-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs, the Eastern Division cellar-dwellers.

In one other game, Montreal Canadiens earned a 3-3 tie with Detroit Red Wings.

The outstanding goaltending of Les Binkley kept Pittsburgh ahead after two goals by Ron Stock and one by Bryan Hextall. Binkley stopped 26 New York drives, 18 in the second period, to earn the victory. Ed Giacomin took the loss in the Rangers' goal, stopping only 19 Penguins shots.

Brad Park and Ron Stewart scored for the Rangers, who absorbed their first loss in 15 games against the Western Division this season. The win before 17,250 New York fans snapped a five-game losing streak for the Penguins.

Barclay Plager, Phil Goyette and Tim Ecclestone scored for the Blues before a crowd of 16,515 at St. Louis before. George Armstrong got one back for the Leafs late in the second period.

Gordie Howe was the goat before 15,246 fans at Detroit when he made a blind pass that was picked up by Montreal defenceman Terry Harper for the tying goal with 2:47 remaining in the third period.

Is Buffalo Punchy?

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — George (Punch) Imlach, coach and general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs for 11 years before he was fired last April, will become general manager of the new Buffalo team in the National Hockey League, it was reported today.

The Buffalo Courier-Express says Imlach, 51, will be named "some time before the all-star game in St. Louis Jan. 20."

Imlach has had at least four meetings with officials of the Niagara Frontier Hockey Corp. since the group was granted an NHL expansion franchise last month, the newspaper says.

The Buffalo team and one from Vancouver will begin play in the 1970-71 season. Joe Crozier will shortly be named general manager of the Vancouver club, the newspaper says.

Under Imlach's direction, the Maple Leafs reached the play-offs in 10 of 11 seasons and won four Stanley Cups, including three in a row.

Imlach was fired by Toronto president Stafford Smythe last April 5, seconds after the Maple Leafs were eliminated by Boston Bruins in four straight games in the Stanley Cup semi-finals.

He now is receiving some $51,000 from the Leafs to settle his three-year contract, which had one season to run. The Buffalo contract will be for several seasons, the newspaper says.

Imlach, now engaged in newspaper radio, and television work in Toronto, rejected bids to become general manager and coach of Los Angeles Kings and Pittsburgh Penguins and coach of Minnesota North Stars, the paper says.

Consentino Trades Argo Play Books For School Variety

EDMONTON (CP) — Frank Cosentino has given up Toronto Argonaut play books for school books at the University of Alberta—at least for a few months.

Cosentino, Argonauts' backup quarterback in the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference this year, is working on a doctorate in physical education.

While playing for Edmonton Eskimos for two seasons, Cosentino earned an MA degree and his thesis, Canadian Football, the Grey Cup Years, now is being sold as a hard-cover book.

"They were terrific with me at the U. of A.," said Cosentino in an interview. "I've always missed two months of school, but they're allowing me to do the seven months of work in five.

"I could have gone to school in the United States, but I didn't see any advantage to it. Alberta has good men.

"If there was any single reason why I took my masters here other than the fact I was playing here, it was because of Dr. Max Howell. He's the only Canadian in an exclusive group of 100 people in physical education historical circles, and is great to work with."

Cosentino owns a home in Edmonton and is living here with his wife, two sons and two daughters during the off-season.

However, he says he has promised the Argonauts that he'll be available next year and will have to go back to Toronto.

He thinks he will have his course work finished by May, but his thesis "may take a couple of years." However, he said he hasn't given much thought to whether it will be published in book form when it's finished.

"I was pleased my master's thesis was published. It was left pretty well in the same form, as it was written. The only changes were in moving the footnotes into the body of the book."

Sales of the book are encouraging, said Cosentino, and a local book store reports sales extremely good.

Cosentino says he thinks he can play football for five or six more seasons, but he isn't sure he wants to play that long.

"I will have to make a decision in the next year or two."

He said he wants to get into coaching and has had a good offer, but his immediate plans call for playing.

Passers Fair Game In Viking-Ram Clash

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "Meet me at the quarterback." Nothing as much as those five words, coined by Minnesota defensive end Jim Marshall, says succinctly and explicitly define the purpose of pro football's fearsome front four—in each case a half ton of brawn bent on bending the sport's glamor pussers.

And as the Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams meet for the National Football League's Western Conference championship this afternoon, these five words and the eight men involved possibly are the key to each team's title chances.

The game, starting at 2 p.m. EST, is being carried live in the United States by CBS and in Canada by CBC.

Both the Viking and the Ram Front Four are experts at mayhem. Both have established their proficiencies but neither has managed to establish clear superiority, at least statistically.

The Rams sacked opposing quarterbacks 50 times, one more than the Vikings did. The Vikings pushed opposing quarterbacks into the ground just a bit farther, nailing them for 401 yards in losses to 393 for the Rams.

And though both front fours emphasize that they have in no way been competing, they also agree that comparisons have been made.

"I don't think we've ever personally involved ourselves in any competition," said Viking defensive tackle Gary Larsen before the game. "We let our action speak rather than words." Merlin Olsen, the Ram defensive tackle, concurred, but did admit.

"You can't help but draw comparisons—that's something that will go on for a long time. But you just can't look at the number of times a front four sacks the quarterback—you have to look at the over all performance of the defensive line and what it's contributed to the over-all team."

Those were the measuring sticks that were applied as the two front fours—the Rams' Fearsome Foursome checking in at 1,045 pounds and the Vikings' Purple People Eaters checking in at 1,040—took aim at playing their game of meeting at the quarterback.

The candidates for extinction were Los Angeles quarterback Roman Gabriel and Minnesota quarterback Joe Kapp.

The executioners lined up this way:

LOS ANGELES RAMS

Left End—David Jones, No. 73, six-foot-five, 250 pounds. Called the Deacon for some reason unknown to rival quarterbacks, he is anything but gentle—a swift penetrator who usually is double-teamed because he is so proficient at finding his way to the passer.

Left tackle—Merlin Olsen, No. 74, six foot five, 270 pounds. The man who enables Jones to free lance without worrying. Jones can go without braking because Olsen not only will cover his area but the area the Deacon is vacating.

Right tackle—Coy Bacon, No. 79, six foot three, 270 pounds. Only a second year man, acquired from Dallas for a draft choice. Bacon has stepped in as a key force in the front four, although the least inexperienced. In certain situations he gives way to massive 285 pound Roger Brown.

Right end—Diron Talbert, No. 72, six foot five, 255 pounds. Moved from tackle to end when Lamar Lundy was injured, the three-year veteran now has taken hold at the outside post with his tremendous strength and great agility.

MINNESOTA VIKINGS

Left end—Carl Eller, No. 81, six foot six, 255 pounds. Just now reaching his potential, Eller is the chief pretender to Jones's throne as the NFL's No. 1 end. Equally adept at pursuing the passer or stopping the run with his good size and amazing mobility.

Left tackle—Gary Larsen, No. 77, six foot five, 260 pounds. The least publicized member of the Vikings' front four, but the policeman who watches for the run in a defensive line designed for the all-out rush of the passer.

Right tackle—Alan Page, No. 88, six foot four, 245 pounds. The youngest and newest front four member at 24, Page is a quick, street penetrator. Despite having only three years of experience, he already has been rated with the best tackles in the business.

Right end—Jim Marshall, No. 70, six foot three, 250 pounds. He is the oldest and quickest member of the front four and, with his great speed, usually is the first assassin into opposing backfields, as Jones is for the Rams.

Dallas Favored Despite Past

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Cleveland Coach Blanton Collier believes Dallas Cowboys won't make the same mistake Sunday in the National Football League Eastern Conference championship they've made in the last two outings against the Browns.

"If Fred Dallas didn't take us too seriously and were looking ahead last year," Collier says. "In the regular season game earlier this year, I feel it was a little bit the same.

"Right now Dallas couldn't be in a better emotional position."

Dallas lost 31-20 to Cleveland in the Eastern Conference playoff in 1968 and fell 42-10 earlier this year.

But the oddsmakers have made Dallas a 6½-point favorite for the Dec. 1:30 p.m. kickoff in the Cotton Bowl before a sellout crowd of 71,000 and a CBS television audience.

"That's a little unusual in he favorites over a team we've lost to this year, but I guess somebody knows something," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Cleveland is injury free while Dallas has only nagging hurts. Running back Calvin Hill still has a sore toe, offensive tackle Ralph Neely has a sore leg, and quarterback Craig Morton still has a sore shoulder. All will start.

Both coaches promised a few new "wrinkles" for the game although they basically will stick with the plays used to them in leading the Browns to the Century Division title and Dallas to the Capitol Division crown.

"You have to put in a few new wrinkles to keep 'em off balance," says Landry.

Collier says: "We've changed up our game play some each time we've played them."

Collier says the hometown advantage will help the Cowboys, who have beaten Cleveland three consecutive times here.

"I kind of like having the people in the stands with me," Collier says.

Landry agrees, saying "when you have the people hollering for you it might make the difference in a playoff game."

Hamilton Goalie Was Busy Enough to Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie Mike Velsor played one of those games Friday night that every goaltender gets at least once in a lifetime.

The netminder turned back 42 shots, including 19 in the final 20 minutes, to lead Hamilton Red Wings to a 5-2 Ontario Hockey Association Junior A victory over London Knights.

In other action, Oshawa Generals downed Niagara Falls Flyers 6-2, St. Catharines Black Hawks beat Toronto Marlboros 5-3, Ottawa 67s and Peterborough Petes battled to a 3-3 tie and Montreal Canadiens defeated Kitchener Rangers 5-2.

Ray Meyers with two goals led the Hamilton attack that overcame a 2-0 deficit with five unanswered goals in the final period. Ron Climie, Gary Coalter and Buster Harvey added single goals.

Dave Gilmour and Mike Craig were the Loodon marksmen.

Defenceman Claude Moreau scored two goals for Montreal, while Gilbert Perreault, Richard Martin and Pierre Brind'Amour added the others. Glen Sisdall and Ted Scharf replied for Kitchener.

Bob Kelly and Pete Sullivan scored two goals each and Terry O'Reilly and Tom Simpson got singles for Oshawa. Paul Kett and Fred Thwaites scored the Flyers' goals.

Dennis Potvin, Conley Forey and Murray Wilson for Oshawa and Rick MacLeish, Paul Perreas and Chris Meloff for Peterborough accounted for the tie.

Pierre Guite paced the St. Catharines attack with two goals, while Jim Pearson, Marcel Dionne and Duane Wylie added the others. Charlie Shaw, Tom Johnston and Gord Davies were the Toronto marksmen.

Super Tangle for Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (CP-AP) — Canadian football teams, tussling with the problem of cable television, know just how Jim Kensil feels.

Kensil, executive director of professional football in the United States, said there would be no closed-circuit television of the Jan. 11 Super Bowl game fed back into blacked-out New Orleans.

But E. William Henry, former Federal Communications Commission chairman who now heads Management Television Systems, Inc., had a surprise for Kensil.

The game, Henry said, will be televised in color back to the New Orleans Rivergate and admission will be $7.50. The game, which pits the National league champions against the best in the American league, had been sold out for weeks at Tulane Stadium with admission $15.

The Rivergate, the New Orleans exposition centre, can hold 16,000.

Belated Kensil:

"Any attempted appropriation of the telecast without the consent of this office is viewed by us as a violation of our property rights and the matter is being referred to our attorneys."

Garden Arranges Ellis-Frazier Fracas

NEW YORK (AP) — Madison Square Garden has completed arrangements for a Feb. 16 heavyweight championship bout between Joe Frazier and Jimmy Ellis, it appeared virtually certain Friday.

The Garden, which has been trying to match Frazier and Ellis for the title for almost a year, has scheduled a press conference for Monday, at which time details of the 15 round fight are expected to be announced.

Harry Markson, director of boxing for the New York arena, said earlier in the week he was confident the match would be closed with the resolution of "a few hitches concerning the ancillary, the television setup."

Frazier, the Philadelphia puncher recognized as champion in seven states, including New York, and Ellis, of Louisville, Ky., the World Boxing Association titleholder, reportedly have been guaranteed $150,000 each against 30 per cent of the gate plus closed circuit television revenue.

Mo-Hawks Hobbling After Boxing Day Boost to Third

WOODSTOCK (Special) — A 500 - mile return trip to Woodstock is nobody's way to spend Boxing Day.

But the two points they brought home from a 5-3 OHA Senior A win over the A's were enjoyable, if belated, Christmas presents for Belleville's Mo-Hawks.

The win, courtesy of goals by Wayne McConnell, Gary Dalliday, and "Shaker" Baker, Lorne O'Donnell and Wayne "Weiner" Brown, gave the Mo-Hawks undisputed possession of third place in the eight-team Senior A grouping, two points ahead of Oakville.

"It's a good thing we've got the week off, though," coach Davey Jones observed. (The next Mo-Hawk game is a 9 p.m. home encounter with the A's at the Memorial Arena Friday).

Wingers Ralph Plane, Ray Sammers and Lorne O'Donnell all came out of Friday night's game a little the worse for wear.

Rugged rookie Ray Johnston who injured his knee in Tuesday night's 3-1 loss to Kingston, didn't make the trip, moving veteran "Shaker" Baker up to fill his left wing spot on the Jones - McConnell line.

Baker came through with his second goal in three games, after scoring only twice in his first 15 outings.

Summers, who moved off the bench into Baker's right-side spot with Gary Dalliday and Ralph Plane, suffered a severe charley horse and never played after the first period.

GARY DALLIDAY
Ends Drought

Plane, already laboring under a bad shoulder injury pestering him since the early part of the schedule, limped off with a sore side during the third period to leave another vacancy.

O'Donnell, who had collected his 16th goal of the season near the end of second period, joined the infirmary lineup late in the game.

Moving up to fill in for O'Donnell at the left side of George Godson and Al Ferguson, defenceman "Wieser" Brown broke the ice for his first goal of the season to finish off the Belleville scoring.

Al Blair scored twice and Mac Westgate once for the last-place A's who trailed all the way after Gary Dalliday's goal in the last minute of the first period gave the Mo-Hawks a 2-1 edge.

Dalliday's goal ended a scoring drought dating back to Nov. 9, when the hard-working centre scored what proved to be the winning goal in the Mo-Hawks' 3-1 win in Kingston to break a three-season Limestone City hex.

Despite not threatening on the scoreboard, the A's outshot the Mo-Hawks 43-38.

Again, coach Jones was perturbed about a failure to cash in on valuable scoring opportunities of the type that could have spelled a difference in last Tuesday's 3-1 home loss to Kingston.

"George (Godson) had a horrible night," said Jones. "He must have had four breakaways and couldn't score".

Following next Friday's home action against the 2-20 Woodstock cellar squad, the Mo-Hawks head into Kingston for an 8 p.m. Sunday game.

Ellis Juniors Stunned By Trenton Surge

TRENTON (Special) — The Belleville Ellis Juniors know by this stage of the Eastern Ontario Junior B schedule they can beat any of the six league teams — they've been ahead of most of them.

But holding a lead is an art coach Floyd Crawford is having problems drumming into his charges.

Sunday night, the Belleville B's outdid themselves, blowing a 7-2 lead and bowing to Trenton Golden Hawks 9-7. Their win, the 2nd comeback effort over Belleville since Roger Drake assumed Trenton's coaching reins from Orval 'Red' Gravelle, moved the Hawks into a fourth-place tie with Belleville, a point ahead of last-place Cobourg Cougars.

"The kids got goal hungry — big gap in the Belleville line-up when he moved to Rochester for employment.

Trenton's lide turned for the better mid-way through the second period when goalie Brian Wilson,a big factor in the Golden Hawk rise from the league basement in recent games, was yanked in favor of Gary Jowett.

Jowett, who fell out of former coach Gravelle's favor after the Hawks slumped to an 8-game winless streak, slammed the door on the Ellises for the remainder of the game while his mates collected seven unanswered goals, including three in the final 20 minutes.

Tomorrow, the Hawks go into Peterborough for an afternoon game with the Don Byes, while the Belleville B's are at home for a 7:30 game with league-leading Kingston Frontenacs.

Sunday night's Kingston game will be "Centennial Night" at the Memorial Arena, with the Ellises admitting holders of Centennial Secondary School student cards for 25 cents.

Monday, the Ellises travel to Cobourg for an 8 p.m. game with the last-place Cougars.

GARY LISLE
Sparks Comeback

a bit selfish instead of playing our system of one man going in deep to forecheck," was Crawford's explanation, "Instead of us getting the breakaways with a five goal lead, Trenton started to get them."

Golden Hawk scorers Gary Lisle and Jeff Howard accounted for a trio of the latter, coming up with three goals each to pace the Trenton attack. Singles came from Craig Bennett, Bim McFaul, and defenceman Brian Hall, who was taken to hospital for arm x-rays after crashing heavily into the boards midway through the second period.

Reid Mallory helped forge Belleville's 7-2 lead with three goals. Terry Meagher picked up a pair, and Ted Waite and Ron Fuller added singles.

Fuller made a one-game "guest appearance" for the Ellis club. The productive if diminutive right-winger left a big gap in the Belleville line-up when he moved to Rochester for employment.

Hospital Strike Called Off After Five Freed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (CP) — Union leaders called off a 12-week strike against St. Joseph Hospital Friday and voted to return to their jobs Monday morning.

The announcement of the strike's end was made on the steps of the Criminal Courts Building shortly after Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, chairman of the Christian Leadership Conference, and four other ministers were released from jail on $1 bail each.

Abernathy called his eight-day jail stay on charges stemming from demonstrations in support of the hospital strikers and a black student boycott "a mountaintop experience."

"It was the greatest Christmas of all the days of my life," he said.

Jesse Epps, a representative of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, said union members had agreed to accept a proposal by Bishop Joseph A. Durick of the Tennessee Roman Catholic Diocese for ending the hospital strike.

"We are agreeing to the proposals of Bishop Durick, as endorsed by Dr. Abernathy and the 12 black community leaders, with some hesitation," Epps said. "We are going back in good faith. If the proposals are not honored, then it will be the hospital that is continuing the strike."

Abernathy, who entered the jail eight days ago, was met by his wife and three children who flew here from their home in Atlanta.

He was one of 19 persons indicted in connection with Memphis school boycotts. Four other ministers—two white and two black—who spent 17 days in jail, left with him.

'Try Not to Hate Us'

MONTREAL (CP) — Messages of support and sympathy have meant a happy Christmas for four black Montrealers who 11 days ago were the targets of racial hatred.

Mr. and Mrs. Denis Bacchan and sisters Amy and Joyce Gibbs came home then to find their apartments ransacked, furniture turned over, Christmas trees smashed, and racial obscenities scrawled on walls.

After a report of the incident was published, both families were flooded with letters and cards from Montreal and elsewhere, pledging moral support and expressing sympathy.

"Please try not to hate us," one Montrealer wrote.

Demonstrators Find Tenting Is Chilly

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Montreal peace demonstrators, told that Parliament Hill is no picnic ground, are finding that tenting anywhere in an Ottawa December is no picnic.

"I kept dreaming of warmth," film-maker Michael Rudko, 20, told reporters after a night under canvas when the temperature dipped close to zero.

Mr. Rudko, his girlfriend Helene Girard and Claire Culhane, president of the Quebec Voice of Women, set up two tents beside an Elgin St. church after an attempt to set up a Vietnam-style tent village on Parliament Hill was scotched by the RCMP.

They had planned to enlist other camping demonstrators and live on rice, soup and tea as a protest against the fighting in Vietnam. Mr. Rubbo and Mrs. Culhane, ill and a grandmother, plan to occupy their church-site tents until Parliament resumes Jan. 12.

The trio led some 75 peace marchers to the Hill Christmas Eve. When they tried to set up their tents, an RCMP official said regulations prohibited use of tents on the grounds. A marching demonstration was permissible but Parliament Hill was "no picnic ground."

They then moved the two tents to St. Marc's Church.

The temperature hit five above zero early Christmas morning and has moderated only slightly since. Friday afternoon it was running 10-15 degrees higher but brisk winds moved in as about three inches of snow whisked down on the city.

Some Faces Of Happiness

Happiness is going to your doctor, thinking you have cancer, and learning the lump is a benign fatty tumor.

Happiness is having a pain in your chest, worrying about a coronary attack, and having him tell you it's referred pain from shoulder bursitis or from shingles.

Happiness is having your uterus cut and learning that it does not mean "the end of the world" — sexually or other wise.

Happiness is having a heart skipping all over the place and learning that the trouble is due to harmless "extra-systoles" or "premature contractions" — often found in the healthiest of hearts.

Unhappiness is not getting enough courage to visit your doctor and remaining in ignorance of whether or not the trouble is serious.

Hundreds of thousands of Americans go through life — or at least through many months or years — unnecessarily worrying and thinking the worst. They live like invalids or semi-invalids simply because, id their own minds, they have made the diagnosis of illness that isn't there. For example:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Wouldn't you think I'd know better? I'm not exactly dumb, having a Ph.D in psychology. Yet I've lived in a hiatus of stupidity for at least six months.

After a two-weeks viral infection I developed a cough that persisted for many months. I refused to go to the doctor because I was certain he'd say I had lung cancer. Or at least emphysema. All the while, I kept on smoking "two packs a day. Stupid? You bet. At last my wife took me by the hand (or shall I say pulled me by the hand) and I had my examination.

You guessed it. Everything OK. I don't smoke now.—Less Stupid.

A few months ago I wrote about the woman who suffered beatings by her husband. Here is a suggestion from a reader:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Please tell Mrs. B. — the wife whose husband beats her because he's concrete — that I have a better solution than the one you suggested — taking brain tracings.

Go to the police and fast! Have him put on probation for six months. See if he can't control himself much better with a little help from the police department. I had the same trouble and it worked wonders. This man needs to be scared. Besides, you owe it to yourself and your children. — Mrs. L.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My problem is that I am snoring myself outside of house and home. It has caused my husband to move into another bedroom. It's so bad he even shuts the door. He says I shake the house when I snore. It seems funny, but it isn't. What shall I do? I have been healthy except for frequent attacks of sinus trouble. — Mrs. P.

Comment: As in your case, snoring can be a serious matter. There is no known universal cure. However your attacks of "sinus trouble" may be a good tip to see a nose and throat specialist.

Sometimes snoring can be relieved by treating enlarged turbinates in the nose, or fixing a deviated septum. Or by removing enlarged tonsils and adenoids.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"Think I should bring the goldfish down for some exercise?"

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 28

Your birthday today: The year ahead brings many changes and escalations of details on the home front — with the definite possibility that you will be on the move with groups having special missions superseding local considerations. Your personal magnetism abruptly reaches new intensity, so that people are swept along by your enthusiasm. Romantic interests are acutely alive but difficult to maintain steadily in the whirlwind going on.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The proper thing to do now is to put on your finest attire and make a sincere showing in the community expression of its faith and customs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Now is the long awaited opportunity to have fun. There are new items for trial in hobbies and crafts. Find some way, beyond decorating, of expressing your feelings toward your loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Work should be limited to the chores needed for light entertainment or perhaps a checkup on your household budget and like accounts.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Get out early. Friendly gatherings are stimulating and welcome your cheerful, brief visits. Keep moving until you've had a full set of opinions from everybody.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): There should be very little serious work done this Sunday, with perhaps the exception of counseling and listening hours for older people or parents needing special assistance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This should be a leisurely sort of Sunday — full of simple enjoyment, light entertainment, good conversation. Hobbies may pleasantly claim some of the afternoon and evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Seek out old friends you have not seen in a long while and have a good visit. Avoid crowds and keep on the move for a day of local adventure. Give thought to your health care habits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Short trips, social activities offer much enjoyment. Make a complete day of it. You will have a great deal to think about by the time evening comes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your thoughts may drift toward coming business activities. You can do little beyond outlining the preliminaries for nearby people who are available to listen. Don't even do it; others like their holidays more than you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Find some reasons for things being as they are: contemplate the customs of your community. Then find serious study or self-improvement which does not disturb less serious neighbors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Although you shouldn't be looking for it, you may turn a bit of cash today incidental to your rounds of social activities. You can do something nice for older people with little effort.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Join with loved ones, friends, neighbors, to make this a Sunday to remember. Late in the day, there may be time to begin next year's budget plans and to answer correspondence.

For December 29

You may enjoy a more visible position in your birthday today: Your life opens up somewhat in the coming months with both income and expenses rising. You develop more fluent skill at self-expression and tend to occupy a more visible position in the world of business and society. Sentimental interests flourish along with unusually good chances of adventure. Today's natives are often very serious individuals whose luck gives them the means to persist in their research of philosophic inquiries.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Everything has something to finish before the year is out. Your day starts with a restless mood but soon settles to a steady pace.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You are bound to learn some odd, probably useless information that arouses your sense of humor. Stay on the job, and carry your share of the work without quibble.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The morning tests your dialectic skill and perhaps your ability to do two unrelated chores at once. Later, the activity turns out la be fun.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Early hours are not comfortable for you, but the middle and late hours are very productive. If your vocation has a year-end lull, use it for thinking up action steps to your interests and fresh items to produce.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Consult your tax experts for a final check on the way your accounts work out for the year. No time is left for a long debate or for extensive rearrangements.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You are beginning to sense the changes of the coming year. It is time to begin planning to take full advantage of them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The early hours are quite stressful and inconvenient; the things begin to fall into place and you can put more complete words together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Prepare to cope with your own distinctive style, or stay in bed a bit longer for a late start. Then your momentum picks up rapidly and you can straighten out the year-end accounts. Bring your correspondence up to date in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Balance personal interests with business concerns: find a median and manage some thing for both. An agreement for the coming year can be made in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Avoid squabbles in the morning because you need to be free of disturbance for the planning that is best done today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): There are subtle resources right at hand, camouflaged by some inadvertent technical ity which distracts people from seeing them for what they are. Use your imagination and grasp the opportunity at once.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Friends have many excellent ideas. Don't commit yourself to definitive plans.

What, No Amendment to the Constitution?

Orillia School Board Bans Lecock Wine Party

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — It has been suggested, with tongue in cheek, that a whisky be named after humorist Stephen Leacock, as one was named after Scottish poet Robert Burns.

That suggestion might not go down too well in this small city of 20,000—model for the mythical town of Mariposa made famous by Leacock's Sunshine Sketches of a Small Town.

Stephen Leacock Associates, a group dedicated to sustaining Leacock's memory, was refused permission by the Shanty Bay county board of education to hold a wine and cheese party in a local school next Tuesday to mark the centenary of the author's birth.

But the party will go on—in a hotel and with wine. One wonders what Leacock's reaction might have been to the board's dry views.

As Harry J. Boyle, vice-chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission and this year's honorary mayor of mythical Mariposa, has said:

"They don't admit it in Orillia, but he was known to take a drink."

In any case, the party is being held neither to promote a Leacock whisky nor to discuss the acceptability of alcoholic beverages in Orillia, but to mark the start of year-long activities designed to further the fame of Canada's best-known humorist.

The party will be held Tuesday, Dec. 30, exactly 100 years after Leacock's birth in 1869 in Swanmore, Hampshire, England, and 25 years after his death.

It will be followed in the coming year with a Leacock exhibition at the national library in Ottawa, a Leacock assembly at the University of Toronto and the release of a record album of the late John Drainie's reading of Leacock works.

Highlight of the year will be the annual, three-day Leacock weekend, starting June 28 and featuring the annual dinner at which the Stephen Leacock Award for Humor will be presented.

Stuart Trueman, editor of The Telegraph-Journal and The Times-Globe in Saint John, N.B., won the 1968 award for his book You Are as Old as You Act, a collection of stories about himself and people he knows.

The special weekend will include a soiree and a party at the Leacock home on Brewery Bay on Lake Couchiching. It was during his summers at the Brewery Bay cottage that Leacock wrote the Sunshine Sketches.

The Orillia group and the national Leacock Centennial Committee also are trying to have a stamp and a highway named after the humorist.

The Canadian Permanent Committee on Geographical Names has been asked to name a mountain after Leacock and the Ontario government has been petitioned to name a new highway joining east Toronto and the Lake Simcoe district after him.

Also planned during the year are a special television program and a prose contest for high school and college students.

Moon-landing Top Event for Newsmen

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

"That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind."

The words were astronaut Neil Armstrong's as he stepped on the moon July 20. They were heard round the world and captured the imagination of millions, as few events have done.

So it is little surprise that a year-end poll of newspaper editors and broadcasters conducted by The Canadian Press names the Apollo 11 mission—man's first landing on the moon—the most newsworthy event of 1969.

In the same year-end poll, astronaut Armstrong was named the world's most newsworthy man.

It was the second consecutive year that a United States space accomplishment was chosen. Last year the top story in the news-gathering co-operative's poll was the Apollo 8 flight round the moon—man's first time outside earth's gravity.

The selection made by editors representing CP member-newspapers and radio and television stations served by CP's associate company, Broadcast News Ltd.

The strike by Montreal police Oct. 7 with subsequent violence and looting was selected as the biggest Canadian news break. Another Montreal event — destruction of a computer centre by Negro students and their sympathizers at Sir George Williams University Feb. 11—was rated the second biggest Canadian event.

For the second year, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau was the third-place Canadian choice as the most newsworthy Canadian.

Russ Jackson, retired quarterback for Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League, was named the most newsworthy Canadian outside public affairs. He had competition from Toronto Maple Leafs Leger for his work among lepers in Africa, and from Stanley Burke, former CBC television news announcer who resigned to work for peace in Nigeria.

It was the latest in a long list of awards for Jackson, quarterback of the Grey Cup champions, He received the male athlete of the year in a CP poll and before that was chosen outstanding player and outstanding Canadian player in the CFL.

The top stories:

1. Man lands on the moon July 20.

2. Charles de Gaulle resigns as president of France April 28.

3. Girl drowned in Senator Edward Kennedy's car July 18.

4. Troops called to quell Northern Ireland rioting Aug. 5.

5. United States begins troop withdrawals from Vietnam.

6. Reported massacre of Vietnam civilians by U.S. troops.

7. The Apollo 11 landing was a runaway winner, but there were [illegible] separatist

8. President de Gaulle's failure to overcome the pressures on his administration and the mystery surrounding the death of Mary Jo Kopechne in Senator Kennedy's car at Chappaquiddick Island, Mass.

9. Anti-war protests in the United States finished just out of the top six, as did the second Apollo moon landing Nov. 19.

10. President Nixon was a close second to astronaut Armstrong as the most newsworthy world figure.

Top Canadian stories:

1. Montreal police strike Oct. 7.

2. Student rampage at Sir George Williams University Feb. 11.

Tweed District Personals

TWEED — The Ladies' Auxiliary at Arden, held an afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Alexander, earlier this month. The funds raised will go to help pay for the two plaques of the World Wars which were stolen and partly destroyed last spring. Some donations have already been received, but it runs into a great deal of money and also time to put the plaques back on the Cenotaph. It is anticipated that they will be able to be replaced in the spring of 1970. The group will also be holding euchre parties throughout the winter months for that project.

The Lutheran Church Women of Denbigh held their annual party recently at the home of Mrs. Bertha Toulast, with a good attendance. A Christmas program (Christmas) games and card playing was enjoyed, with the exchange of gifts later with lunch served.

Mrs. Frank Scott, of Arden suffered a stroke recently. She was visiting at the home of her son Ezra and daughter-in-law, Carol, at Moira, Ontario, when was taken by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. John Thompson of Queensboro, spent last week in Arden where his daughter, his son-in law, Mr. and Mrs. Dill Loukko, Mrs. Edith Schoonover of Ardoch, recently visited with Mrs. Delma Thompson, of Queensboro Grove.

Mrs. Charity Monds of Smiths Falls is spending a week with her niece, Mrs. Delma Thompson of Mountain Grove.

Mr. Albert Whiteman of Marlbord is a patient in a Kingston hospital.

U.S. Medicare Will Cost More

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premiums paid by elderly Americans for supplementary Medicare coverage to go up to $5.50 a month next July 1, a 32.5-per cent increase over the current $4 fee.

Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, announced the increase Friday.

The supplementary insurance cost the elderly only $2 per month when the program was launched in 1966.

More than 19,000,000 Americans are now covered by Medicare, which consists of two parts—a voluntary medical insurance program and the government-financed basic hospital insurance. The voluntary program supplements the basic program by helping pay doctor bills and a variety of other medical expenses in and out of hospital.

First Man on Moon Only Ninth on British List

LONDON (AP) — British radio listeners voted Prime Minister Wilson Man of the Decade.

Results of the poll of more than 30,000 listeners on the 10 most important men of the 1960 were announced Friday by the BBC.

Wilson got 1,051 votes. Opposition Conservative MP Enoch Powell, best known for his suggestion that colored immigrants be paid to return home, was second with 446 votes. Edward Heath, the Conservative party leader, did not make the top 10. The others:

2. John F. Kennedy, the late American president; 4. Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith; 5. The late Pope John XXIII; 6. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., assassinated American civil rights leader; 7. Prince Philip; 8. Dr. Billy Graham, the American evangelist; 9. American astronaut Neil Armstrong, the first man on the moon; 10. Gen. Charles de Gaulle, former president of France.

Seven Poles Jump Ship

MONTREAL (CP) — Seven Polish seamen who jumped ship Wednesday in Halifax were returned to that city Friday, to await an immigration department ruling on their request for political asylum in Canada.

The plight of the seven Poles, described by royal mounted police as "genuine defectors," came to the attention of Carmie Starzykowski, president of Montreal radio station CFMB, himself of Polish extraction. He slashed through red tape to bring the seamen to Montreal where they were treated to a Polish Christmas dinner with a Montreal couple and were able to attend midnight mass at a Polish church.

Since Air Canada flights to the Maritimes were already solidly booked, the airline added a special flight Friday to carry the seamen to Halifax, with the radio station picking up the tab.

The seven seamen, Mieczyslaw Grabinski, 26, of Warsaw, Zygmund Polkowski, 24, Roman Brzezinski, 32, Jan Nawrot, 21, and Tadeusz Dobrowolski, 32, all of Szczecin, and Henrik Chlebowski, 25, of Lodz, spent Christmas day sightseeing in Montreal.

Six of the men defected from the Polish merchant and a seventh from the Wausau.

At Least Six Die In Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — At least six persons were killed early today in the latest of a series of fires that broke out during the first snow storm of the season.

Fire department officials said the death toll may go higher.

Four children, a man and a woman perished in the east-end blaze that started about 4 a.m., officials said.

It was the fourth fire within seven hours. In three Friday night fires, a total of 22 families were forced into the streets.

In the fatal fire, another 30 people were left homeless.

The blaze was under control two hours after its outbreak.

Firemen were hindered by 25-mile-an-hour winds which whipped up fine granulated snow which blinded them at times.

Hoses became clogged in freezing temperatures.

Nutcracker at the O'Keefe

The National Ballet Company of Canada will perform its sixth season of the Nutcracker at the O'Keefe Centre from Dec. 26 to Jan. 3. The production, which has won the hearts of youngsters throughout the world with its fairy tale story of the enchanted doll who becomes a handsome prince includes the following performers: Veronica Tennant and Jeremy Blanton, Suzanne Farrell and Hazaros Surmejan, Nadia Potts and Marijan Bayer.

Nutcracker Playing Eight Matinee Shows

Suzanne Farrell, the lovely long-legged ballerina from New York, will be returning to Toronto in December to dance in the National Ballet of Canada's annual Christmas and holiday presentation at the O'Keefe Centre. The Nutcracker, opening Dec. 26. She'll be partnered by Hazaros Surmejan.

The principal roles of the Snow Queen and the Sugar Plum Fairy will also be danced by Veronica Tennant and Nadia Potts, with the role of the Nutcracker Prince also being performed by Jeremy Blanton and Marijan Bayer.

Because The Nutcracker has such an appeal for children, there will be eight afternoon performances of The Nutcracker, including Sunday, Dec. 28, at 2.00 p.m. from Friday, Dec. 26 through Jan. 3 except for New Year's Day when the O'Keefe Centre will be closed. There will also be two 3.30 p.m. performances, one on Friday, Dec. 26 and the other on Friday, Jan. 2. In addition to the 2.00 p.m. performances on both Saturdays during the run, there will also be 8.30 p.m. performances on Saturday, Dec. 27 and Jan. 3.

This is the sixth season The Nutcracker has played at the O'Keefe Centre, where the world of gingerbread men, brave cavaliers, snowflake maidens, toy soldiers, jolly snowmen and the enchanted Nutcracker doll who becomes a handsome prince seems to perennially win the hearts of youngsters everywhere.

In fact, the National Ballet production of The Nutcracker has become almost an institution. Christmas would not be the same without it for many youngsters who go to the performances year after year.

Sex Shows Immature Says Mayo

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A still beautiful doll who was a glamor queen of the '30s and '50s—and did her share of cheesecake posing—thinks things have gone too far.

Virginia Mayo says nudity and sex are being presented on the screen today by a "a lot of idiots who are not really grown up yet."

They're fooling around like kids who write dirty words on a barn."

She's no prude. "In a lot of my films we'd have scenes where I was supposed to be taking a bath. But you didn't see me naked. I'd have things on."

Miss Mayo, born Virginia Jones in St. Louis—and trained there in her aunt's dramatic school—had several years of touring in vaudeville and plays before producer Sam Goldwyn saw her in a Broadway show and brought her to Hollywood in 1943.

In 18 years for Goldwyn and later Warner Bros., she appeared in about 40 movies, bit, budget westerns, musicals and costume dramas that still stand up well, she is proud to say, on television.

"Only two or three were stinkers." Her latest movie as a freelance was a 1967 Western, Fort Utah.

In recent years Miss Mayo has returned to her first love, the theatre: That Certain Girl in Las Vegas, on the road with Barefoot in the Park. Mayo fans who saw her in an eight-week run of Under the Yum Yum Tree at the Thunderbird Hotel in Las Vegas, completed last week, noted that the blue-eyed blonde is as shapely as ever.

From the show she returned to her home in Thousand Oaks, Calif., where she lives with her husband, Michael O'Shea of the 1954-57 television series It's a Great Life and their daughter Mary Catherine, 16.

As a veteran of more restrained representations of romance on the screen, what does she think of today's explicitness?

"Those silly sex subjects are very immature. The guys doing them don't know how to write. Lack of talent is what makes them do these dirty and, they think, shocking things."

Survivor Tells Of Night Ambush

SAIGON (AP) — "I raised my hands to surrender and they shot me down without mercy," U.S. Army Capt. John W. Marshall said today of a nightmare ambush he survived by playing dead on a narrow side road 28 miles north of Saigon.

The 27-year-old officer lived to tell the story, but the three men riding with him in a jeep to a Christmas celebration Tuesday were killed by the ambushers, who were South Vietnamese army uniforms. A few carried American-made M16 rifles.

A career soldier from Lawton, Okla., Marshall suffered a broken leg from one of the bullets. He was found the next morning by a road mine sweeping team.

He was interviewed today at Tan Son Nhut airbase as he waited for a medical evacuation flight that will fly him to a military hospital in Japan.

Marshall and the others had left Lai Khe, their base camp, for the artillery fire base where they were stationed, a few miles away.

Three miles east of Lai Khe, 15 to 20 Vietnamese suddenly opened fire from the four-foot elephant grass bordering the road, Marshall related.

"After the initial volley, I was the only one alive," Marshall recalled. The Jeep careered off the road into the elephant grass, he said.

"After they shot me they were very excited because they thought they got a dai yu (Vietnamese word for captain). Thinking I was dead, they unbuttoned my flak jacket, took my dogtags, personal effects and watch. All I could do was breathe shallow and hope they didn't discover I was still alive.

"They dumped the other three bodies over mine and then poured gasoline over the jeep and the bodies. As they started to leave they threw a match, setting the gas on fire.

Mr. Average Canadian Empties His Wallet for New Year's

By CRAIG ASPINALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's that time of year again. After juggling his bank account to pay for the gift-giving and culinary excesses of Christmas, Mr. Average Canadian is emptying his wallet in preparation for the last big blast of the year—New Year's Eve.

Depending on the state of his finances, he and the missus can look forward to a quiet dinner for two as low as $12.50, or plan to go the route for dinner, dancing, entertainment and a 2:30 a.m. breakfast for $50—not counting drinks.

If that sounds a little steep, you won't be alone if you decide to issue a Bring-Your-Own-Bottle invitation to friends and do your celebrating at home. This seems to be the trend in quite a few Canadian cities.

Then again you may be able to set yourself up with a ski weekend or a romp by snowmobile from a winterized cottage—just the thing to clear your head after the fun and games of the big night.

Despite the house parties, jaunts to the country and compulsory breath analysis tests, hoteimen aren't worried about a drop in bookings. Many already are full to capacity and those who still have room note that Dec. 31 is still six days away.

Those revelers who decide on organized entertainment will have a fairly wide range of prices to choose from, theoretically. But let's face it—New Year's Eve is a time for pulling out the stops and that means dinner, dancing, entertainment—whether a full-scale floor show or a solitary chanteuse—and lots of liquid refreshment.

Dinner, dancing and entertainment usually are included in the cover charge. Toronto's Inn on the Park even throws in corsages, small gifts and a light breakfast—all for $60.

If a quiet dinner and a little cheek-to-cheek dancing are your preference, count on spending at least $20, usually including a small cover charge and the price of the meal—perhaps even a glass of champagne at midnight.

Whether the bill of fare reads $10 or $80, it almost invariably will have the note "drinks extra" somewhere in the fine print.

Depending on your intake, that could change the complexion of your wallet considerably.

As for free entertainment, there doesn't appear to be too much available. A cursory check of major cities turned up only one free event—a skating party with a band and coffee at Toronto's city hall.

USAF Abandons UFO Probe

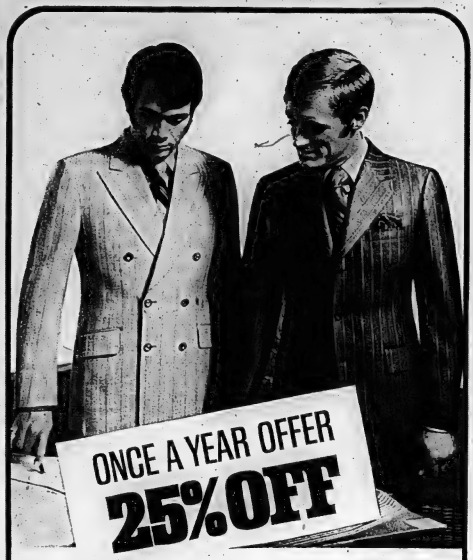
BOSTON, (AP) — After 22 years, the U.S. Air Force has given up its investigation of UFOs—unidentified flying objects—but a scientific debate continues.

UFOs were the topic of a symposium today at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Scientists of the 21st century will look back on UFOs as the greatest nonsense of the 20th century," said Dr. Donald H. Menzel, Harvard University astronomer.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, Northwestern University astronomer, countered:



"We in the 20th century may be as far away from a solution of the UFO problem as 19th-century physicists were from an interpretation of the Aurora Borealis (northern lights)."

Both men have served as consultants during air force investigations of UFO reports. Dr. Hynek served almost from the inception of the project.

The air force, saying it found UFOs no threat to national security, closed its study last week.

Dr. Menzel, who believes that most if not all UFO reports have a natural explanation, said:

"I can't walk around the block without seeing at least one and sometimes several of the basic stimuli that people have reported from time to time as a bona fide UFO."

Snow, Tides Wreak Havoc

BOSTON (AP) — A storm that dumped nearly 50 inches of snow on parts of Vermont left the state an official disaster area today, while the rest of New England cleaned up after a weekend of heavy snow, rain, gale winds and high tides.

The fourth storm in two weeks hovered over New England for nearly four days after striking Thursday.

Twelve deaths in the six-state region were attributed to the storm.

Gov. Deane Davis declared Vermont a disaster area Sunday. National Guard troops were called out to help rescue stranded motorists and families isolated by the storm.

The weather bureau reported 48 inches of new snow fell in the small southern Vermont community of East Wallingford. Waitsefield had 44 inches and Marshfield 30.

Drifts mounded to 20 and 30 feet on the McCullough Turnpike, Vermont and the rest of New England had widespread power and telephone failures.

Heavy rainfall that followed the snow in most of New England brought minor flooding to parts of Massachusetts and New Hampshire. More severe flooding occurred in Maine.

The Kennebec and Lower Androscoggin rivers in Maine were expected to crest today, the Lower Kennebec near Augusta at 44 13 feet above flood stage.

Merchants at Augusta, Hallowell and Gardiner worked late Sunday night, moving base ments and first floors of merchandise.

"What did you get for Christmas?"

Libyans Acclaim Nasser

CAIRO (Reuters) — President Nasser is expected home today after an enthusiastic reception in Libya's second capital of Benghazi Sunday and successful talks with Libyan and Sudanese leaders.

So tumultuous was the welcome he received in Benghazi that Nasser had to put off until today a speech he was scheduled to deliver at a rally.

The Middle East news agency reported from Benghazi that the four hours it took for his motorcade to reach the city centre made it impossible to hold the rally.

He is expected to leave for home after his speech today.

Thirty Inches Of Snow Fall

By The Canadian Press

Quebecers returned to work today after a long holiday weekend marked by a howling blizzard which heaped up to 30 inches of snow on the province, caused three deaths and disrupted transportation.

The storm also resulted in several minor traffic accidents and injuries and thousands of dollars worth of damage.

Several persons suffered minor injuries in car collisions when drifting snow cut visibility on some roads to as little as 10 feet and made streets and roads slippery.

The fine snow, whipped by winds of up to 50 miles an hour, swirled across open spaces in clouds several feet high, frustrating attempts by road crews to keep the roads clear.

Winds toppled hydro and telephone poles, brought down the belfry of a church at St. David, near Quebec City, and blew in the plate-glass windows of the library of Quebec L'Acdion, causing an estimated $30,000 worth of damage to books and documents.

The storm blocked most Quebec roads, upset train and bus schedules and grounded air transportation.

But by Sunday, Quebecers had made considerable progress in digging themselves out, and the weatherman promised a break from more snow.

Road crews were busy clearing streets and roads. Most side streets in the cities were still blocked Sunday night and the routes that had been re-opened were slippery.

Motorists were asked to use the highways only if absolutely necessary and commuters were requested to leave their cars at home and take public transportation to work.

Buses were running, although many were still behind schedule and others had been cancelled because of blocked roads in the northeastern United States.

Trains were also returning to schedule after a weekend of plowing through snowbanks hours behind time.

Airports reported an increasing number of landings and takeoffs, although flights to and from the east were cancelled.

But for other Quebecers, the snow meant winter sports.

Skiers and snowmobile enthusiasts made good use of the new-fallen snow in the Laurentians and the Eastern Townships, and children were outdoors playing with new Christmas sleds and toboggans.

The Montreal weather office Sunday forecast clearing skies in western Quebec and "noticeable improvement" in the weather in the eastern part of the province for today or Tuesday.

Tomorrow's Star?

Today's faltering steps may lead to tomorrow's triumphs. The moppet trying his skates for the first time may be a future Olympic champ. However, such conjectures were not on Kevin Hyderman's mind as the three-year-old tackled the ice for the first time Sunday. Giving him an assist across Belleville harbor was Mrs. Betty Rushlow.

Five Gunboats Thought Sailing Toward Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The five mystery gunboats which slipped out of France Christmas morning were apparently moving through the eastern Mediterranean toward Israel today, almost within range of Egyptian planes.

Reports from Sicily said a flurry of Israeli radio messages indicated an Israeli flotilla had passed the island. Maritime sources said the intercepted messages gave no positive confirmation that the Israeli vessels were escorting the gunboats, but they indicated something unusual was going on.

Officials in the French port of Cherbourg, where the gunboats were built, estimated that with one refuelling at sea, the 40-foot boats could reach the Israeli port of Haifa sometime today. They weigh 270 tons and are 147 feet long.

British naval sources said three ships of the Soviet Mediterranean fleet were lying off Malta, close enough to sea lanes between Sicily and Israel to monitor any Israeli ship movements. Another 15 Russian warships were reported in Egyptian waters.

The Israeli government maintained silence on the gunboat incident, and a defence ministry spokesman said: "We never talk about this subject."

Spokesmen for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization refuse to answer any questions about the gunboats, but it was assumed that the U.S. 6th Fleet was tracking them.

Whale Is Being Flown From B. C. to England

MANCHESTER, England (CP) Preparations were being made at Manchester airport today for the arrival of a 14-foot whale being shipped aboard a freight-carrying jet from Canada.

The whale is three years old and one of 10 caught a week ago off Vancouver, officials here said.

It is en route to a zoo in the Yorkshire community of Malton where it will be kept until a pool is ready for it at its ultimate destination—a marine setting in resort city of Blackpool, France.

On the jet, a freighter version of the Boeing 707, the 4,000-pound whale was to be packed in a special container, with cool water kept circulating to maintain the creature's skin at a low temperature.

The jet was diverted for the job from Los Angeles to Montreal, point of origin for the transatlantic flight.

Officials in Britain say a value of £10,000 ($28,000) has been placed on the animal although in fact there is no real way of telling how much the whale is worth.

News Briefs

Some Jobs to Be Eliminated

Federal Employees Soon to Learn Fate

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government employees will probably know by early this week whether their jobs are being eliminated by the government's austerity program.

Public servants require three months notice if their jobs are being declared redundant and departments will have to complete any budget cutting measures by the start of the new fiscal year April 1.

It will be some time before a reasonable estimate of the numbers being let go will be available, a spokesman for the Public Service Commission said Saturday.

When a position is declared redundant the department management first tries to find the employee another job within the department.

If that fails—and the process usually takes two or three weeks—the commission then tries to place him somewhere else in the public service. If no job is available the employee will be given one month notice of his firing.

By mid-December more than 400 jobs had been listed as redundant, but the commission found jobs for more than 200 of them, the spokesman said.

Prime Minister Trudeau repeated Monday that 4,000 to 5,000 jobs had to be eliminated.

But a spokesman for the Public Service Alliance said Saturday the staff unions were optimistic that normal attrition would take care of a lot of them.

A Stricken Family

It was the second Christmas-week fire in Quinte district — and brought community response to appeal for help. (For details see Page 3.)

Fear of Breathalyzer Test Shows Up in Drinking Behavior

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A few more days may show whether safety - conscious Canadians can toast the success of the new breathalyzer laws.

But already in the Quinte area there are sound indications that legislation designed to drastically reduce the drinking-driving habit is at work.

By New Year's Day the Act making breathalyzer tests mandatory and conviction automatic will be a month old.

With the month's end city police will compile departmental statistics. Comparisons with similar periods previous to Dec. 1 are expected to reveal the success pattern of the new law.

But sources with vested interests in drinking habits already are taking stock of the situation.

Local hotelkeepers show a mixed reaction. Some says it's too early to be certain if people are drinking less — at least away from home.

But taxi companies already have noticed a difference and a change for the better in business.

Operators of the city's two taxi services agree there's been a "considerable increase" in business since Dec. 1.

The pattern is not confined to Belleville. In the Quinte rural region also there are indications drinkers are breathing less easy with the breathalyzer about.

One country innkeeper said he counted five cars parked outside his hotel yesterday morning — apparently left behind by Saturday night celebrants who figured they should not risk the road.

One source with regular business connections in many Quinte area hotels — in town and country — reports a definite reduction in drinking.

"In my moving around I find that business has slackened off considerably in the past two weeks or so," he says. "Many chaps who used to have maybe four drinks (of liquor) now are having two. Others are cutting down to two or three beers. It's certainly showing an effect."

Any hotel owners I've talked to — while they could not say for certain — did feel that it (the breathalyzer) was a main cause of the slackening off."

But Ben Vanover, owner of Belleville's Queen's Hotel, says it's difficult to assess the flow of business during the Christmas holidays.

"It'll take a while to tell," said Mr. Vanover.

Barney Parsons, operator of Dexter's Hotel believed customers were "moving out a little earlier."

At Shannonville, Milt Kearns, owner of the Village Pump on Highway 2 agreed business "was quiet" although this was a trade tradition at Christmas.

Just how much the new law might cut into business is "hard to say right now. We'll soon be drinking outside the year," he added.

One thing he has noticed — more people are going home by cab.

The taxi owners agree.

Arnold Duffy, owner of Chechor Taxi, says the breathalyzer has caused "a great difference."

The number of taxi calls "has picked up quite a bit," says Mr. Duffy.

Also in demand is a new service inaugurated since the breathalyzer law became mandatory, says Mr. Duffy.

His company will send two drivers on request — one for the taxi, the second to drive the customer's car home.

The breathalyzer has "put the fear of the Lord" in particular drinkers outside the home — although this is not the intention of police, believes Mr. Duffy.

Great Devolin, owner of Central Radio Taxi, confirms greater demands for service.

"Our night business has increased quite considerably" he says.

Passengers particularly are travelling in taxi convoys, he says.

People bound for the same party spot or club increasingly are meeting at one house, leaving their cars and travelling on by taxi, says Mr. Devolin.

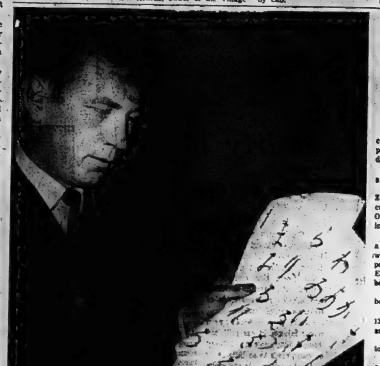
Sometimes, this will mean two or three cabs on one call.

Mr. Devolin believes people more and more are doing their drinking at home.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie seems to agree.

The chief says end-of-the-month statistics may show some pattern of change in local drinking habits.

People "are really aware" of the new law, he says.



"I don't particularly know if it has caused a slackening off in drinking," adds Chief Crosbie. "But it has caused a slackening off in drinking and driving."

PE Motorists Not Taking Breather

PICTON (Staff) — No one is taking a breather this holiday season — at least no motorists in Prince Edward County.

The Picton Detachment of the OPP this morning reported that they have administered no breathalyzer tests to drivers during the Christmas holidays.

Mandatory taking of the test at the command of police came into effect on Dec. 1.

Trip to Japan Takes Plenty Of Preparation

A 22-year-old Bellevillian early next year will don his police officer's uniform to direct crowds — in Japan.

It may not be that startling a sight.

For OPP Constable Gerald Zwart will be controlling crowds in Japan — at the Ontario pavilion now being installed for Expo 70 at Osaka.

The young officer is among a 16-man OPP detachment who will spend eight months policing the pavilion until Expo 70 closes in mid September.

Not that getting there has been all that easy.

For one thing it's taken a 13-week crash course in Japanese.

Linguistics are nothing new to the officer.

He was born in Friesland — a province in Holland — and is fluent in Fries, a language he estimates only about a million people in the world speak.

He also speaks Dutch and French.

But Japanese was something else again.

In structure and organization it's a new experience for a Westerner and "very difficult" to learn, says Const. Zwart.

Now, however, he believes he is fairly fluent in conversational Japanese — and can even read common Japanese language symbols.

It took a daily grind from Sept. 22 to Dec. 19 to attain a proficient level. The OPP contingent went to school in provincial government offices in Toronto along with other personnel staffing the Expo pavilion.

Teachers compiled lengthy lists of common polite phrases the officers might find useful.

Besides language proficiency, the 14 constables in the squad also had to be single, and over six feet tall.

Const. Zwart joins the group Feb. 18 when it departs for Osaka. From then to the Expo opening March 15 they will spend time getting duties organized and acclimatized to the Expo environment.

In Osaka they will live in Senri — a community being built within the Japanese metropolis to house Expo 70 visitors.

Expo 70 officially closes Sept. 15 but the OPP officers will remain on duty until the end of the month as the Ontario exhibit is wound up.

After that they may take a vacation.

Judge Picks Best Houses

TWEED — Each year the Tweed Hydro-Electric System awards prizes for the best Christmas decorative lighting in the Village of Tweed.

The Christmas theme invited Mr. Doug Code from the Ontario Hydro regional office in Belleville to act as an impartial judge in this year's contest which was held prior to Christmas.

Although there didn't appear to be as much activity with decorative lighting this year, those who help had done a very commendable job and Mr. Code found the final selection most difficult. He did, however, recommend the following: $50.00 - 1st prize - Harry (Lordie) Thompson; $20.00 - 2nd prize - Terrance Kennedy; $15.00 - 3rd prize - Ossie Woodcock; $10.00 - 4th prize - Donald Hodgins; $10.00 5th prize - Doug Spencer; $10.00 - 6th prize - Milton McTaggart; $10.00 - 7th prize - Gordon Collins.

Mr. Code also felt that the following were deserving of honorable mention: Norman Garden, Robert Armstrong, Mrs. Ralph Hubbard, Donald Livesay and Ralph Smith.

The prize money cheques were presented to the winners prior to Christmas.

His Beat: Japan

OPP Const. Gerald Zwart soon trades in his Belleville-area beat for more exotic assignments. He's among provincial squad being sent to Ontario's pavilion at Osaka for Expo 70 — a task which also demands much study of Japanese language symbols.

Breath Test Cuts Down Partying

PICTON — Prince Edward County residents can answer the popular question, "what are you doing New Year's Eve?" with a lengthy list of party invitations.

In Picton, celebrants can ring in the New Year at Prince Edward Yacht Club, the Royal Hotel, Kay Hall, the Legion Hall, and Rickarton Castle.

Tickets for some of these New Year's Eve dance parties are still available, according to their sponsors.

One sponsor attributed the surplus of tickets this year to apprehension concerning the breathalyzer test, mandatory in Ontario since Dec. 1.

Garbage... It's Piled High

After Christmas comes the cleanup!

That is the sad story of life as far as city garbage collectors are concerned.

And the voluminous piles of garbage bags, cartons and conventional garbage pails being Belleville streets this morning bears out the story.

"This will be the worst day of the year for us," commented the operator of the Quinte Sanitation Service which has the city garbage collection contract.

But despite the big volume after-Christmas garbage, collectors hoped to finish their routes within two to three hours of their usual seven hours working time.

On "heavy" days two additional men and one extra truck are pressed into service to get the job done.

"We've got it pretty well organized now and of course the men work harder," was the comment.

But despite the heavy post-Christmas volume of garbage, Belleville sanitation workers feel they are lucky.

Here they will be aided in their task by relatively clean streets, but in many other centres in the New England States and in Quebec province garbage men will be hampered by up to 30 inches of new fallen snow.

A moderate snowfall here can extend the garbage collection time to as much as 14 hours.

Hastings County board of education officials got a Christmas present last week — two new portable classrooms.

The portables will be moved to relieve overcrowding at the Bridge St. East and College St. board offices.

Each portable will increase the office space by 720 square feet, and cost between $8,000 and $9,000.

The steel portables arrived by road from their Ottawa supplier, and came in two parts, to be joined together when installed on the site. The portable now parked in the East Hill playground will be installed behind the existing portable facing Bridge St. East.

"The portable will be installed this week," said the board's business manager, Kenneth Wormald. "The College St. portable will be installed after the second half arrives at the site."

The two portables are the board's answer to overcrowding at its various offices. With construction of an adequate administration building out of the question at the moment, the board hopes the portables will relieve the situation.

"The portables seemed a practical solution, because eventually they can be used for their original purpose — classrooms," said Mr. Wormald.

Meanwhile, residents in the Bridge and Chatham Streets area are angered "those metal boxcars" will soon be tucked away behind the fence around the board office.

Communities Respond

End of Year Traumatic for Two Families

Two Quinte households are being painstakingly repieced today — just in time for the 1970s which open everywhere this week after dramatic advance publicity.

And the community sequel to the misfortune of both families is a reminder that common feeling among common people knows no decades. Fortunately for John Helm and Robert Bartley.

The 1950s saw much streamlining of social aid. But there still is no immediate official agency around to alleviate their brand of bad luck.

Apparently, theirs is still a grassroots problem.

John Helm lived at Millbridge with his wife and four children until Boxing Day when their home burned down.

Just 24 hours later at Shannonville Robert Bartley, his wife and four children had to flee in their nightclothes at their home burned down.

Today, their neighbors may find some consolation in the fact both men have more in common than the size of their families and the absence of insurance on household possessions.

In both cases, each man's community instantly rallied around as did people out and beyond township and county lines.

Boxing Day Rev. J. H. Thompson, Madoc Anglican pastor, launched an appeal for the Helms.

At Shannonville, even though she said the Bartleys were strangers to her personally, Shannonville resident Mrs. Leslie Reid took the same tack — assisted by friend Mrs. Edward Robichaud.

By Sunday, these were the results: Mr. Thompson reported the Helms had cooking utensils, crockery and clothing. Friends and neighbors of the Millbridge family were helping them refurbish the second floor of an old hotel in the hamlet, north of Madoc on Highway 62. Belleville firemen had offered to replace Christmas toys lost in the blaze.

Mrs. Reid confirmed the Bartleys had got "quite a bit of furniture and clothing".

Mr. Bartley's construction - contractor employer provided a truck to pick up the donations.

Not that the willing strangers met every need.

For instance, Mr. Thompson figured the Helms still needed furniture and beds. Mr. Bartley said he needed, among other things, means to heat the house he and his brother had found at south Pinnacle Street to house his family.

But the community appeal wasn't bereft of response, all agreed.

People, believes Mrs. Leslie, still are willing to help—"especially at this time of year."

But, at any time, she adds, "you can't see anyone do without. That's for certain."

Mr. Thompson last night described the responses to his appeal as "being wonderful."

He'd been called from across the Quinte district—including Brighton, Trenton, Marmora, Stirling. Saturday alone he received at least 20 telephone offers of help, he said.

"Society in general isn't all doom and," he concluded. "There's still a spirit there you know."

Prince Edward Doctor Practised 49 Years

PICTON — If Dr. J. Howard Walmsley had lived he would have celebrated 50 years of medical practice in Canada in October, 1970. One of Prince Edward County's best loved physicians, Dr. Walmsley died suddenly in Picton last Saturday without reaching this golden anniversary. Since more today hundreds of persons, most of them former patients, paid their respect at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, where his body rested until funeral services Tuesday morning.

Born in Athol township, Dr. Walmsley was a graduate of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. In 1914 he graduated from Queen's University as a student of arts and medicine. He followed up his internship at Montreal General Hospital with three years of military service in France, England and Belgium.

Returning to Canada after the war, Dr. Walmsley opened an office in Picton in October, 1920. One of the few remaining horse and buggy physicians in the county, he retained vivid recollections of house calls made in the country by 'rig'.

Active in community life, Dr. Walmsley was the oldest living past master of Prince Edward Masonic lodge. He was also a member of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton. In 1967 Dr. Walmsley was the recipient of a centennial medal presented upon the recommendation of Athol township council. This award indicated he was one of Athol's most distinguished sons. Dr. Walmsley grew up on the Athol century farm of his great grandfather and for many years vacationed from his medical practice there in the summer months.

Surviving Dr. Walmsley are his wife, the former Marian Sweezey; two sons, James, Kingston and Thomas, RR 2, Milford, and two daughters, Mrs. Peter (Kathleen) Gérard, Kingston and Mrs. Peter (Elizabeth) Nicoll, Toronto.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow from the Church of St. Mary Magdalene by Rev. R. H. Stewart. Entombment will be in Glenwood Cemetery vault, Picton. Active pall bearers will be Dr. John Pearce, Frank Creasy, Gordon DeMore, Jack Grayson, Douglas Walmsley and Robert Walmsley. Honorary bearers will be Lindley Calnan, Harry Clark, Alva Collier, Dr. Charles Goodwin, M. Hicks, Dr. C. L. Fulton, Dr. C. R. Richmond, Dr. S. Slack, Colin Carter and Alex Lipson.

Woman's Identity Still Not Assured

Police today are still attempting to verify the identity of a woman found freshbitten in a field near Madoc Christmas Eve.

The woman, now recovering in Belleville General Hospital, has been tentatively identified as Josie Smith, of Listowel, Ont.

But police have been baffled in attempts to document her background and satisfactorily prove her identity.

The woman, says a provincial police officer, becomes vague when questioned on her identity.

He said she agrees she is Josie Smith, of Listowel, near Stratford — the identity found on hotel and shopping receipts in her purse.

But other papers found in her possession indicate she could be from New York, Toronto, or Galt.

So far, her description does not fit any listed missing person in the province, say police.

Other names on documents found in her possession include Mrs. Joe Consenio and Esther Saunders. Police say letters were found in her possession, but the fronts of the envelopes had been removed.

Today, police in Toronto were to check details on a Bank of Commerce pass book found on the woman. The book contained an account number but no name.

The woman was found lying in a field near Highway 7 by youngsters snowmobiling in the area.

She had stayed the night at Madoc Hotel, apparently striking off across fields east of the village on Christmas Eve morning, say police.

Temperatures were down to sub-zero in the area at the time and the woman may have lain several hours before she was discovered about 11 a.m., police said.

P.M. on Inflation

It must be nearly a decade ago that the then governor of the Bank of Canada, James Coyne, noted that Canadians "are living grandly beyond their means."

The inflation problem has never been summed up more accurately or succinctly than that. The problem is still with us today and while it has not yet reached the stage of an economic bust, that prospect must always be faced.

The point is, Canada's consumer credit today stands at more than $8 billion — $8,324,-000,000 to be exact, and one who has been particularly assiduous in warning the government of the trend is Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees.

In a recent Belleville address, Mr. Hees noted that the cost of living is rising four to five per cent annually. Subsequently, in a question-to Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons he noted the ineffectiveness of voluntary restraints on spending and asked if the government intended to introduce other methods.

Prime Minister Trudeau's reply was that the government was as distressed as anyone at the continuing rise and he added, "We shall take whatever other steps are required when we decide it is time to do so."

Shortly afterwards, in a pre-Christmas statement, Mr. Trudeau announced that tough anti-inflation measures may be introduced in the new year, even at the price of further unemployment. He described Ontario as "the most important centre of inflation" in the country.

Provincial officials refute this charge; nevertheless this is where much of the wealth lies, and no one can deny, much of the inflation too. As in the case of poverty, must share the blame — and the responsibility for the cure.

We could expect such anti-inflation measures as early as March, for the provinces are meeting in Ottawa in February to discuss the problem. This is not the first time such warnings have been sounded, but at the present rate of spending the coming months could be the crucial period when Canadians will finally come to realize that big wage demands, consequent price increases and free-spending can not be tolerated.

As the prime minister has noted, such a cycle would destroy the Canadian dollar, destroy our export markets, destroy the Canadian middle class."

Resolutions

Two areas of conduct impress us as suitable for new year resolutions. One is, don't be a litterbug — like the young lady of 12 or so — whom we observed dropping a candy wrapper on Front Street recently, just a short distance from a sidewalk trash can; and another is, people can afford to be more polite toward one another.

Here is what an Oakville citizen, Jane McKnight, said on the latter theme in a letter to a Toronto newspaper columnist recently: "The deadliest sin in Canada (and the United States) is lack of courtesy and just plain rudeness between husband and wife, between parent and child and between people at every level.

"I was born and educated in Mexico and can't help but deplore the attitudes of the different people. Mexicans, even the most illiterate peons, have the most exquisite, inborn sense of courtesy — and the quickest way to offend one is to insult his pride or respect."

It is worth remembering, the next time you have occasion to speak to your husband/wife or to your children or to friends or strangers. And what about presenting a more cheerful face to the world generally. As Carlyle put it, we should live each day as if it were our last.

Take Care

It is sad to note those accidents involving snowmobiles. It is still early in the winter season, yet already there have been fatalities and injuries.

Near Minden recently a 16-year-old Haliburton girl died and three companions were injured when a car and their three parked snowmobiles were in collision. Near Stirling, meanwhile, a Frankford-area couple and their teenage son were injured when the family's two snowmobiles were in collision with a car near the brow of a hill.

There are a lot of snowmobiles around and the need for care in their operation is obvious. As with car drivers it is no use adopting the attitude, "It can't happen to us."

Common Market May Get Semi-autonomous Ruling Body

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The concept of a decision-making European parliament which one day might overrule the narrower ambitions and obstructions of national governments comes a step closer to reality with the latest agreement of the six-country European Common Market.

While impressive, the decisions to give the parliament some authority over the Common Market budget do not mean that the partners can start thinking in terms of a fully autonomous supranational government and a prime minister of Europe—though that kind of move may well come in the next decade or two.

But what has taken place—and something that probably could not take place while Gen. Charles de Gaulle ruled France —is that some authority previously exercised solely in national capitals has been turned over to an international forum whose decisions the governments have agreed to respect.

In giving the European parliament the right to modify or change financial programs approved by the six-country Council of Ministers, the partners also strengthened the position of the Common Market's central commission.

This commission, which is the administrative body of the Common Market, will have assured annual income through revenue from food import levies as well as customs duties and other taxes. De Gaulle strongly opposed giving these permanent civil servants any substantive power, fearing that this could lead to supranational government.

The assurance of permanent annual revenues may give the commission greater self-confidence in putting up proposals to restrain the growth of uneconomic farm surpluses which had been encouraged by fat subsidies based more on national political considerations than the efficiency of farm production.

The next big decision—and one which will be a major factor in Britain's negotiations to join the Market—is the extent the council ministers will go to reduce butter, soft wheat and sugar surpluses by slashing price supports.

The ministers have agreed to reach a decision on new price support policy by the end of January. Farmers in several member countries have shown they have a great deal of political power augmented by the ability to stage effective demonstrations and road clashes. New supports may not show as much dramatic change as those affecting the European parliament and the Common Market commission.

In other words, when Britain gets down to hard bargaining, she still can use the threat of joining the Market will be heavy in terms of supporting high food prices and the inefficiency of some European farm production.

"I was stopped by the police and given a breathalyzer test. They didn't give me a summons — just a bottle of mouth-wash!"

Militia's Numbers Down But Not Their Quality

Ottawa Journal

Militiamen in Canada whose numbers are being reduced by 4,000 to 13,000 know the familiar cracks about "weekend soldiers."

Their fathers heard the same slurring comments between the First and Second World Wars when pacifism flourished while Hitler and Mussolini sharpened the swords of aggression.

But even soldier veterans of the Second World War knows that the Non-Permanent Active Militia of 1939 was the foundation on which the Army was swiftly built. Col C. P. Stacey says in his official history that the wartime Army's debt to the NPAM could not be over-estimated — "It made a contribution remarkable for quality even more than quantity."

The NPAM preserved military skills and pride in being ready to fight for one's country.

Defence Minister Cadieux and his advisers evidently feel 18,500 will suffice now. If they are wrong it may be an economy dearly bought..

Fitness Declines With Affluence

Kingston Whig-Standard

The views of a Halifax professor seem particularly applicable to this season of turkey and mincemeat pie. Dr. J. F. L. Woodhury, associate professor of medicine at Dalhousie University, contends that the affluent society is eating itself into gout, obesity and, perhaps, artery disease.

It seems that gout, which threatens life by damaging the kidneys, is becoming more common today than during the Depression and Second World War periods. It tends to occur in people with high uric acid content in their blood and may be aggravated by a diet heavy with red meat, some fish, certain vegetables and red wines. Symptoms may include kidney stones, severe pain, swelling and redness of joints.

In short, society in general is suffering from too much rich living — a fact even the poverty statistics can't conceal. While Dr. Woodbury warns against strenuous bouts of exercise by "certain middle-aged, pot-bellied men", he emphasizes that regular exercise may help burn up some of the food we eat and thus help avoid obesity. Unfortunately, too many Canadians fail to take the matter of physical fitness seriously — at least until their family doctor puts his foot down. Walking is one exercise available to everyone, but in this day of cars most of us avoid walking like the plague.

It is sad that in a country where we can find plenty of time to eat large meals and sufficient food to eat, we can't seem to find the few minutes a day in which to do some sort of exercise. Is flab the price we must pay for being members of the "affluent society"?

Just Society?

Austerity Catches Up with Veterans

Kingston Whig Standard

Our Prime Minister is responsible for a phrase which has become part of modern Canadian folklore: The Just Society. He meant many things by it; but presumably above all he referred to the conscience of government and its responsibility to try to redress social imbalances which are unjust to individuals or groups.

On this basis the Federal Government was recently guilty of an injustice small in cost but blitter and inexcusable in essence. In Calgary two men were recently fired from the Department of Veterans' Affairs after 25 years of service. There was no question of any criticism of either man, one of them 47, and other 55. It was simply a part of the "austerity drive" which Ottawa is supposed to be pursuing at the moment.

The facts as stated would in themselves have represented a reprehensible act. The added fact that the dismissals came just before Christmas adds to their inhiltman quality. It happens, however, that both men are disabled veterans of the last war. One of them lost both legs, and the other his left leg below the knee.

Employees against whom there is no complaint and who have worked for that long should not be suddenly turned out to shift for themselves no matter who the employer. Least of all is such an act excusable in the federal civil service where there are always possibilities of shifting such cases from one job to another. It is important that in the civil service there be a strong element of continuity and experience in jobs because of such factors as lack of the possibility of promotion, generally low salaries, and the value of security in government business.

The question of how a country treats the men who fight its wars and are physically damaged in the process also cannot be ignored. Is it really being unrealistic to suggest that, everything else being equal, men in this position deserve the protection of society in their courageous attempts to overcome their disabilities?

The Individual and Society

Peterborough Examiner

The most dangerous enemy to truth and freedom among us, said Henrik Ibsen, is the compact majority.

It is under the weight of this compact majority that youth today feels itself being stifled. Morality for example, one of the buttresses of social compactness, implies a responsibility on the part of the individual to something else. Laws, which are essentially intended as guidelines for social behaviour.

The question that frequently arises among youth therefore is: to whom or to what does one owe allegiance? If one is prepared to accommodate the values dictated by society is it not reasonable to expect society to respect the sovereignty of the individual?

Three views on freedom, written by persons in remarkable disparate situations have been presented recently.

Brian Flood is a student at Sir Sandford Fleming College. The burden of his essay is the prohibitive attitude toward drugs. In a practise which he sees as being of no concern to anyone else but the individual, he resents society's interference. He does not however deal with the possibility that the individual can interfere with society.

Nevertheless when he says "Look to yourself for what's best for you, forget society's do's and don'ts and you probably won't need any drug to stimulate your freedom,' he reflects opinions being considered at a federal inquiry into the illicit use of drugs. These opinions suggest that drug abuse is related to a profound change in attitude to established institutions and values and that drug-taking may be a symptom of this change.

In a letter provoked by Mr. Flood's views, that were published in the Sir Sandford Fleming College paper, 'Chance' Wayne warns of the dangers of freedom and those who ignore the preachings of society. He apparently speaks from experience—both a a drug-taker and a dirtier — and he is anxious about the selfishness that develops when a person does not care about what is happening around him. He suggests that this form of freedom leads to violence.

A mixture of disillusionment and hope is expressed by Stephen R. Lloyd, a deserter from the United States Marine Corps, who is now living in Toronto. He has found peace of mind in Canada where, he says, a man can sit and thank God for what he is. He is grateful. He has a new freedom in a new society and they are to him compatible. Of course he may be open to argument from Mr. Flood and Mr. Wayne.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

William Lyon Mackenzie King took over from Arthur Meighen as prime minister of Canada 48 years ago today—in 1921. As leader of the Liberal party for a quarter-century and prime minister for 21 years, five months and five days—longer than any other Commonwealth prime minister —Mackenzie King gained world stature. An ailing man of 74, he tendered his resignation in 1948 and died July 22, 1950.

1772—British troops captured Savannah, Ga.

1869—British statesman William Gladstone was born.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—it was announced that Canadian forces in Italy had knocked out at least 4,800 enemy troops in drive on Po Valley, cleared the enemy from more than 16 square miles of territory since Dec. 1, and taken more than 1,600 Germans prisoner; Germans announced the Russians were fighting in the heart of Budapest.

Dollar Bills and the Monarchy

Windsor Star

Plans to remove the picture of Queen Elizabeth from some Canadian paper money will probably cause a loud but short-lived furore.

There are some Canadians to whom any change, even the smallest picture from the way things used to be, is automatic grounds for worry and complaint. Add to this the considerable number of Canadians who revere the monarchy and country's British traditions and there is a ready-made opposition to any proposal to change the currency.

It is probably no coincidence that of the four prime ministers who have served as heads of new currency, two were Liberals and two Conservatives. If nothing else, if is a reminder that there are other touchy points in history beyond bilingualism and biculturalism.

The four prime ministers — Macdonald, Laurier, Borden and King — are now so far in history that any partisan controversy surrounding them is virtually forgotten. Their human frailties and their political misjudgments are far behind, and what is remembered as statesmen remain their glories.

In the choice of pictures for use on currency, indeed, can be found an argument for those who favor the monarchy. It would be unthinkable, for partisan political reasons, to use the picture of a current politician on a stamp or bill.

But the picture of the monarch, above politics and yet representing the country, is unquestioned.

Protests about the change will be weakened by the fact that the bills in most common use, the ones and twos, as well as the twenties, will continue to carry a picture of the Queen.

Cable TV Films Council Meetings

TORONTO (CP) — Last year Ted Rogers, president of Rogers Cable Filmed Television several municipal councils just outside Toronto for permission to cross streets with his cable lines.

"Sometimes we would have to wait three and four hours at these council meetings before our request was dealt with. Some of my people would get irritated at this, but not me. I became fascinated with the work these councils were doing—most of which was going unnoticed by the public."

Now his company is filming those council meetings so local residents can see town hall in action. Reactions from town halls are in many ways of more immediate concern to residents than the war in Vietnam, he says.

The night the camera crew moved to Scarborough, north of Brampton, to film Chinguacousy council, a garageman down the street said with a wheezy laugh:

"Just wait until those guys start their carnin' and swearin'. That'll shake up those TV boys."

But the councillors did not drop a single cuss word in their four-hour meeting, which to the TV men was a study in democratic decorum and, inevitably, in administrative boredom.

Among the many issues raised was whether the council should place an ad in the local newspaper on behalf of National Bowling Week.

Three councillors supported the idea on the grounds that bowling is a healthy sport, but three other councillors and Reeve Ed Blair opposed it because bowling is a commercialized sport and Brampton has only one bowling alley.

Within two hours after the meeting, subscribers to Bramalea Cable TV in the Bramalea and Brampton area were able to see local democracy in action.

Barry Ross, vice-president of Rogers Cable, estimates that about 20 per cent of their subscribers or 3,000 people watched the council in action on each of the two nights when the meeting was broadcast. There are 6,000 subscriber homes in Chinguacousy Township, which has 30,000 people in 144 square miles north from Toronto to Caledon, west to the outskirts of Georgetown and encompassing Bramalea, Brampton and dozens of hamlets.

Mr. Rogers called the production "the original Henry Ford."

"Wait until we can compare it with what we'll be doing a year from now."

He hopes to have Brampton council meetings, adult education courses from Sheridan College of Applied Arts and Technology, Toronto city council and any suitable programs produced from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

He also plans to form a cable TV news service from Ottawa and Queens Park, home of the Ontario legislature. Video-taped interviews with members of the legislature and of Parliament Hill will be distributed to cable systems in the various ridings.

There are eight licensed cable systems in Toronto. Maclean-Hunter has also plunged into programming. It has a mobile TV van roaming southern Ontario taping pictures, picnics, parades and festivals. A spokesman said the mobile unit is working every day and booked solidly for two months.

Wooden Boats 'Thing of Past'

VICTORIA (CP) — If Noah had built his ark out of glass fibre it would have had a greater resale value and might have survived to the present, says Tom Fee, Canada's largest manufacturer of glass-fibre cruisers.

The substance "also has obvious qualities that reduce annual maintenance costs and lower the initial cost of a boat," the former heavy-construction engineer said in an interview.

Mr. Fee, who employs 75 people at his Canoe Cove factory 20 miles north of here, thinks the craft of building boats of wood is a dying art.

"Using glass fibre is still a new art," he said. "But the product is technically advanced because you can produce a uniformly high-quality product, while with other materials such as wood, the product can vary.

"There is nothing new in the boat-design field, really—this is just a successful compromise with a new material."

His main problem is how to manufacture enough boats to meet an increasing demand. Three years after being faced with the problem of trying to create a market, he now has a difficult time filling orders.

Canoe Cove pleasure craft are sold now throughout Canada and Alaska and along the United States west coast as well as in Hawaii and Tahiti.

"We hadn't anticipated building for more than the local market, but we discovered a much larger market than expected. Now we are going after the 'hole in the market'—the man who wants something with a slightly different look."

Although Canoe Cove Boats Ltd. also manufactures 20-to-25-foot boats, the major part of its $2,000,000 annual gross comes from the making of cruisers more than 37 feet long. These cost between $1,000 and $1,500 a foot, have a cruising range of about 1,500 miles and have a normal speed of between 20 and 30 knots.

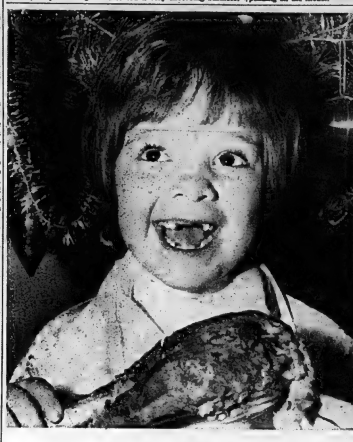
More than half of the Canoe Cove cruisers are sold to B.C. residents. The rest of Canada provides about 20 per cent of the market and the U.S. the remaining 30 per cent.

Most of the large boats are bought by retired or semi-retired business people.

"More and more people in Calgary and places like that think nothing of keeping a boat here and flying out to use it," said Mr. Fee. "The interest in boats is just beginning and its rate of growth is accelerating. There are 18,000 square miles of sheltered water here and the density of boats is almost nil."

He says there is no large problem in persuading people to buy expensive cruisers.

"People by and large tend to look at boating as a way of life, —not just as a social thing—and are willing to invest in boats.



"They realize that making an investment in a boat is just like making one in a house—it is mortgagable and salable, so it's not throwing money away."

Tom Fee first entered the boating business 12 years ago as the operator of a small marina.

"With a marina, you automatically get involved with boats—it's a very absorbing business."

Three years later he first began to manufacture small glass-fibre boats, to balance the seasonal aspect of marina operation. When the market for larger boats grew, he jumped in and hasn't looked back since.

The factory now produces about three large boats each month. Mr. Fee expects this will rise to four by next spring, but the backlog of orders runs from three to six months, depending on the model.

She Didn't Get Her Teeth

Obviously seven-year-old Lynne Thomas didn't get her front teeth for Christmas. Her four front teeth fell out just after last Christmas and Lynne's been having trouble putting the bite on food ever since — until Thursday, that is. Lynne decided to make an extra effort this Christmas and ended up munching on a big turkey leg at her Toronto home. (CP Photo)

Fifty Traffic Victims

Christmas Weekend Toll 73

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 73 Canadians died in accidents during the Christmas weekend, 39 of them in traffic, a Canadian Press survey shows.

The traffic toll for the 102-hour period from 6 p.m. Wednesday local times to midnight Sunday exceeded the estimate of the Canada Safety Council that between 35 and 45 would die on the road during the long holiday weekend.

The council had expected that "the continuing downward trend in traffic statistics over the last year and a half" plus the adoption of breath-analysis devices by police to detect drinking drivers could result in a lower toll this year.

The highest Christmas traffic toll ever recorded was 86 deaths in 1968 during a 78-hour holiday. Last year there were 25 highway fatalities in an 84-hour period. In 1967, 63 people died in traffic over a four-day weekend.

A development this year was the number killed in accidents involving snowmobiles—eight across Canada. Four of these were in Quebec, two in Ontario and one each in Manitoba and British Columbia.

Quebec had the highest toll, with 28 deaths. Thirteen died in traffic, six in fires, two of exposure during an ice-fishing trip, one was crushed by a snowplow, one crushed by a car while making repairs and one in a fall.

Ontario's 25 fatalities included 21 in traffic, one in a fire, one accidentally shot, one in a fall and another in an aircraft crash.

In British Columbia and Manitoba four died in traffic and one in a fire in each province.

Nova Scotia had three accidental deaths, two in traffic. Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick each had two deaths on the highway.

In Alberta one person died in traffic and a child was killed while handling a horse. Saskatchewan reported one traffic death.

Only Newfoundland was fatality-free.

The survey does not include industrial accidents, known suicides or slayings.

Eight Snowmobile Fatalities

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least eight persons died in accidents involving snowmobiles between Wednesday to Sunday evening, showed four persons died in snowmobile accidents in Quebec, two in Ontario and one each in British Columbia and Manitoba.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Wednesday to Sunday evening showed four persons died in snowmobile accidents in Quebec, two in Ontario and one each in British Columbia and Manitoba.

The Ontario deaths came in a single accident. Two 63-year-old Sault Ste. Marie women, Suoma Kauppinen and Viena Nenone, were killed when their snowmobile collided with a car Friday on the outskirts of Sault Ste. Marie.

Plane Reaches Australia

Canadian Jet Takes 30 Hours for Trip

ADELAIDE (AP) — A Canadian air transport command Falcon twin jet with a five-man crew landed at this Australian city Sunday night after a 30-hour flight from London.

The crew, headed by Capt. D. B. (Doc) O'Connor, 36, of Capreol, Ont., was competing in a special jet section of the England-to-Australia air race.

Its only opponent, a twin-jet Hawker Siddeley 125 owned by Quantas Airline, is to leave Gatwick Airport, near London, at 8:30 a.m. New Year's Day. Its crew of Australians is hoping to make the flight in 28 hours by using its intimate knowledge of the route.

The Dassault Falcon fanjet, larger and more powerful than the Australian entry, cruises at 510 miles an hour and normally is used for fast light transport. It is attached to 413 Squadron at Ottawa.

With O'Connor, the flight commander, were three pilots, Maj. Roger O. Landry, 36, Smooth Rock Falls, Ont., Capt. C. (Midge) Pennington, 41, Winnipeg, and Capt. R. T. (Bob) Brinkhurst, 40, Cut Knife, Sask., and crew member Cpl. K. J. MacDougall, 32, Glace Bay, N.S.

The two jets are competing for a trophy only. They will not share in the cash prizes that go to winners of other categories in the long-distance competition.

Lone Woman Reaches Darwin

DARWIN, Australia (AP) — British pilot Sheila Scott, the only woman flying solo in the London-to-Sydney air race, reached Darwin Sunday after a long and perilous flight. She demanded a sabotage check of her aircraft.

Miss Scott, 42, who holds 89 world solo flying records, flew in from Bali, Indonesia, after a flight from Europe during which the long-range flying aids on her, Piper Comanche broke down.

She was exhausted and appeared ill.

"I am not making a direct accusation that somebody sabotaged the plane before the race until officials have checked the mystery of why my vital long-distance flying aids all went out of action shortly after I took off from London," she said.

"I am asking for a complete investigation."

She told reporters lying conditions over Europe were "quite the most dangerous thing I would expect any pilot to cope with." Engine trouble forced her to land at Makassar in the Celebes and bad weather delayed her further before she could leave Indonesia.

During part of the time she was in Indonesia she had dysentary and drank boiled water and ate only dry bread, she said.

The air race began Dec. 18 with 65 light planes entered for the 12,000-mile flight and $120,000 in prizes. The race is sponsored by British Petroleum and organized by flying clubs in England and Australia.

Leger Returns To Cameroons

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger bid a quiet farewell to Montreal Sunday night and started back to his work among African lepers in The Cameroons.

"Love one another—can I say more?" said the cardinal before boarding a plane at Montreal International Airport.

His departure contrasted sharply with his arrival in October when he was nearly mobbed. Sunday night, with no advance publicity, he walked to his flight gate in the company of Montreal Archbishop Paul Gregoire, his brother Jules Leger, and a few friends.

"You have opened your hearts to misery," said Archbishop Gregoire. "When you first left we said farewell, but now we know it is only au revoir".

Cardinal Leger returned to Montreal Oct. 1, two years after leaving to work in a leper colony.

During his stay, he held talks with officials of various foundations and made many public appearances.

He also received a $50,000 humanitarianism award from the Royal Bank of Canada. The Quebec College of Pharmacists has collected $50,000 worth of drugs for his mission.

Trudeau Holidays On Gulf of Mexico

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau arrived at his place in the sun on the Gulf of Mexico Sunday after bad flying weather delayed his winter holidays for a day.

The prime minister was to fly to an unidentified spot in the gulf area Saturday for a swimming and skin-diving vacation, but wasn't able to leave snow-laden Montreal until Sunday morning.

An assistant said his plane arrived "wherever he was going" at 12:30 p.m. EST. He said Mr. Trudeau is accompanied by another assistant and a security officer.

The prime minister announced earlier he planned to mix swimming and skiing on his winter holiday of approximately 10 days.

The assistant said the greater part of the holiday will probably be spent in the sun and the skiing might involve "only a few days at Camp Fortune for all I know."

Camp Fortune is a Quebec ski resort about 25 miles north of Ottawa.

Mr. Trudeau spent Christmas with his mother in Montreal. He is expected back in Ottawa in time to meet his cabinet before the Commons session resumes Jan. 12.

Russia to Join Canada In Honoring Leacock

TORONTO (CP) — Russia will join Canada this week in marking the 100th anniversary of the birth of humorist Stephen Leacock.

Leslie Hunt, executive director of the Canada-USSR Friendship Committee, said Sunday a meeting honoring Leacock will be held Tuesday in Moscow by committee members there.

The meeting will hear readings of leading works by the Canadian humorist, many of whose essays were translated into Russian for a book published in Moscow in 1962 which sold 100,000 copies.

Greetings will be exchanged between the Moscow meeting and a gathering being held the same night in Orillia, Ont., where Leacock had a summer cottage. Orillia was the model for the mythical town of Mariposa made famous in the humorist's Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town.

Mr. Hunt will present a copy of the Russian-language book to Stephen Leacock Associates, a group dedicated to sustaining Leacock's memory, at the Orillia party. The book contains an inscription by M. Tsarov, president of the Canada-USSR committee, praising Leacock as a "prominent, big-hearted, very humane Canadian humorist."

Leacock was born Dec. 30, 1869, in Swanmore, Hampshire, England, and died in 1944. Several activities have been scheduled in Canada during the coming year to mark the centenary of his birth.

Home-built Gyrocopter Crashes

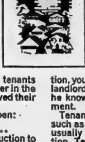
ROCKLAND, Ont. (CP) — Aime Robert Charbonneau, 36, of Ottawa was killed Sunday when his home-built gyrocopter crashed while he was practising takeoff and landing procedures on the ice-covered Ottawa River.

Mr. Charbonneau died when the small single-seat craft spun out of control, flipped over two or three times and crashed into the ice.



The aircraft, designed by Mr. Charbonneau and a friend, combines the lift principle of a helicopter rotor with the drag principle of lift-wing planes. It is powered by gasoline.

The plane was about 25 feet above ground when it went out of control.

Rockland is 23 miles west of Ottawa.

RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY TAX REDUCTIONS FOR 1969

A Special Notice to Tenants and Landlords

Tenants in apartment buildings should receive a little extra money this month under the Ontario Government's property tax reduction system. The system eases the burden of municipal and school taxes on homeowners and tenants. In effect, the Province is paying part of the property taxes for each eligible house and apartment.

Tenants should receive their reductions on or before December 31. Many tenants who vacated premises earlier in the year will have already received their reductions.

Here is what should happen:

IF YOU ARE A LANDLORD...
You must pay the full reduction to tenants who have occupied your premises throughout 1969. Payment must be made on or before December 31, 1969.

A tenant who moved in during the year and is still occupying your premises must receive one-twelfth of the total reduction for each month of tenancy. It must be paid on or before December 31.

A tenant who moved out during the year must receive a similarly proportionate amount within 30 days of the date he terminated his tenancy or on December 31, whichever is earlier.

If a tenant is in arrears, the tax reduction may be deducted from such arrears. However, the reduction must not be withheld because of damages or losses.

IF YOU ARE A TENANT...
You should receive your reduction from your present landlord on or before December 31, 1969.

If you moved out of an apartment during the year and have not yet received your share of the reduction, you should contact your former landlord immediately to make sure he knows where to send your payment.

Tenants in apartment buildings such as duplexes and highrises are usually eligible for the tax reduction. Tenants of flats or basement apartments in houses may not qualify because the premises they rent are not separately assessed. For example, students are not eligible. If you are unsure of your status or eligibility, contact your municipal tax office.

IF YOU ENCOUNTER PROBLEMS...
You should either telephone Toronto 363-7581 or write the Municipal Subsidies Branch, Department of Municipal Affairs, 801 Bay Street, Toronto 181. Officials are available to assist you.

Pamphlets outlining details of the 1969 tax reduction system can be obtained on request.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Hi, Sonny—your bib has slipped down."

Senator Wants U.S. Spending Cut 10 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator William Proxmire says United States military spending should be geared to a soviet war-making potential that he judges is about half that of the United States. And he wants such spending chopped by $10,000,000,000.

"We found from the expert testimony we took that the Russians are not 10 feet tall," the Wisconsin Democrat said Saturday in releasing a report by a subcommittee of the Senate-House of Representatives joint economic committee. Proxmire is chairman of the subcommittee.

"In fact, based on our military outlays and economic strength," he said, "if we are six feet tall, the Russians by comparison are three feet tall and the Chinese are six inches tall."

The subcommittee—with all four Republican members dissenting—urged President Nixon to cut defence requests in his new budget for fiscal 1971 by $10,000,000,000 from actual spending in fiscal 1969.

The defence department lists 1969 spending at $78,400,000,000, but Proxmire said it was about $75,000,000,000 and that after trimming to $65,000,000,000 next year, defence spending should be dropped to $60,000,000,000 in the near future and kept there.

'Kill Nixon' Plea Said Just Rhetoric

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Black Panther leader charged with advocating the assassination of President Nixon said Sunday his statement, "We should kill President Nixon" was meant rhetorically, not literally.

"It was political rhetoric," David Hilliard, Black Panther chief of staff, said of the statement at a Nov. 15 peace rally in San Francisco.

"We can call it a metaphor. It is the language of the ghetto. This is the way we relate."

Hilliard gave his explanation on the CBS television-radio program, Face the Nation.

Hilliard, free on bond after his indictment by a federal grand jury, said the statement was taken out of the context of his speech and added:

"I did not threaten the life of the president. In the context of a speech that I made, I stated very emphatically that we would kill anyone that stands in the way of our freedom and, of course, the newsmen and the news media is another instrument by which the government dupes and hypnotizes the people."

The Panther leader said his organization does not advocate violence:

"Our slogan is that we want an abolition to war, but we do understand that in order to get rid of the gun it will be necessary to take up the gun.

"We make a distinction between the reactionary violence manifested in this system, the main oppressor of all men, and in violence used in behalf of the oppressed people to throw off the shackles of colonialism and oppression. So that violence on our part would be justified."

Judy La Marsh Voted The Most Newsworthy

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Canada's women's editors have voted Judy LaMarsh the country's most newsworthy woman of the 1960s in a poll by The Canadian Press.

By a coincidence that caps the almost inevitable choice, her political career flitted neatly into the decade, beginning in 1960 and ending—apparently —in 1969.

Miss LaMarsh was first elected to Parliament in a November, 1960, byelection. She was then a young (34), successful Niagara Falls lawyer and Liberal party worker.

Almost as soon as she arrived in Ottawa she began making news, earning a reputation for being outspoken, for a caustic turn of wit and an alert mind.

In spite of a tradition that new back-benchers keep their heads down for the first few months in the House, Miss LaMarsh, by June, was credited with 14 major speeches in the House and membership on six parliamentary committees.

She had also referred to a John Diefenbaker television appearance as a "half-hour of half-truths" and a "Cheshire cat recital."

Her affinity for hot water was first demonstrated fully in 1962, when she was made a member of the "truth squad" set up by the Liberals to harass then prime minister Diefenbaker during the election campaign. The notion boomeranged. Public distaste forced the embarrassed Liberals to call off the squad.

Miss LaMarsh became the second woman in Canada to hold a cabinet post when, in 1963, she was appointed minister of health and welfare in the Lester Pearson government. The first woman minister, Hamilton PC Ellen Fairclough, was defeated in that election.

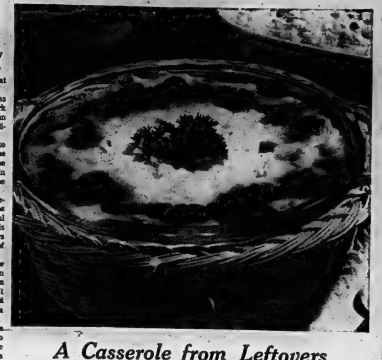
During her tenure, Miss LaMarsh did the ground work for the Canada Pension Plan and the beginning of the medical care insurance plan.

She also gave up smoking to set a good example. In the early days of the struggle she allowed that she felt great in the morning but awful the rest of the day.

In 1963 she became secretary of state, and as such was to preside over the Centennial Year celebrations. She is given credit in some quarters for much of the success of 1967.

In the same post, she drew publicity when she said in public that there was "rotten management" at the CBC. It was a throwaway line when it was delivered, but it set off a furore that lasted for weeks.

At the same time that she began to say she was going to retire from politics, there were rumors that she was going to run for the party leadership when Mr. Pearson retired in 1968.



Instead, she backed Paul Hellyer, then transport minister, and made heedless during the convention. In a heated moment she referred to leadership candidate Pierre Trudeau as "that bastard." She was close to the microphone and the comment became public.

Miss LaMarsh did resign, and shortly afterward provoked one of the biggest dollops of publicity of her career. Early in 1968 Max Meminoirs of a Bird in a Gilded Cage, appeared. Her discussion of Liberal colleagues, of Mr. Pearson as prime minister and of events during his regime was frank and opinionated and started another uproar.

For now, Miss LaMarsh is working again as a lawyer.

A Casserole from Leftovers

Mary Moore features a triple purpose casserole base to be used with leftover turkey or seafood or other meats. Freezer owners especially will be interested.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Three Meals from Basic Recipe

By MARY MOORE

I made three casseroles: one from leftover turkey, one from leftover baked salmon, and one from canned shrimp. But the basic mixture was the same, and all of them freeze satisfactorily. So freezer owners, — all of the work is worthwhile because you prepare three meals in one effort.

CASSEROLE BASE
(3 casseroles; will freeze)

2 cups raw long grain rice
2 tsps. salt (first amount)
5 cups boiling water
12 slices (approximately ½ lb.) bacon, chopped
½ cup flour
2 tsps. salt (second amount)
½ tsp. pepper
6½ cups milk
¾ lb. (2 cups packed) cut up old Cheddar cheese
One 4-oz. can or jar pimientos chopped
6 cups (packed) cut up turkey (or 2 cups turkey and 2 cups (packed) flaked salmon and 2 cups drained canned shrimp — see below)

Cook the rice first in a large heavy pot in the boiling water with the first 2 tsps. salt, covered until all water is absorbed and rice is tender.

In very large soup pot (or preserving kettle) cook bacon until crisp. Measure off ⅓ cup bacon drippings and reserve. Drain bacon on paper towels.

To same pot in which bacon was cooked return ⅓ cup drippings, blend in flour, second amount of salt and pepper. Stir in milk until thick. Stir in two-thirds of the cheese. (Reserve remainder for topping.) Now stir in pimientos, rice and bacon. If all turkey is to be used stir it in too. If three different meat ingredients are to be used divide (using two large bowls and the pot) basic mixture into three even amounts. To first amount add turkey; to second amount add salmon; to third amount add shrimp. Turn into three medium casseroles. Top with remaining cheese. Bake one casserole at 400 deg. Fahr. for 30 min. until heated through, bubbling and golden. Cool and freeze/wrap remaining two casseroles. When frozen casseroles are needed thaw in room temperature before baking or put in oven frozen at 275 deg. Fahr. for 1 hr. or until thawed and bubbling hot.

This basic casserole mix may be used for other leftover meats such as chicken, duck, ham, pork or tuna.

Casserole and freezer enthusiasts should clip and file this recipe for it is a beauty.

Indian 'Grandma' Provides Home for Less Fortunate

TORONTO (CP) — An Ojibway grandmother who arrived in Toronto as a chaperone to two of her teen-age granddaughters has become "Grandma" to a stream of young Indians who have found it difficult to adapt to big city life.

Verna Johnston, 60, came to this city four years ago from the Ojibway reserve at Cape Croker on Georgian Bay.

She hadn't been here long when a teen-age Indian girl unhappy with the boarding house where she lived asked if she could move in with her.

Shortly after, an Indian boy boarding with a white woman moved in with Mrs. Johnston while his landlly was on vacation. When the woman returned, the boy refused to move back.

Then the department of Indian affairs became aware of Mrs. Johnston and brought to her an Indian girl who had been caught stealing. "Grandma" apparently had sufficient effect on the girl to spark a steady stream of referrals from the department.

Mrs. Johnston expanded. A Toronto man who had vacationed in Cape Croker rented her his nine-room house—big enough to accommodate 19 youngsters aged from 14 to 20.

"I jumped at the offer because, by now, I realized how badly Indian teen-agers needed help at the point where they leave the reserve and enter white society," Mrs. Johnston says.

"Many of them fail, but I'm sure now it's chiefly because of emotional reasons. They come to the city with a built-in sense of inferiority and not knowing who they are."

Mrs. Johnston blames this sense of inferiority partly on teachers who spend perhaps two years on a reserve but never mingle with the people, partly on the repeated suggestion by whites that Indians are lazy, shiftless, alcoholic and untrustworthy.

When Indians stay with whites in a city, she says, both parties find it difficult. The Indian needs time to adjust "to electricity, running water and acceptable table manners," Mrs. Johnston says.

He sometimes must face such insults as not being allowed to eat with the family.

Mrs. Johnston's boarding house helps to bridge the gap between reserve and city by providing understanding, protection and guidance.

Because while teen-agers generally have snubbed her charges, the youngsters have developed a social life of their own at the Indian Friendship Centre where they engage in sports, the Ojibway language, dances.

The young men and women pay $20 a week for room, meals, snacks and laundry at Mrs. Johnston's. When they run into financial trouble, "Grandma" tides them over.

When her funds run low, Mrs. Johnston turns to Indian crafts. Sometimes the federal government assigns her to give instruction in handicrafts.

"When I came to Toronto four years ago I had no intention of becoming involved in Indian affairs—but I had to," she says.

"Those of us who are articulate must carry the load for the rest of our people."

Marriage Doubted

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My cousin Gail had to get married at the age of 18. Actually she got pregnant on purpose when they found they couldn't get a marriage license any other way in this case. The little boy is now two years old. Now we fear both her health and nerves are wearing thin.

She told Mother that she wishes she had not gotten married and misses now how much better off she was at home with us. (Her parents died several years ago). I don't want to break up the marriage, but my question is, are they really married?

I was at the wedding and noticed that the priest did not pronounce them man and wife. I asked the groom if the priest does not usually pronounce the couple man and wife. He indicated that this should have been done. Then I didn't say any more about it. — Doubtful

Dear Doubtful: Definitely, they are married. This does not depend on the actual words of the ceremony, but on the marriage affidavit which both parties signed, thus entering into a contract of marriage. Prior to signing, they have made vows in the presence of witnesses, and the witnesses sign the contract too.

Obviously your cousin needs counselling help and this might just save that rocky marriage. Could you steer her to it?

* * *

Dear Doris: We are trying to start a club for senior folk here in T——, and would appreciate some information on just how to get started. Is there a membership fee? If so, how much, and please give us a few ideas for plans for the meetings.

I have heard that in one town folk go on trips on chartered busses. Where does that money come from? Please tell me anything you think will help to make these meetings cheerful and helpful to us all. — Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: First of all, I'll send you my "Tips to Organizing Friendship Clubs". This will get you going.

The bus tours have assorted ways of getting the fare for. Such things as card parties, bake sales or rummage sales, can net a handy profit if the general public is invited.

On the other hand, it may surprise you just how many of our seniors can save up or find the money somehow once they get the travel bug.

Often a club has no set membership fee, although I know one group where there is a 25 cent annual charge. Each paid-up member gets a card and those who have cards get first chance at seats on the bus tours.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 18. I have never been overweight before, but in the last month I have gained six pounds and I would like to lose it. I just don't know how. — Spreading Fast

Dear Spreading: Then nip it in the bud. Turn your back on the sweets and starches, the bread and potatoes, the nibbles between meals, and anything that looks remotely like a second helping.

We have leaflets here on reducing diets, exercises, low-calorie recipes to be had for 10 cents each and stamped, self-addressed envelope. They will help you knock off those six unwanted pounds in nothing flat (say about a month).

* * *

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.

Couple Live Year Of Sexless Marriage

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 28. My husband, who is a few years older, is a high school principal and assistant pastor of our church. Thomas is a wonderful, thoughtful person. I love him very much. The problem, as you will soon discover, is one I cannot bring myself to discuss with anyone who knows us.

ANN LANDERS

We celebrated our first wedding anniversary a few weeks ago and have never had a sexual relationship. We are both very fond of children and Thomas wants to start adoption proceedings. I keep telling him I want to have my own. He says, "It's too much trouble, I never tried." He says, "I don't want to try. Life is complicated enough as it is."

We get along beautifully. No one would ever suspect that our union is not a perfect one. I am very happy and feel lucky to have him. But something is missing in our marriage and I would like to know what to do about it. — MORNING GLORY.

DEAR GLORY: If you've been a partner in a sexless marriage for a year and are just getting around to noticing that something is missing, you may well have the perfect mate. The fact that you consider yourself "lucky" is additional evidence that you two belong together.

Obviously you can take sex or leave it alone. It is equally clear that your husband would prefer to leave it alone. He should see a physician and find out if there's an organic reason for his lack of interest in sex. If there is nothing physically wrong, he should get some counseling. And you could use some counseling, too, honey.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the Denver parents whose son lost his hand while conducting a hobby experiment prompts me to write this letter.

I am president of our high school science club. Many of our members, including myself, are rocketeers. We use only professionally manufactured rocket engines and our safety record, after dozens of launchings, is 100 per cent.

The "basement bombers" who make their own fuel are asking for trouble and giving rocketry a bad name. What these kids don't understand is that homemade rocket propellents are not only dangerous but useless as a scientific experiment because the thrust cannot be controlled. Please tell the hobby scientists who are making their own ingredients instead of buying tested materials, to wise up before they blow up. — CONNECTICUT YANKEE.

DEAR YANK: You told 'em, and I hope they listen.

Achievement Day Held

TWEED — Earlier in December, the North Lennox and Addington 4-H Homemaking Achievement Day for the project, "Best Well Dressed and Well Groomed Girls" was held in Denbigh Community Hall.

Two clubs from Cloyne, one from Eldorado and two from Denbigh, took part in the activities. There was a fashion show, skits and demonstrations.

Home Economists, Miss Ann McGiffen and Mrs. Mary Moore from Napanee attended. Mrs. Gernet Wilkes brought greetings from Addington District Institute. She also presented pins to the girls. Lunch was served by the Women's Institute.

Points for Parents

Jim: "I don't have time to write to Uncle Jim. Will you thank him for sending me the shirt for Christmas?"

Mother: "I'll be writing to him today. I'll tell him you like it. You drop him a note, too, when you have time."

Children should learn as soon as they can write that "thank you" notes must be written promptly and by the person who receives the gift.

Female Bank Workers Now Wear Uniform

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Thirteen female employees of a Dartmouth Bank of Montreal branch have solved the "haven't a thing to wear" problem by adopting a uniform.

Jean Campion, one of the women, designed the princess-style dress with an A-line skirt, a detachable shawl collar, and long sleeves trimmed with matching buttons.

She chose a blue polyester-crimpoline fabric with a jacquard-design weave. The material is completely washable and wrinkle-proof.

Mrs. Campion, who first made the dress for herself and wore it to work, says: "I was quite surprised that all the girls would go for it."

They ordered enough material for everyone and those who couldn't sew were helped by their fellow workers. Total cost for each dress was approximately $18 for a size 12, compared to an average $30 for a similar department store dress.

Mrs. Campion said the pattern she selected is good for every figure type, regardless of height, weight or age. The length of the new "uniform" dresses now being worn by the girls varies from mini to just above the knee, depending on personal choice.

The blue of the dresses goes with the bank's colors, blue and white.

Mrs. Campion plans to send the dress idea to an employee's suggestion box at the bank's head office in Montreal, with the hope that it will be chosen for the bank's female employees across the country.

"One thing I like about the adopted "uniform" is that it eliminates competition. Dry-cleaning bills are also nil. Even the customers comment on our dresses, especially the male ones."

Branch manager Jim Sherwood says that "if you can get 13 girls to agree on choosing the same design for a dress, it must be very acceptable."

"For years the bank has tried to come up with a suit-type uniform, but it was never accepted by the girls. This time, they did it all on their own."

WOMEN HAVE SAY

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — A 1 a.m. instead of midnight closing for Zurich night spots seems likely to get city council and parliamentary approval but the girls may keep the lid on. If they are given the vote in a Sept. 17 referendum women are expected to use it against longer hours for public night life in a later referendum.

Black Panthers Claim There Is Campaign to Wipe Them Out

BERKELEY, Calif. (Reuters) — As nationwide racial unrest simmers with occasional violent outbursts, Black Panther leaders claim there is a systematic campaign under way to wipe out their organization.

About four months ago, Black Panther officials released what they claimed were copies of a Berkeley police department plan for storming the party's national headquarters here, complete with provision for the use of a tank and sub-machine-gun squad.

Police authorities, while not disowning the plan, said it was a contingency program, drawn up as such for training purposes or future implementation.

On the assumption that Panthers in the headquarters did not leave when ordered, the 25-point plan said in part:

"All shutters should be blown off upper floor windows. The entire building should be flooded with tear gas, and the entire upper floor should be covered with intense fire.

"This should have the necessary effect."

The Panthers obtained the plan shortly after FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, in a July report, singled them out from other black militant groups as representing "without question . . . the greatest single threat to the internal security of the country."

In the wake of bloody police raids in December on key Panther offices in Chicago and Los Angeles—when tactics not too different from the Berkeley plan were employed—many people now are wondering whether law enforcement authorities have launched a coordinated drive to remove the threat.

Panther spokesmen charge that a campaign to eliminate their organization is being directed from Washington by Attorney-General John Mitchell's justice department.

Government agents and police deny any conspiracy against the black revolutionaries. Local police chiefs say their concern is to enforce the law and to protect their officers and the public.

But Panthers believe they have considerable circumstantial evidence to support their charge.

For a long time, and especially during recent months, they have been taking heavy casualties for an organization which spends most of its time staging protest rallies or cursing the white power structure.

Their leadership has been decimated by imprisonment or death, some of their offices have been turned into battle-scarred ruins, and hundreds of their members have been arrested on various charges, some serious, other minor, in cities across the U.S.

The Panthers do not eschew violence. They say they chose the jungle animal as their motif because it fights back ferociously when attacked. Since they feel under attack most of the time, they have assembled weapons. Many police officers have been wounded in violent clashes with the Panthers.

Meanwhile, Panther lawyer Charles Garry says police gunfire has killed 28 Panthers during the last two years. Counties others have been arrested.

Garry, a white lawyer who has the absolute trust of his black clients, has pledged to promote a congressional inquiry. An investigation of police intent also has been demanded by Whitney Young, a Negro national race executive director of the Urban League, who speaks of a "deliberate attempt . . . to annihilate Panthers."

Nine black congressmen have asked President Nixon to extend the life of the National Commission on Violence so it can investigate the police slaying of Panther leaders Fred Hampton and Mark Clark during a recent raid on their West Side Chicago apartment.

Observers note a wall of hostility between Panthers and police, which is reflected to some extent in the attitudes of the community at large.

The political left tends to sympathize with the Panthers, and lends them support. The right detests them. The political centre, by far the largest group in this case, either fears or does not understand them.

The fear is aroused by the wearing of uniforms—black berets and black leather jackets—and the often virulent Panther language.

Charges brought against Panther leaders range from murder to illegal possession of weapons. The Panthers' chief-of-staff, David Hilliard, was arrested here recently for allegedly threatening President Nixon's life in a speech made to anti-war demonstrators.

Quebec Was Where the Action Was in Canada During Sixties

MONTREAL (CP) — You might say that Quebec is where the action was in the 1960s.

And chances are the province will continue to be a focal point of attention at least in the sixty years of the new decade.

Even aside from the turmoil of politics and a world's fair in Centennial Year when 35,- 000,000 visitors dropped in, Quebec was much in the news in the '60s.

The "system" has been under assault for the last few years by small groups of terrorists and other radicals. They have agitated for such diverse causes as changing McGill from an English-speaking to a French-speaking university and ending a taxi monopoly at the Montreal international airport.

Sporadic terrorism in the name of an independent Quebec began in the spring of 1963 with a series of mailbox bombings by a group of youths who called themselves the Front de Liberation Quebecois.

A movement to make French the only recognized language in Quebec, whether the province remains part of Canada or not, surfaced in 1968 by winning a school board election in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard. The movement, known as the Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire, began the grade-by-grade elimination of English-speaking classes.

Since then, the Quebec Court of Appeal has ruled the board had no power to eliminate English, and the provincial government got a bill through the legislature—now known as the Quebec national assembly—to guarantee English language rights in education.

Quebec began to experience an upheaval elsewhere in the field of education in the 1960s, set off by the work of a royal commission that spent four years studying the problem.

The Lesage government formed an education department, under Paul Gerin-Lajoie, which put the government in effective control of education, instead of the Roman Catholic and Protestant churches.

The public schools remain divided into Catholic and Protestant systems but, as the decade closed, Mr. Gerin-Lajoie's Union Nationale successor, Jean-Guy Cardinal, introduced a bill to unify them in Montreal.

Many of the English-speaking community dislike the bill because they are afraid they will lose all authority over their own schools, despite the new legal guarantee that school instruction will continue to be available in English.

The role of the Roman Catholic clergy in Quebec life underwent a transformation in the 1960s. Under the leadership of Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Archbishop of Montreal, there was more emphasis on their pastoral mission and less on the running of institutions, and laymen began to play a much bigger part in church work.

Cardinal Leger tossed a bombshell of his own in 1967, announcing a decision to give up the archbishopric and spend the rest of his life working among lepers in Africa.

The cardinal, who used to be fond of early-morning walks, and other Montrealers literally had to watch their step in the first half of the decade. Holes were dug all over the place.

Into them went three subway lines, Place Ville-Marie, Place Bonaventure, Place du Canada, Place de la Bourse and Place des Arts, where the city's theatre life now is centred.

Jean Drapeau returned to the Montreal mayor's chair in 1960, after an absence of three years. Still in office at the end of the decade, he has set his sights on the 1976 Olympics for Montreal, but he was also talking about retiring. A municipal election is due in 1970.

Since the end of Expo, it has not all been wine and roses for the energetic mayor and his city. Construction and capital investment have slumped, unemployment is up and the demands for more attention to housing and welfare problems have been growing louder.

In the last autumn of the decade the city experienced a one-day police and firemen's strike, during which a rampaging mob wrecked many storefronts on St. Catherine Street, and a number of street demonstrations against the government language bill.

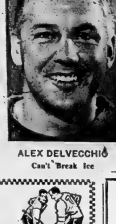
Wings' Delvecchio Takes His Time Collecting Goal No. 376



By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Garry Unger collected his 11th, 12th and 13th season goals and Gordie Howe added his 14th for Detroit Red Wings Sunday while teammate Alex Delvecchio completed his 30th game without scoring.

Delvecchio, 38-year-old veteran of 18 full National Hockey League seasons with the Red Wings, had 375 goals in 1,256 games to the end of the 1968-69 season. The closest he came Sunday to earning his first 1969-70 season goal was on a shot at 13:24 of the third period.

Goalie Gary Smith of Oakland Seals stopped the Detroit centre but Howe banged the rebound into the net and Delvecchio came out of the 5-3 Detroit victory with only his 664th career assist.

In other games, Boston Bruins defeated Philadelphia Flyers 5-4 while Los Angeles Kings earned a 3-3 tie with New York Rangers.

Saturday, Toronto Maple Leafs downed St. Louis Blues 4-1, Philadelphia tied Montreal Canadiens 2-2, Chicago Black Hawks whipped Pittsburgh Penguins 3-0 and Oakland Seals defeated Minnesota North Stars 5-3.

Defenceman Bobby Orr scored a goal and three assists in the Boston victory to open an eight-point lead over St. Louis' Phil Goyette in the scoring race.

Orr's 11th season goal started the scoring before the 14,606 Philadelphia fans and the Bruins never dropped behind the scrambling Flyers who arrived an hour and 45 minutes before the game after a tiring bus ride from Montreal.

Ken Hodge, Ed Westfall, Johnny McKenzie and Derek Sanderson scored the other Bruins goals while Simon Nolet got two for the Flyers. Andre Lacroix and Jean-Guy Gendron scored once each for the losers.

The Bruins win moved them to within one point of New York, the East Division leader.

Bill Flett collected only his third season goal to gain the tie for Los Angeles before a crowd of 17,250 at New York.

Ed Joyal scored the other two goals for the Kings who still trail the West Division with only six wins and four ties in 30 games.

Jean Ratelle, Bill Fairbairn and Arnie Brown scored for the Rangers who pelted Los Angeles goalie Gerry Desjardins with 35 shots. Ed Giacomin made only 23 saves for the Rangers.

The Maple Leafs had an easy time against veteran goalie Glenn Hall Saturday night with rookie Jim Harrison scoring the first of his two goals on a flip shot from centre ice.

Hall came out of his nets to make the easy save but the puck slipped between his pads and trickled over the goal line.

The Leafs peppered the St. Louis goalie with 45 shots and Dave Keon, Ron Ellis and Harrison scored to give Toronto a 4-0 edge midway through the second period.

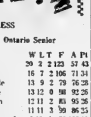
Bob Pleger beat goalie Bruce Gamble for the only St. Louis goal.



Goalie Tony Esposito recorded his seventh season shutout for the Black Hawks, stopping 30 Penguins shots before a crowd of 8,746 at Pittsburgh.

Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita and Cliff Koroll provided the Chicago scoring power.

A goal-tending duel between Montreal's Rogatien Vachon and Philadelphia's Parent kept both teams scoreless until the last minute of the second period when Yvan Cournoyer collected his 10th of the season for the Canadiens.

Jacques Lemaire made it 2-0 for Montreal early in the final period but Gendron and Nolet scored to earn the tie which moved the Flyers to within two points of second-place Minnesota in the West Division.

Nats Earn Czech-mate

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Nationals combined effective penalty killing with playmaking Sunday to defeat the touring Czechoslovakian national hockey team 3-2 in the first of a best-of-five exhibition series.

A capacity crowd of 9,000 saw the Nationals take a 3-0 lead on goals by Brian Conacher, Fran Huck and Chuck Lefley before the Czechoslovakia team came back with two goals in the final period.

Nationals' coach Jack McLeod said after the game that he was satisfied with the way the team stifled the Czech power play during five penalties. He said Steve Carlyle was a stand-out on defence.

"He's going just great all the time," said McLeod.

Bob Murdoch and Mike Poirier played well, he added, helping keep the visitors off balance most of the game.

Conacher's opening goal came at 14:59 of the first period. Billy Harris, former National Hockey League player, started the play that ended with Conacher tipping in Corby Adams' goal-mouth pass.

Fran Huck scored on a break-away in the second period and Lefley's slap shot at 6:41 of the third period ended the scoring for the Canadians.

But after Lefley's goal, there wasn't much the Canadians could be proud of in their play, McLeod said.

Julius Haas scored Czechoslovakia's second goal on a two-on-one break that McLeod called "the part that hurts."

"I'm not knocking the goal itself," he said. "I'm talking about the play that set it up. We're supposed to be nursing a two-goal edge and they get a two-on-one break."

"They shouldn't have got either goal," said McLeod. "But I'll admit the first one was one that couldn't be helped."

Czechoslovakia's first goal was scored by veteran Josef Cerny on a close-in shot. The rebound bounced off a Canadian defenceman into the net.

The Canadian team controlled play throughout the game, but the visiting Czechs outshot the Nationals 32-23.

Canada took five of nine minor penalties.

The two teams meet again in Winnipeg Tuesday night before travelling East for games in Toronto, London, Ont., and Ottawa in the new year.

That IS Hay

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bill (Red) Hay, former star centre of Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, may be the next retired professional hockey player to join Canada's national team.

Hay was in Winnipeg Sunday watching the first of five scheduled games between the touring Czechoslovakian team and the Nationals. The Nationals won 3-2.

Hay, who retired from pro hockey after the 1966-67 season, said he could be talked into something in world hockey.

Defenceman Greg Burkitt hurdles Belleville Ellis goalie Ron Jury during third-period action in Sunday night's 3-2 Junior B win by Belleville over league-leading Kingston Frontenacs. Jury, here sprawled face-down on the puck, was a standout, making 48 stops and shutting Kingston out in the final period.

Hawks' Drake Hits Snag After Only Fourth Game

PETERBOROUGH (Special) —Roger Drake has hit a major snag after only his fourth game as coach of Trenton Golden Hawks.

A 6-2 loss to third-place Peterborough Don Byes in Eastern Ontario Junior B action Sunday came as no great shock, but an injury problem didn't help matters any.

Drake had only two forward lines and four defencemen in dress after Friday night's 8-7 comeback win over Belleville Ellis Juniors.

But by Sunday, "Red" Gravelle's replacement at the Golden Hawk helm was realizing how costly Friday's win had been.

Defensive standout Andy Terwilliger was on crutches from a knee injury suffered Friday in the game in which the Hawks overcame a 7-2 Belleville lead by scoring seven unanswered goals.

And Krays confirmed that forward Mike Hall suffered a broken arm in Friday's game after crashing into the boards in the second period.

Until yesterday, Drake had been looking at the Junior B hockey wars through rose-colored glasses.

His charges had 7-6 and 9-7 wins over Belleville and a creditable 2-2 draw with Oshawa to their credit in his three-game tenure.

And for a while Sunday, it looked like the buckle wasn't about to burst.

Pete Uzuna's unassisted goal at 2:40 of the opening period gave Trenton a 1-0 lead. Garry Brewer's goal later in the period tied it 1-1, and Grady's second period tally shoved the Byes ahead 2-1.

But at 16.32 of the period Jeff Howard scored on a play from Jim Steenburg and Craig Bennett to put the Hawks back on a 2-2 footing.

Findlay's last-minute goal put Peterborough ahead to stay, with Newell and Brewer adding third-period insurance.

"We're looking for some relief from our juvenile all-stars," Drake noted. "We've been promised player help but it hasn't come yet."

Next Junior B action for Trenton comes Friday night with a trip to Oshawa for an 8 o'clock game with the second-place Crushmen.

Visiting Bowlers Make Classic Hay

Out - of - town bowlers found the Belleville Bowl - O - Drome lanes to their liking Saturday, stealing a lot of thunder from local keglers in the sixth annual five-pin Holiday Classic.

Cobourg's Wayne Tuttle was tops, among 30 entries from as far afield as Toronto competing in the double-knockout match play event.

Peterborough's Bert Gordanier was runner-up, with Jack Canning's third - place finish placing him highest among local entries.

Belleville bowler Dan Moon was in a fourth - place tie with Walter Wright of Peterborough, followed by a three - way tie among Cobourg's Rick McIvor, Sel Himes of Ajax, and Oshawa's Al Perry.

Moon's 330 was the event's high game overall.

High game prize - winners ($10 for each high game in four qualifying rounds) were Joe Vesko, Oshawa (330), Sel Himes, Ajax (342), Dan Moon, Belleville (361), and Bert Gordanier, Peterborough (361).

They'll Hunt Strikes, Not Eggs on Easter

A quartet of Belleville five-pin bowlers will be looking for strikes and spares, not eggs, Easter weekend.

Belleville Keglers took two of the top three positions in both men's and women's divisions in the Carling Canadian Five-Pin Championship 30-district qualifying roll-off.

Marco Mior rolled the top 30-game total in the men's section with a 7,809 pinfall. Trenton's Harry Low (7,526) was second and Belleville's Jack Canning placed third with a 7,484 total.

Belleville's "Bea" Hunt (7,247) and Madeline James (7,241) were a close 1-2 in the women's division, with Trenton's Treei Thompson rolling 7,077 for third spot.

Three ten-game blocks were bowled in Kingston, Belleville, and Trenton.

The top ten men and women five-pinners will play in the Ontario championship in Peterborough Easter weekend.

System Proves Out for Ellis Juniors

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The sparse Memorial Arena crowd who saw Belleville Ellis Juniors pull off one of the biggest upsets of the Eastern Ontario Junior B season Sunday night saw what coach Floyd Crawford means by "playing the system."

The Ellis' took a struggle-hold on a 3-2 second - period lead over Kingston Frontenacs and dogged forechecking, back - checking and Ron Jury's outstanding goaltending made it stand up for two points.

"Just a great team effort, great," was Crawford's response to the win, Belleville's first over the league-leading Frontenacs in four tries this season.

The win also moved the Ellis' into sole possession of fourth spot in the six - team standings after Trenton Golden Hawks dropped a 5-2 decision in Peterborough yesterday afternoon.

Tonight, the Belleville B's head into Cobourg for an 8 o'clock game with the last - place Cougars to try and pad their fourth - place point kitty.

Until Sunday, the Ellis' were fast - gaining a league reputation as the team that couldn't hold a lead if the opposition didn't show up.

Friday night, Crawford went into shock after his charges blew a 7-2 lead and lost 9-7 to Trenton Golden Hawks.

He blamed much of that disaster on the failure of his forwards to play "the system" — forechecking, yes, but not too deep and not everybody in the opposition end.

Last night's game was entirely different story.

First-period goals by Danny Lupenette and Terry Meagher gave the locals a 2-1 edge. Kingston's Larry Brooks had opened the scoring at 5.01 with Reid Malloy serving a high sticking minor.

Near the midway mark of the second, Dave Higgins knotted the score while the Ellis defence had a clearing lapse, and it looked like Kingston was about to demonstrate its league-leading power.

Terry Meagher put the damper on that two minutes later when he caromed a shot in off a Frontenac defenceman, with Belleville enjoying a two-man advantage.

For the next 38 minutes and 22 seconds, goalie Ron Jury played Scrooge with Frontenac attackers. When the smoke had cleared, the mid-season Ellis addition in goal had stop ped 48 shots.

Meanwhile Clyde Harris was equal to the occasion at the other end of the rink. Harris had 38 Belleville shots to handle, and his last shining moment came in the final 60 seconds when he outgunned John McConnell on a breakaway.

Between their third goal and the final horn, solid two - way hockey by the Ellis'—notably Terry Meagher and Reid Mallory — helped throw wrenches into Kingston attacks before they hit the Belleville blueline.

Penalty - killing duty by the duo and some resounding body - checking by defenceman Dalton Lambert, were major factors in the outcome. At one stage of the final period, Lambert was credited with a double - kill — skating away from two tumbled Frontenacs draped along the boards in Belleville's end.

Meagher also gained a personal victory, picking up a point on Kingston's Colin Loudon in the league's individual scoring race to keep him among the top three junior B point - getters.

Novices Keep Trophy at Home

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Their sponsor's trophy for the first-ever city novice hockey tournament was as handsome the Towers Food City all-stars just couldn't bear to see it leave the city.

So the Belleville youngsters racked up a 4-2 win over Cobourg, dumped Trenton, 7-1, and walloped Etobicoke Rangers 9-3 to make sure the three-foot high hunk of silverware stayed in town for at least its first year of competition.

There was nothing the Towers Novices could do to keep an equally striking "B" trophy here, however.

Cobourg novices carted that home with them after beating Kingston Islanders 4-1 in the consolation championship of the eight-team tournament.

The Belleville novices were locked in a cautious scoreless tie for nine minutes with Etobicoke before Ricky Sprague drew first blood in the championship game.

The larger, more aggressive Toronto team was never on an even scoring footing with the locals, trailing 3-1 at the end of the first period, and 6-2 after the second.

Andy Lupenette sparked the Towers attack with four goals. Bobby Crawford collected a hat trick, and Mike Bennett accounted for the other Belleville goal.

Etobicoke had edged a strong Peterborough entry 3-2 to earn a berth in the final after knocking off Brockville 3-0 in their opener.

After losing their opener 4-2 to Belleville, the Cobourg novices went on to blank Napanee 9-0 before upsetting Kingston 4-1 in the "B" final.

Kingston had blanked Brockville 4-0 after losing their first game 5-1 to Peterborough, the only team to beat the Belleville novices in 18 games this season.

Other first-round action saw Trenton down Napanee 2-0.

In the 7-1 second-round win over Trenton, Andy Lupenette led the Towers attack with three goals, with Randy Hutchinson contributing a pair and singles coming from Bobby Crawford and Mike Bennett.

Bennett's pair of goals led Belleville's 6-1 first-round win over Cobourg, with Lupenette and Crawford adding singles.

Other members of the tournament champion Towers team were goalie Bruce Hamilton, Bobby Ashley, Terry Thompson, Peter Hall, Ron Doornbos, Dennis Greer, John Jianopoulos, David McBride, Doug Shaw, Randy Kells, Gary Gorgan and Peter Fahey.

Over Their Heads

The "A" championship trophy for the first annual Towers Food City Novice hockey tournament might be, but the city's Food City all-stars didn't play that way in winning top honors in the eight-team event. Towers manager Sam Mulholland was on hand to present the jubilant host team with the winning silverware for Sunday's tournament.

Queen's Hoops Higher?

Both Belleville entries in the Queen's Invitational Basketball Tournament were down in defeat Saturday in Kingston.

BCI, invited to compete at the last minute when Oshawa withdrew, won its first game over Acsenet 71-61 but lost 49-45 in the semi-final to Kenner Collegiate from Peterborough.

Quinte's entry lost both games — the first to Ignatius Collegiate of Kingston by 53-33 and the second 50-43 to Kenner.

The victorious Kenner team made a clean sweep of the tournament, winning the final game over Cobourg West to take top honors.

Seven teams, from Kingston, Arnprior, Belleville, Peterborough and Cobourg competed in the annual event.

It's Vikings Vs. Browns!

Minnesota (CP) — Minnesota Vikings defeated Cleveland Browns 51-3 earlier this season but Minnesota coach Bud Grant declines to make any rash predictions for next Sunday's National Football League championship game between the Vikings and the Browns.

"Nobody is 40 points better than anybody else in this league," Grant said Sunday, the day after his Vikings defeated Los Angeles Rams 23-20 to win the NFL's Western Conference and advance to the NFL playoff.

Joe Kapp, former quarterback with British Columbia Lions in the CFL, led the Vikings to victory by scoring the game-tying touchdown, passing for 188 yards and rushing for 42. He completed 13 of 19 passes.

Kapp lived up this advance billing Saturday, setting up two Minnesota touchdowns with his passing and running and scored the third himself in the fourth quarter to tie the score 20-20.

"This team wants to win," said Kapp. "You don't do it by talking. You do it by playing."

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — "Rubber band defence, huh?"

Cleveland Browns shouted the phrase in derision Sunday as they trudged up the ramp in the Cotton Bowl after thumping Dallas Cowboys 38-14 to win the Eastern Conference title in the National Football League.

Tom Landry, the Cowboy coach, intended th compliment the Browns when he said, after a 42-28 defeat in November, the Browns' defence is "like a rubber band that stretched but does not break."

The Browns jumped on the "rubber band" phrase as a battle cry for their rematch with the favored Cowboys. In big white letters on the blackboard in the Browns' locker room, it was printed for all to read:

"Rubber band? How about steel bands?"

The steel bands held the Dallas club to 39 yards in the first half as Cleveland rolled up a 17-0 lead while RB Nelson picked apart the vaunted Cowboy defence.

This morning, Belleville's midget all - stars opened the 16 - team annual Orillia midget tournament with a 3-2 win over a Detroit entry to advance to second - round action.

No Christmas Gifts In Tourney Action

Christmas was not a rewarding season for players on two city minor hockey all-star teams.

Friday, Belleville's Blake Kerr Imperial midget all-stars were ousted in two straight games from the mid-get bracket of a three-division Kingston tournament.

The Imperials dropped a 4-3 decision to Kingston and a 5-3 verdict to Gananoque, with Doug James and Cliff Janitsch scoring in both games.

Peterborough won the tourney's midget grouping.

Saturday, the . Belleville Kinsmen bantams suffered a 3-1 loss to Richmond Hill and were eliminated from the eight-team bantam division of the Windsor Riverside tournament.

Friday the Belleville bantam all-stars had fought to a 2-2 stalemate with Richmond Hill in the two-game, total-goal competition. Bruce Clark gave the Kinsmen some strong goaltending in the opener, with Grant Gorgan accounting for both Belleville goals.

Saturday, Bobby Moore provided standout goaltending in a losing cause, while Mark Coates got the lone Kinsmen goal.

Novice B's Split

A pair of third - period goals enabled Sterling to salvage a 3-3 draw with Belleville Mulroney Kinsmen Novice B's Saturday.

Gary Frederick, Danny Duffy and Pat Wiltman handled the Belleville scoring, with Robb, Morton and Dobson replaying for Stirling.

New Year Brings Liturgical Changes for World's Catholics

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholics will find a number of changes—some startling—in their church's liturgical worship of God and homage to the Virgin Mary and other saints in 1970.

The changes arise from an updating of the church's liturgical calendar, announced last May.

Beginning Jan. 1, the calendar shifts some feast days for Christ, the Virgin and many saints. The calendar also provides more options for honoring certain saints.

Protest erupted throughout the Catholic world when the calendar first was announced last May because a reclassification of the saints was widely viewed as demotion for some of them and complete eclipse for others.

Rev. Annibale Bugnini, the Italian priest who is mainly responsible for the revision, later wrote an article assuring Catholics that no saint had been abolished or even demoted. Some hostility and suspicion lingered, however.

In a recent interview, Father Bugnini explained that the years 1970 and 1971 would be ones of transition from the old liturgical calendar to the new.

This, he said, was to allow for the completion of the official Latin versions and then translations into the vernacular, of the Roman Missal, the principal mass book, and the Breviary, which contains prayers that priests say privately day by day.

The first major change comes Jan. 1, traditionally the holy day commemorating the circumcision of Jesus in accordance with Jewish law.

The feast, described by Father Bugnini as a "Gallic" feast acquired by the church in the 9th century during the French Carolingen empire, has been removed from the calendar. In its place is a feast dedicated to Mary, the mother of God.

Father Bugnini, secretary of the Congregation of the Divine Cult, said this feast actually dates to the 7th century but was replaced by the Jan. 1 circumcision commemoration. The feast of Mary will be a day of obligatory mass attendance for Catholics as was the circumcision.

On Feb. 11, an entirely new feast makes its appearance. It will be called The Feast of the Apparitions of the Virgin Mother.

This year, however, Ash Wednesday falls on Feb. 11 so the apparitions feast will not be celebrated until 1971.

The feast is meant to represent all the alleged apparitions of the Virgin in all times, such as at Guadalupe in 1531, Lourdes in 1858 and Fatima in 1917.

Father Bugnini cautioned that the church has given no official sanction to any of these apparitions. But the church does allow Catholics who believe in these apparitions to commemorate them.

One rather startling change is that the feast formerly called The Annunciation, and regarded as honoring the Virgin Mother, will now be called The Annunciation of Christ, and will honor not Mary but Jesus. The feast is scheduled for April 6 in 1970 only. It will be given a fixed date later.

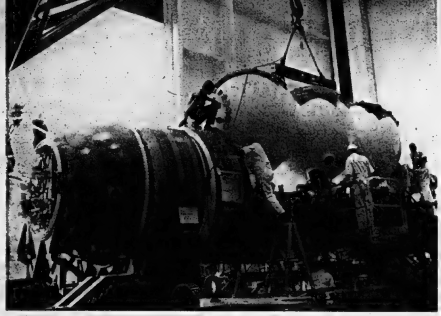
The Annunciation feast commemorates the visit of the angel Gabriel to Mary as recorded in the New Testament. The Bible says Gabriel told her she would be the mother of God.

"We always considered it a feast of the Virgin," said Father Bugnini, "but if you reflect carefully enough, you see that it's really a feast of Christ."

Among feasts from the old calendar that disappear in the new is The Name of Mary, celebrated on Sept. 12. That feast, Father Bugnini said, duplicated in a way the feast of the birth of Mary, celebrated somewhere between Sept. 6 and 29.

Father Bugnini said that the transition calendar for the years 1970 and 1971 would retain, in most cases, the old dates for celebration of the feasts of other saints.

So, if a saint's feast day was on March 2 in 1969, it will continue to be on March 2 in 1970 and 1971, although thereafter it may shift to March 6 or some other day on the new calendar.



The new liturgical classifications for feast days are:

Solemn—The highest classification reserved for feast days of Christ, the Virgin Mary and extremely important saints, such as Saints Peter and Paul. The mass must correspond with the feast.

Obligatory feasts—Reserved for such well-known, high-ranking saints as the other apostles. Mass must be dedicated to the saint of the day, except in places where that saint's feast conflicts with the feast of a nation's patron saint or of a local saint of terribly importance for one area.

Obligatory commemorations —These make mandatory for every priest at least a prayer mentioning the particular saint concerned in the day's mass and in the priest's Breviary reading. However, the rubric itself may be dedicated to some other saint if a priest so wishes.

Optional commemorations— These allow for a recommended, but not compulsory prayer mentioning a particular saint.

Rescue Vehicle

Descending slowly, the tri-spherical pressure hull of the U.S. navy's Deep Submergence Rescue Vehicle (DSRV) is fitted inside the vessel's torpedo-shaped outer hull. The three inter-connected spheres can withstand ocean pressures to depths of 5,000 feet. The DSRV is designed to rescue crews of submarines stranded on the ocean bed. It becomes operational in 1970. # U.S. and Vietnamese Achieve Major Victory in Countryside

Where does the Vietnam war stand as 1969 ends? The following appraisal comes from two Pulitzer prize-winning Associated Press correspondents who have covered the war continually for seven years. They revisited all four corps areas and talked with hundreds of Americans and Vietnamese. This is the first of three stories giving their findings.

By PETER ARNETT
and
HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — This year, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have accomplished the first, major breakthrough since 1962 in wresting the Vietnamese countryside from Viet Cong control, and people are flowing back into long-abandoned farmlands and hamlets.

Yet all the while, North Vietnam has been building up its armed forces along South Vietnam's borders. What these forces will do, as the United States continues to withdraw combat forces, is the big question for 1970 and later.

The momentum of the nationwide breakthrough against the Viet Cong in the countryside is visible, measurable and consoling. But there is also general agreement that if this momentum falters, as it has in the past because of ineptness or political division, there will be little chance of any pro-Western government and society to survive in South Vietnam. There will be no time to try again.

Planners of the American withdrawal are proceeding with caution. They say that if American troops are pulled out too quickly the psychological shock on the Saigon army, combined with a military vacuum on the battlefield, could bring collapse.

Intent on creating a country that can survive politically and militarily in some form, the American proponents of Vietnamization seek not only to replace American troops but also to revolutionize and reorganize Saigon's million-man military structure.

Hanoi has plans, too.

North Vietnamese forces on the borders of the south now are capable of waging war on a grander scale than ever before, says a top-level U.S. intelligence assessment.

The Hanoi forces have two alternatives.

The first is to push hard with a winter-spring offensive, putting pressure on the population, reviving the Viet Cong, and forcing American casualties. If it took all American troops still in Vietnam to contain a serious assault, this could delay 1970 withdrawals.

The classic alternative available to the North Vietnamese is to wait, gambling all on a conventional thrust across the borders when they feel that manageable numbers of Americans remain.

Unlocking the countryside from the Viet Cong's grip is not being achieved by miracles. U.S. planners admit that standards sought in past pacification programs have been drastically lowered.

"Today the hearts and minds are only an incidental aspect, not an over-riding one," according to one of the planners. He refers to so-called slogan about the primary need to win over the hearts and minds of the South Vietnamese people.

"The watchword is security —enough armed men to stand guard and overwhelm the Viet Cong.

"We decided we need security first, and hoped that the population would co-operate once we guaranteed safety," said one experienced Vietnamese official. "Security may be 10 per cent or 90 per cent of solving the whole problem, depending on the point of view, but we know now it is always the first 10 per cent or the first 90 per cent."

The precondition of all the rural breakthroughs was the same: regular Viet Cong and North Vietnamese battalions had to be destroyed or pushed away before the process got under way. And they have to be kept at arm's length forever after.

Some new factors have emerged. One, the mood and attitude of the population cannot be statistically measured but it can be felt. The people seem to think the worst days are over, that the terrible slaughter and destruction of past years will never be repeated.

Feelings of hopelessness and defeat once pervaded the millions who vegetated in refugee camps and in slums at the edges of the cities and army bases. These feelings are lifting.

The big war has receded for most people, back to the jungles and swamps whence it emerged in 1962. There is less shooting, less noise. The guerrilla who mines a road, the terrorist assassin, the Viet Cong tax collector still concern people but the threat is minimal compared to the total war of other years.

Politics and war beyond the pain-fringed horizon do not concern the peasant as he toils to refill bomb craters and rebuild paddy dikes. Says one American aid official in the countryside:

"The people are indifferent as to who is in the central government in Saigon. They don't care who sits on top. They want to be left alone to farm."

The farmer is unaware that the North, Vietnamese seem to be assembling greater numbers of forces than ever before, with better weapons.

The size of Hanoi's effort now is shown only in intelligence reports, or becomes apparent to reconnaissance patrols that probe across the borders. The reports indicate that the North Vietnamese are perfecting their military supply bases.

"They have learned a lot war from supply bases all alone from us," observed a U.S. intelligence officer.

While the Americans conduct the Vietnamese coast, the North Vietnamese now are set up in underground mountain caverns in Laos down to openly-occupied bases in Cambodia.

A functioning North Vietnamese supply and storage system worries American strategists more than the appearance of some new infantry units in the northern border zone. It indicates a permanent presence.

It is primarily this threat that makes U.S. military men reluctant to withdraw from Vietnam more swiftly.

The Americans are not concerned if the Vietnamese lose a few battles along the remote borders. What worries them is that Hanoi might break through the defensive shield and spill over populated lowlands, as they did in the Tet offensive of 1968.

"If you have to fight in the populated areas the battle is already half lost," a senior American officer observes. Such fighting could repeat the cycle of destruction and the uprooting of millions. It could lead to a resurgence of the Viet Cong, who in most areas have taken to the hills or lie dormant in villages.

The high casualty battles of 1969 were fought along the defensive shield at the border. Because of the impact of American casualties, the tendency has been to put Vietnamese infantrymen up front to bear the brunt of the bloodletting in several areas. More American units intend to step back in 1970.

Weekly Vietnamese casualties have risen since this practice began; American casualties have dropped.

Soldiers and generals understand now that Vietnamization means much more than substituting Vietnamese for American soldiers, recruiting new battalions, and passing out guns.

"What we are doing is changing them from a sort of peacetime structure to a wartime structure, and they are having growing pains," commented Lt.-Gen. Julian Ewell, commander of the Field Forces 2nd Corps region around Saigon.

A longtime observer commented: "The Vietnamese military for years acted like an occupation army in their own country as alien to the needs of the population as foreigners."

This was one of the reasons the population stood aloof and even hostile to the Saigon government and its army. The advent of American ground troops often sharpened this antagonism.

Hundreds of thousands of local militiamen, recruited over the years, were treated as second-rate soldiers, underpaid, inadequately armed, often abandoned or even ignored when wounded.

Today the Americans are giving the same attention and support to all Vietnamese men in uniform. The U.S. high command will commit first-rate American infantry battalions to help village defenders. The hope is to raise standards so all are able and ready to do the job required.

Billy Graham Speaks At Rock Music Rally

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, drawing a reception ranging from applause to a few boos and obscenities, told young people attending a rock music festival Sunday to "drop out of your present lives and turn to the power of God."

Graham also addressed some 2,500 young people scattered about a straw-filled field.

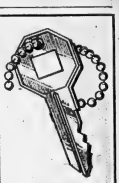
The crowd—about equally divided between boys and girls—sat or reclined on blankets as Graham spoke. Some listened intently, some talked among themselves, a few shouted jeers and obscenities, and some slept, said.

Graham appeared at 11 a.m. during a lull in the music at the 12-hour festival at a motor speedway at the edge of the Everglades.

Graham told his audience that they represented "a wonderfully challenging generation." He said he had listened to the music being played at the festival and found it mirrored the attitudes of those in attendance.

"It reflects your rejection of the establishment and things that are material," he said. "It's an indication of your protest."

Graham spoke for about 20 minutes. When he finished he asked those interested in getting more information about Christ to gather in front of a tent where several aides gave out literature. About 25 youths answered over. The tent was to be open all day.



Graham said he sometimes attends rock fests and love-ins in disguise to learn what today's young people think and do.

"I sometimes put on a false moustache and a beard," he said.

"I think this is a generation of tremendous young people," he said. "Many of them are deeply religious. . . . You can find it in the music if you listen hard enough."

The evangelist said his stage appearances at Hollywood hampered him somewhat, however.

"I'd rather have been down there among them," Graham said. "This is the way I like to do it so I can really get the feel of the situation."

Majority Increased

Japanese Premier Returned by Voters

TOKYO (Reuters) — Premier Eisaku Sato today found himself with a record parliamentary majority due more to voter apathy than to support for pro-Western policies of his Liberal Democratic party.

The LDP will have a commanding 288 seats in the new 486-seat lower house, 16 more than in the outgoing legislature, plus the promised support of 12 independents.

But despite the increase in seats, ensuring a third term for the 69-year-old premier, the LDP's popular vote in fact declined.

As newspaper editorial warned today, the LDP should not take its increased majority as a sign that the Japanese people as a whole approve the party's policies advocating close ties with the United States and renewal of the U.S.-Japanese security pact in June.

With almost one-third of the eligible voters staying away from the polls, the LDP's share of the vote dropped to 47.61 per cent from 48.80 per cent in the 1967 election.

The remaining votes were more evenly spread over the four opposition groups than ever before, with the once proud Socialists suffering a heavy defeat. The LDP opposition is realigned but more fragmented than ever before.

The Socialists, who once controlled one-third of the legislature's seats, won only 90 seats compared with 135 in 1967 and saw their popular vote decline to 21.44 from 27.89 per cent.

Socialist leaders met today to discuss the defeat and agreed to call a national convention next month in an attempt to produce a successful facelift.

Internal feuds, too close reliance on ties with labor unions and total concentration on ideology were all blamed for the party losing touch with the electorate.

The big enigma remained the Komeito (clean government party), political wing of the militant Buddhist Soka Gakkai sect.

After winning 25 seats at its first attempt in 1967, the Komeito increased its representation to 47, also pushing its popular vote to 10.81 from 5.36 per cent.

Most of the votes were presumed to have come from Soka Gakkai faithful, and observers said while the Komeito probably would continue to grow it was too early to say if it would ever have mass appeal to become an alternative government.

The Communist party also had reason to be pleased, increasing its representation to 14 from four.

It was the first time in 20 years that the Communists, who follow a party line independent of Moscow and Peking, had reached two digit figures.

The new house also will have 31 Democratic Socialist party representatives and 16 Independents.

Lack of an alternative to the government was one of the reasons Sato triumphed.

Despite dissatisfaction over poor housing, rising prices, university chaos and lack of public utilities, many Japanese voted for the status quo because of the country's unprecedented prosperity during the last couple of years.

Billionaire Says He Was Silent Too Long

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — When he was a boy in Texarkana, Tex., H. Ross Perot earned money by delivering newspapers on horseback.

Now a billionaire, the 39-year-old computer magnate is spending money trying to deliver supplies to United States prisoners-of-war in North Vietnam by jet plane.

The son of a cotton broker, Perot came to public attention early in November when he formed and funded United We Stand, a group that took out advertisements urging support of President Nixon's vietnam policy. He spent $1,000,000 for newspaper and television advertisements.

Earlier this month, he filled two planes with medicine, food and other supplies and flew one to the Far East for distribution to the 1,400 U.S. prisoners-of-war. Hanoi has not permitted him to fly the goods directly to North Vietnam, but Perot says he'll keep trying to get them to the prisoners. A second plane is on the U.S. West Coast, ready to take off. Associates say the planes and supplies cost him $200,000.

In addition, on Christmas Day, Perot had 38 women and 94 children flown to Paris to seek information from the North Vietnamese delegation to the peace talks about their husbands and fathers.

Perot, a former eagle scout, also has given $1,000,000 to a boy scout council working to enrol minority group members and spent $2,400,000 to support a school program for young children in minority areas.

A short, wiry man with a crewcut, Perot speaks with intensity and makes decisions quickly.

He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1957 and served in the Navy the required four years. He was a division officer and assistant navigator on the destroyer Segourney and the carrier Leyte and left active service as a lieutenant to work for International Business Machines.

Today, he heads his own company, Electronic Data Systems, Inc., He owns 11,000,000 shares in the firm. The shares were quoted over the counter last week at $151 each.

His meteoric rise in the computer field is based on a simple observation he once made: "Most businessmen don't need a computer itself but merely the intelligent use of a computer."

Electronics Data Systems designs, installs and operates computers for medium and large corporations.

In an interview, he once said: "I learned business from my father and all the jobs I had as a boy. I learned leadership and management in the navy and the computer business with I.B.M. I guess that's all I really needed."

Until recently, Perot stayed out of the public spotlight.

Associates say they do not know of his taking any active part in politics. He contributed to the 1968 presidential campaigns of both Richard M. Nixon and Hubert H. Humphrey.

His reason for his projects:

"Most of us have remained silent on basic issues too long, and its now time for all Americans to make their opinions known."

Filipino Troops Said Mercenaries

MANILA (AP) — Anti-American demonstrators attacked a limousine carrying U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and his wife as they arrived for a reception at the U.S. embassy tonight for Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew.

Driven away from the car by riot police, the crowd of more than 150 young leftists continued to march up and down with placards, apparently awaiting the arrival of Agnew and his wife.

Booing and shouting, the demonstrators surrounded Byroade's car and banged on it with their signs and fists. Several demonstrators jumped in front of the car, bringing it to a halt.

More than 200 helmeted police forced the demonstrators back and at least two tear gas grenades were thrown. The car drove into the embassy compound.

The demonstrators handed out a leaflet saying they were members of the Free Philippine Youth Union and the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation, which is one of the more vocal opponents of U.S. policy in Vietnam.

Agnew arrived in Manila today amid a new furore over American aid to Filipino troops in Vietnam.

Filipino Senator Salvador H. Laurel, just back from a trip to Washington, said Senator J. William Fulbright was correct in implying that the 2,200 Filipino non-combat troops sent to Vietnam were virtually "mercenaries" because the United States allegedly paid $45,000,000 for their services.

Defence Secretary Ernesto S. Mata accused Laurel of "an insult of the highest calibre on his own people."

The last of the Filipino troops came home last month.

The charges by Fulbright, chairman of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee, and their implications for President Nixon's new "Asia doctrine" of letting the Asians fight their own wars with American equipment, are likely to come up for discussion when Agnew talks with President Ferdinand E. Marcos during his three-day visit.

Agnew was threatened with anti-American demonstrations by radical student and labor groups opposing U.S. policy in Vietnam. The U.S. embassy was heavily guarded by police, and a wide area around the embassy entrance was roped off.

The Manila Chronicle reported that an anti-riot force of 600 police and troops had been assembled for duty during the vice-president's visit. He is representing the United States at the second inauguration of Marcos on Tuesday.

Agnew told reporters aboard his plane as they crossed the Pacific that the Nixon administration will not put pressure on South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to broaden the base of his government any faster than he already is doing.

"We think that he has made amazing progress under a very difficult set of circumstances and that he continues to progress and to exhibit a desire to broaden his government," Agnew said.

The vice-president also said a briefing he received in Honolulu Saturday from Admiral John S. McCain Jr., U.S. commander in the Pacific, was "more optimistic, quite a bit more optimistic" than a briefing he received in Honolulu last May. He said the Vietnamization program of replacing U.S. combat troops with South Vietnamese forces "is going very well, very well, indeed."

Agnew is expected to make a one-day trip to Vietnam on New Year's Day although this is not listed on the schedule.

Dublin Police Cancel Leave

DUBLIN (AP) — A bomb exploded Sunday outside Dublin central detective bureau and security measures were ordered all over the Irish Republic to guard against terrorist attacks blamed on Protestant extremists from Northern Ireland.

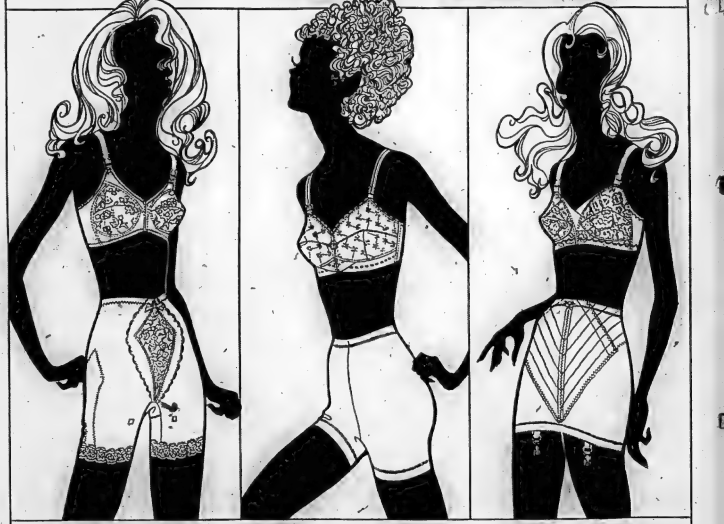
Police felt the blast was meant to blow up the nearby telephone exchange headquarters and linked it to bombing that damaged the Daniel O'Connell monument Friday.

There have been three other bombings in the republic since Protestant-Roman Catholic rioting in Northern Ireland in August.

Forces from the Irish Army were called out to help police guard public buildings, installations and monuments. All police leaves were cancelled.

Aer Lingus, the Irish airline, ordered security guards at Dublin, Cork and Shannon airports placed on a 24-hour alert.

Army patrols were mounted along the border with Northern Ireland and at the Drogheda viaduct, a link on the Dublin-Belfast railway.



Police said they believed the last two bombs were the work of the Ulster Volunteer Force, an underground group of Protestants, which claimed it was responsible for three earlier blasts.

Special security precautions have been in force in the republic since Friday when the attempt was made to destroy the O'Connell monument in the heart of Dublin. O'Connell is known to Irish Roman Catholics as "the Liberator" for leading the successful campaign for Catholic emancipation in the early 19th century.

Noise Pollution Creates Health Hazard

BOSTON (AP) — Health scientists sounded a word of advice Sunday to our noisy world: Hush.

Too much noise apparently is taking a heavy toll of human health. It really is a pollution as dangerous as smog or dirty water, they declared.

The health costs may well include heart attacks, high blood pressure, damage to unborn babies, disorders of nerves and glands, irritability, tensions, not to mention hearing losses, the specialists told a special symposium of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The louder and more frequent the exposure to noise, the worse the harm may be, they said, pointing to a general increase in the noise level in modern life, plus special loud sounds such as sonic booms from jet planes and rock 'n' roll music.

Thunderstorms intrigued Dr. Mary F. Lockett, pharmacologist at the University of Western Australia. She noticed that laboratory rats became ill after thunderstorms.

Dr. Lockett made recordings of the thunderclaps, playing them at different intensities to her rat audience. She said she discovered the noise was stimulating a master gland, the pituitary, to excrete more of a hormone, oxytocin, that stimulates the body to excrete water and salt.

Now she wonders whether noise and loud sounds have similar effects upon human glands?

Dr. Chauncey D. Leake of the University of California at San Francisco, suggested the stress from loud noise could affect the nervous system or glands of a pregnant woman so that her unborn baby is affected, too, by stress chemicals or hormones that pass from her bloodstream through the placenta to the baby.

Could this, Dr. Leake wonders, be a cause of some instances of defects or mental retardation in infants?

Dr. Samuel Rosen of Mount Sinai Hospital New York City, said loud sounds can make tiny blood vessels contract, and that repeated exposure lengthens the time it takes for them to relax again. So a noisy life might lead to injury to arteries, and to an increase in fatty materials in the bloodstream that makes arteries clog up in the heart or brain, he said.

Even for people who work in noisy places," you may forgive or forget it, but your arteries never will," Dr. Rosen said.

He called for a "world movement for effective control of noise pollution."

It's time to quiet down the noise, and find out about the human effects, said Dr. Bruce L. Welch of Baltimore, Md., chairman of the symposium.

Chemical Treatment Fights Leukemia

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Freshly analysed evidence suggests that a relatively new form of chemical treatment may give appreciable numbers of children stricken by leukemia a normal life expectancy despite the disease.

This was reported by Dr. C. Gordon Zubrod of the National Cancer Institute in an interview. Zubrod warned against over-enthusiasm, however.

Surveying other recent progress against leukemia, Zubrod said patients under treatment at major medical centres may now be expected to live at least three years, compared with almost certain death within four months only 20 years ago.

In addition, he said, the developments suggest new concepts for possibly attacking the truly major cancer killers, such as breast, lung and colon-rectum malignancies.

Acute leukemia strikes people of all ages and is the leading fatal disease of childhood. There are nearly 18,000 new cases yearly in the United States alone, and it still kills about 2,000 American children each year.

But the more prevalent cancers such as breast and lung constitute about 81 per cent of all malignancies. And they will largely elude science.

Among the new concepts is a daring one—an admitted long shot not yet tested even in animals and possibly too dangerous for human trials.

The technique would involve intentionally speeding up the growth of breast cancers, and other slow-going solid tumors, to make them more vulnerable to anti-cancer drugs.

These drugs now are largely limited to attacking fast-growing non-solid cancers such as leukemia—a blood-cancer affecting the body generally.

Canadian Sweeps Winners Exhibit Varied Reactions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians from coast to coast were winners in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstake Saturday and their reactions were as varied as their addresses.

Vancouver salesman Victor Kanuka, winner of a $130,000 first prize, said that at 25 he just might become the youngest retired salesman in British Columbia.

J. E. W. Mowhing, who works in the kitchen of a Chinese restaurant, said in Truro, N.S., that he would use part of his $52,000 second prize to visit Canton in China.

And, appropriately, one of the winners was named Patrick McNamara, 42. The $26,000 he won on the third-place horse will help pay for a visit from his Windsor, Ont., home to his mother in Port Hood, on Nova Scotia's Cape Breton Island.

The Irish Sweeps Hurdles run at the Fairyhouse track near Dublin was won by Normandy, on which four Canadians held tickets worth $130,000. Second-place Orient War had three Canadian tickets worth $52,000 each and there were three Canadian tickets worth $26,000 each on third-place Persian War, the favorite.

Besides the 16 who held tickets on the top three horses, there were 199 Canadians who had their tickets drawn on other horses entered for the race. Those who held tickets on non-winners get about $1,000 each, for a total Canadian take of about $353,000.

Winners listed by sweepstakes officials in Dublin included:

Normandy—PNH 70385, R. Nelson, 316 Erie St., Port Arthur.

Persian War—PQK 67540, P. McNamara, 3161 Dandurand, Windsor, Ont.

In a statement sure to ring a bell with thousands of Canadian husbands in the week after Christmas, Mr. McNamara said in Windsor, Ont.:

"The wife's got it spent already."

He planned to save most of his $26,000 third-place prize for the education of his five children.

His wife, Rita, said she had aged 100 years since they heard they held a ticket on the favorite, Persian War.

Robert Nelson, 41, a constable in Port Arthur with the Lakehead harbor police, said that when he heard the news of his $130,000 win on Normandy he had to drive his car around the block to calm down.

"I'm pretty shook up right now," he said in an interview. "I've bought tickets for years and years."

Part of his money will go for a family trip to Disneyland in California.

People Won't Be Used

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As everyone knows, if you are looking at a large picture, you have to step back a few paces to see what is actually going on. If you're too close to it, the detail overwhelms you, and the total pattern of the picture cannot be grasped.

I suggest that we step back a few paces from the current scene of unrest, of dissent and defiance, and confrontation and protest. When we do — when we acquire a little emotional distance — I think we will find a common thread running through the whole picture.

Even though the specific issues seem to be varied — the race question, or the war question, or the college question, or the civil rights question — the overall pattern is the same in all of them: a refusal to be manipulated by unresponsive authority.

Millions of people are sick and tired of being told what to do and not being told the reasons why; of being ordered to behave and react in a certain way, without being given options; of being used for ulterior purposes that are not their own, and over which they have had no control. They are demanding a little more of the "individualism" we preach ardently, but rarely put into practice.

This, on the whole, and in the long run, is a good thing. It is an intensely American thing. It is a basically democratic thing. It is an attitude many of us seem to have forgotten in this age of conformity, of uniformity, of blind compliance with rules and regulations made up for the sake of people who enforce them, more than for the sake of the people who have to live by them.

There are bound to be excesses and extravagances in such a movement. Malcontents will take advantage of the unrest, as they have in some colleges, where the drive to get a better education has been subverted into a blindly insane attack on intellectual and academic values. The price we pay for our repression in the past is wild license masquerading as "freedom." One excess always breeds the opposite excess.

But, when the frenzy dies away and the dust settles, I am persuaded we shall find our nation a better place for it. Authority will become more responsive to public needs and individual concerns. The manipulators will be forced to put people ahead of power and position and profit. Politics will be shaped in the neighborhoods more than in city halls. "Power to the people," after all, is a slogan of the Founding Fathers, which inspired the U.S.' independence.

We are too close to the picture right now to see it clearly. But if we handle the dissent intelligently, it will turn out well in the end.

Auto-makers Hope to Match Volkeswagen

DETROIT (AP) — United States auto-makers will be driving headlong into the minicar age during the 1970s. The target is a car about the size of a Volkswagen, priced under $2,000 and capable of gas mileage in the 25-mile-a-gallon range.

Reacting in part to the pressures of inflation, dips in the economy, foreign imports and what they believe to be the consumer's developing taste for a smaller, cheaper car, they are about to produce a new batch of automobiles that are, say sources in the industry, smaller and cheaper than present U.S. models.

These cars will range from 181 inches in length—two inches longer than the Volkswagen Beetle — to about 180 inches.

The U.S. prices will not be cheaper generally than the competitive foreign makes. However, the manufacturers hope to use such selling points as greater power and higher top speeds, roomier interior and wider service opportunities.

Ford and American Motors are already out with new small cars, the Maverick and the Hornet. But Ford is planning another, still smaller, and American Motors says it will market a new minicar every six months for three years.

The AMC Gremlin is expected on the market in the spring or earlier. It will be the smallest of the new cars at 161 inches, it appears now, and will resemble a little station wagon, perhaps with a roof luggage rack and a rear door.

The new Ford is expected to be slightly longer and lower than the Volkswagen, its styling to have an Italian flavor with something of a bulbous rear-end treatment. Officially, Ford does not even acknowledge a minicar is in the works.

"We have no comment on future product plans," a spokesman said during the weekend. However the general plans for the car are common knechroon talk at Ford.

The Maverick, a 179-inch-long car, came out in April. American Motors followed in the fall with the Hornet, about the same size. The basic Maverick was advertised at $1,995 and the Hornet at $1,994. However, taxes, dealer preparation, transportation and other costs drove the U.S. price above $2,000 in each case.

A Volkwagen without extras sells here for $1,885. Other cuts in the import field, which currently accounts for about 10 per cent of all new-car sales in the United States, include a Toyota for a basic selling price of $1,896, Renault $1,725, Datsun for $1,996, Fiat for $1,597.

Chevrolet's minicar—the XP897 at this point—will be built at a new plant in Lordstown, Ohio. GM is hoping for increased manufacturing efficiency, employing the latest ideas in automation to assemble 100 of the minicars an hour, nearly double the speed at an ordinary GM assembly plant.

Chevrolet General Manager John Z. DeLorean said the new little Chevy will be offered in more than one model. GM has developed a new four-cylinder aluminum engine for its minicar, but the other manufacturers are adapting existing power plants.

Chrysler's plans are not complete but insiders say foreign-made components will probably be used in its minicar. Chrysler is affiliated with Rootes and Simca, foreign producers, and may use their engines or transmissions. The car will not be ready until 1971.

Drug Tears 'Overcoats' Off Virus

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States government scientists reported Saturday the discovery of a possible breakthrough toward unmasking certain viral diseases by chemically tearing holes in the protective "overcoats" of developing viruses.

The suggested lead comes from research with a drug called rifampicin, an antibiotic widely used against such bacterial illnesses as tuberculosis, leprosy and staphylococcal infections, and recently found to be effective also for certain viruses, at least in test-tube trials.

The research led to the discovery of the precise, and unexpected, way in which the drug works against viruses—namely by blocking the assembly of new-born virus particles into mature viruses capable of prolonging a given infection. That is, the blocking prevents further multiplication of the original viruses.

A key to this blocking action is the apparent ability of the drug to prevent the development of intact membranes, or "overcoats," that ordinarily constitute the outer framework of a full-blown virus.

In the new experiments, reported by scientists of the National Institute of Health, the membranes that formed around potential viral ingredients were shown to be irregular and rent with gaping holes.

Experimental School Patterned on Report

TORONTO (CP) — A group of Toronto parents is working to establish an experimental elementary school along the lines suggested by the Hall-Dennis report on education.

Columbing engineer Morden Yolles says the members hope to present preliminary proposals to school trustees by the end of January, and will ask for public financing for the project.

The group is getting ideas for the project both from the Hall-Dennis report and from a private experimental school which has been operating for the last three months in a church in the suburb of Thornhill.

The Hall-Dennis report, issued in 1968, proposed a child-centered system of learning by discovery rather than by rote and the downgrading of the grade system in favor of individual progress.

The private school, called Thornwood, was created by Leon Loubser, 31, a consultant to the North York board of education. Thornwood's nine pupils are free of regimented classroom teaching and allowed to learn disciplines and skills through their experience of real life—with the teacher providing guidance and encouragement.

Nutcracker an Exercise In Fantasy and Delight

TORONTO (Special). — The performance of the Nutcracker Suite" — an exercise in both fantasy and delight — has taken a permanent place among the reasons why Christmas is so special.

Danced to the third and last of Tchaikowsky's ballet scores, the Nutcracker has become a standard part of the repertoire of many ballet companies, especially appropriate as a Christmas production.

This feeling is expressed pointedly as the National Ballet Company opened its Christmas Season at the O'Keefe Centre, from Dec. 26 to Jan. 3, to present the Nutcracker.

The principals in this story of a dream adventure are the Sugar Plum Fairy and the Nutcracker Prince.

For each of the 12 performances, the National Ballet changes the two lead dancers, enticing the audience with the promise of constant vitality and innovation.

The weather decided to dispute this enticement as Suzanne Farrell, to dance as the Sugar Plum Fairy, kept a 48-hour vigil at the snowbound Kennedy Airport.

When she did finally arrive in Toronto by train 18 hours later, she was not in ballet condition for her performance Saturday night.

However, the prima guest artist will dance the Dec. 31 matinee and a January 3rd evening performance with Hazaros Surmejan as the Nutcracker Prince.

Toronto critics comments diagnosed the rendition of the performance cautiously.

Remember, they said, this production has been done and redone over the past several years.

Carefully terming the performance of the company as "ballet, carefully and occasionally brilliantly done", reviewers were not unanimous in their judgment of Celia Franca's choreography.

Calling the dancing for Miss Franca's version "coo fined and earthbound", the main complaint appeared to be that her choreography never gained momentum, and thus never reached a climax.

On the other hand, one critic gave the company a bouquet of praise for throwing all its energy into its Christmas greeting, and accomplishing an "artistic distinction," saying pointedly this was an experience offered far too infrequently.

Choreographer Franca has tailored the Nutcracker for her company—to reflect her dancers at their best.

From all appearance, the company has the raw materials for success.

However, one of the problems appears to be Miss Franca's decision to engage outside talents, and attempt to squeeze her dancers into another image — something that has never, nor will ever, work.

Concluded one critic, "The Nutcracker proves that Miss Franca has both the ability and the company. Let us hope she will slim her repertoire and uses her dancers as brilliantly as this Christmas season."

A large measure of the adverse criticism seemed to stem from the costumes and sets of Eugen Rose, which, declared one critic, contained "no color or sparkle, with few fairytale qualities."

But for the children, the Nutcracker will remain a beautiful dream come true, full of magic and color.

It is one performance the little ones should not miss. Or adults, for that matter.

Performances will be held at the O'Keefe Centre until Jan. 3.

Networks Review News Events of 69

NEW YORK (AP) — The television networks were busy during the weekend wrapping up some 1969 business and getting some projects started for the new year.

CBS's top commentators gathered Friday night for an informal review of trends, moods and highlights of the passing decade. NBC had its gathering Sunday night with some of its staff men, mostly those based in Washington, assessing events of the recent past in terms of their future impact. Later in the evening, NBC broadcast another actuality program, The Year of the Mayors, dealing with the crises in U.S. cities.

CBS on Saturday night broadcast the first segment of an interview last September with Lyndon B. Johnson. Earlier in the day NBC broadcast Christopher Discovers America, the first of its American Rainbow series of special programs for children.

The annual year-end news wrap-ups are particularly interesting because, while slightly Olympian in tone, the correspondents present lucid ideas on where we have been and where we are going.

The "white paper" program on campus violence to interpret their hard times in 1969, relating them to problems in cities from Los Angeles and Cleveland to New York in terms of deepening racial and class division. It was a fair if brief summary of one aspect of a troubled situation.

The news in Walter Cronkite's three-month-old interview with former president Johnson was made public before the broadcast. The program, however, was highly rewarding: A closeup of the man the country rarely saw when Lyndon Johnson made his formal presidential speeches. Here he spoke freely and spontaneously. He told of his feelings of inadequacy—"I always thought every job was too big for me"—of his friends and his wife.

Gasoline Is Reliable Fuel But It Can Be Treacherous

By RAY STAPLEY

First of Two Parts

One of the most impressive sights I have ever seen is the assembly of a car from start to finish. It is a marvel of technology and engineering skill, but even so the vehicle is unable to make a move until a couple of gallons of fuel are poured into the tank.

Described by the dictionary as a low-boiling fraction of crude petroleum consisting of a variety of hydrocarbons, gasoline is accepted as the most efficient and economical fuel for the automobile. Properly handled, it is a safe and reliable aid. But gasoline has a treacherous and deadly side!

I know a woman who poured two gallons of gasoline into her washing machine, dropped in a bundle of clothing and turned on the switch. There was a violent explosion followed by a searing fire. She was rescued, but not before suffering first-degree burns to 60 per cent of her body.

It surprises me how many mechanics treat gasoline as though it were as safe as water. Some time ago, after greasing up the car, I was driving along a road under construction — all washboard and potholes. There was a loud scraping noise and I thought my tail pipe must have dropped down.

I stopped and found the gasoline tank had dropped off and was being dragged along under the car by the gas line. I don't know why it didn't burst into flames, the tank was drenched in gasoline and there must have been thousands of sparks caused by the tank scraping on the gravel.

A passing motorist sent a tow truck from the nearest town and when it arrived, the driver disconnected the gas line and dragged the tank out. He was about to lift it onto the back of his truck — which was oozing heat and smoke from its tailpipe — when I humbly suggested that he first dump the gasoline into the sand on the side of the road where it would safely evaporate.

"Heck no," he said, "This gas costs money." He set the tank down on the worn wooden floor of the truck and the gas began seeping down all over the hot exhaust system.

By this time my nerves were more than a little edgy. I knew the small fire extinguisher in my car would be useless if this thing went up, but the truck pushed me into town with, amazingly, no explosion.

Examination at a garage showed that hidden supports holding my gas tank straps had corroded, and the combination of the tank heavily loaded with gas and my car bouncing along the rough road had caused the straps to tear away.

Assuring me that he would have me on the road again in an hour or so, the mechanic dragged a 25 gallon drum from the gas pump island. Clearly printed on the drum were the words, "Empty ash trays here". He upended the drum, gave the inside a quick swipe with a rag (didn't want to dirty up my valuable gas, I guess) and proceeded to drain the gas from my tank into it. Then he left the drum uncovered, right out in the open.

When he began to re-install the tank, I prowled around the garage looking for something to cover the exposed fuel. I was terrified somebody might follow the instructions on the drum and dump an ash tray with a live butt into it. I could not find a thing, so I decided a restaurant about two blocks away would be the safest place to wait.

I sat in the restaurant and meditated on the fact that just a few days earlier I had read about a man who had been killed in that same district when a chance spark ignited gasoline which had seeped into his service station basement.

I went back to the garage an hour later hoping it would be all over — one way or another. But, unfortunately, they were just about to pour the gas back into the tank. They had the 25 gallon drum perched on top of a stepladder with a broken leg and both mechanics were smoking. They casually asked me to hold the ladder steady while they poured the gas into the tank.

Some strange hypnosis caused me to step forward and gingerly take hold of the ladder.

One of the mechanics put the hose in his mouth and drew on it and the gas began to flow — all over him and the floor. By the time he had the stream directed into the tank, a good pint of fuel was washing around under the car and he himself was a potential living torch. Finally the job was completed and I hit the road.

Hope Dims For Twenty Sailors

HONOLULU (AP) — Mounting waves and rising winds dimmed rescue hope today for 20 seamen who abandoned the U.S. munitions ship Badger State before an explosion tore a hole in her right side some 1,500 miles northwest of Hawaii.

The 39-man crew left the bomb-laden vessel, bound for Vietnam, Friday after the skipper, Charles Wilson, radioed that the cargo had broken loose in the holds. The blast came 70 minutes later. Cause of the explosion was not known.

Fourteen men, including the skipper, were rescued by the Greek freighter Khian Star Friday and were en route to Yokohama, Japan. The Khian Star ended its search for other survivors Saturday because of a fuel shortage.

Dental Experts See Chance To Eliminate Decay of Teeth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dental scientists report they see possibilities of virtually eliminating tooth decay within the next decade. Their hopes are based on relatively recent evidence strengthening theories that dental decay is an infectious germ-caused disease — just like the common cold.

The U.S. public health service believes a combination of direct treatment — including use of a chemical enzyme to block the action of the bacteria — is the more promising approach.

The U.S. Navy and private researchers in the United States and abroad are trying to develop a vaccine or some other means of preventing the growth of bacteria as distinguished from trying to outwit them by treatment techniques.

The navy has a special reason for trying to perfect tooth decay prevention.

Whereas civilians have ready access to dentists when they have tooth problems, navy men on extended, isolation type duty — such as service aboard nuclear submarines or in the Antarctic — lack such services. There's no room for a dentist on such assignments, so a decayed tooth can present a real problem.

It's equally obvious that if manned spaceflight to distant planets is undertaken — requiring years of travel prevention of tooth decay would be an urgent requirement, lest painful toothaches jeopardize a mission.

The effort to halt or prevent tooth decay is motivated by such statistics as these:

—Dental decay is the most common physical defect among children and adolescents, and affects up to 98 per cent of the population.

—There are currently an estimated 800,000,000 unfilled decayed teeth — known technically as caries — in the U.S. population. The average child, on reaching school age, has three decayed teeth; the average 15-year-old has 11 such teeth.

Dr. Seymour J. Kreshover, director of the public health service's National Institute of Dental Research, says:

"It is our belief that if a concerted effort is initiated now, it should be possible to make dental decay almost completely preventable within the next decade.

"This contention is based on laboratory evidence that dental caries is an infectious disease, resulting from a characteristic group of bacteria that reside on the teeth. These bacteria, the evidence indicates, cause the fermentation of carbohydrates in the diet — thereby producing harmful acids and enzymes that destroy the teeth."

Kreshover said one promising research approach results from the finding that an enzyme — called dextranase — if applied to the teeth, can remove and prevent formation of the dextranase-containing bacterial masses known as plaque, at least in animals.

Limited pilot studies in humans appear to confirm this, but it is not yet definitely known whether dextranase can actually prevent tooth decay in humans.

What about the quest for a vaccine against tooth decay — either one taken by mouth, or one requiring injection?

Capt. Gordon H. Rovelstad of the navy's bureau of medicine and surgery in Washington says it's possible now to develop a vaccine against streptococcus mutans, believed to be the chief bacterial villain in the tooth decay picture.

Indeed, British dental researchers reported early this year that a vaccine made of live strep germs isolated from a decayed tooth in a human sharply reduced tooth decay in three monkeys, compared with unvaccinated animals.

But there's a drawback to present use of such a vaccine in humans. Live strep germs, and possibly even killed ones, might stimulate the formation of antibodies which could damage the heart — specifically, in the form of rheumatic fever.

The Last Days of Christmas

Christmas is less than a week gone, but already the season's adornments are being consigned as community litter. Helping out at Belleville city dump, 12-year-old Steven Rodgers pitches Christmas trees, unloaded with rubbish by local householders preparing for a new year.

Haifa Awaits Truant Ships

HAIFA (CP) — A heavy overcast shrouded the eastern Mediterranean today as the five mystery gunboats from France advanced through wind-whipped seas toward Israel's chief port.

Israeli maritime experts said the boats were still at least a full day out of Haifa. One source said they probably were delayed by rough weather and slower escorts from the Israeli Navy.

The low clouds and high winds were expected to hamper any attempt by Egyptian planes to intercept the boats. They slipped out of Cherbourg about 3 a.m. Christmas Day in defience of the French embargo on arms for Israel.

Flu victims left their beds to join crowds scanning the sea for the gunboats which Israel has told France it will use for oil exploration.

Hundreds gathered on Mount Carmel abandoned their lookout as word flashed through the city that the boats now were expected Wednesday. It was also thought unlikely they would enter port in daylight.

An Italian trawler reported sighting the ships early Monday east of Sicily escorted by "numerous other Israeli ships." Greek police on the island of Crete said the convoy passed north of the island shortly after midnight Monday night.

The boats have a speed of up to 40 knots and are 147 feet long.

There was no evidence of any effort to intercept the gunboats, although Arab newspapers called on the French Navy to do so.

A U.S. spokesman denied an Italian Communist report that the U.S. 6th Fleet and perhaps units from other of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries were providing cover for the gunboats.

The mass circulation Maariv reported that an Israeli government has informed France that an Israeli company has obtained possession of the gunboats and will use them to hunt for oil.

The gunboat affair was to be the top item for discussion at the regular meeting of the French cabinet Wednesday, but reports from Paris said no announcement of concrete measures was expected until discussion of a government investigation to determine how the boats got away from Cherbourg.

The boats were part of a flotilla of 12 built for Israel. Seven got away from France before President de Gaulle embargoed arms shipments to Israel last Jan. 1, after the commando raid on the Beirut airport.

The $10,000,000 Israel had paid for the other five boats was returned, and the French government said the boats were then sold for the same amount to a Norwegian company for use in offshore oil drilling.

The Norwegian government said it knew nothing about the firm, Starboat and Weill S. A. Oil Shipping Services, which then was reported incorporated in Panama with a representative in Oslo.

The director of an Israeli shipping firm, Mioda Brenner of Maritime Fruit Carriers Ltd., said in Oslo Monday night that his company owns the majority of shares in Starboat and Weill. He asserted that the boats would be used as supply ships for oil drilling off the Israeli coast and added that he might return them to France if the "international law" continues.

It is presumed the boats have been piloted by Israeli seamen, who disappeared from Cherbourg at the same time as the boats.

The French government is attempting to remain calm about the affair and its immediate aim is to collect all the details of the boats' sale to the Starboat company.

The inquiry will also have to determine if any government officials played a role in the affair. Informed opinion in Paris suggested that the boat builders —Chantier de Construction Mecanique de Normandie—could not have sold the gunboats to

Hundreds of Asian Flu Victims Flood Into British Hospitals

LONDON (CP) — Hundreds of new victims of Asian flu were admitted to Britain's already crippled hospitals today and public health authorities said a peak of the epidemic was still in the offing.

Train, bus, postal, medical, police and firefighting services were disrupted by sick workers staying home, from the English Channel north to the Scottish Midlands. Only northern Scotland has so far been spared outbreaks of epidemic proportions.

The epidemic has peaked in some parts of the continent where the death rate has been high.

In Finland, the epidemic spreading northward from Europe, is expected to reach its peak next week, medical authorities reported.

France, Italy, Spain and West Germany all said it was dying away. But flu still raged in Yugoslavia where health authorities estimated more than 1,000 people had died.

In Denmark, doctors said the epidemic had yet to reach its height. About one-third of all Danish workers reported sick.

The Christmas holidays of hundreds of British homes already have been saddened by death, with fatalities mainly hitting the elderly and those suffering bronchial or asthmatic conditions.

Nearly 300 persons have died in Britain from the flu and complications in the first three weeks of December.

Worst hit were London and the industrial English Midlands but the red alert was up throughout England, Wales and southern Scotland. This meant there was room for admitting only emergency cases in crowded hospitals.

More than a dozen suburban trains had to be cancelled during the morning rush hour in the London areas because crews could not be found for them. Every line of the London subway system was hit and bus services had to be curtailed in many areas.

One of the most potentially dangerous aspects of the epidemic was the ravages in the ranks of the doctors and nurses. Some hospitals in London, southwest England and the Midlands reported between one-third and half of their nursing staffs was laid up. Whole wards had to be closed because of staff shortage.

Eaton Gives Formula For Convincing Hanoi

CLEVELAND (AP) — Industrialist Cyrus Eaton says withdrawal of 100,000 U.S. troops in 60 days and all the troops in 18 months would convince Hanoi President Nixon is seeking an end to the Vietnam war.

Eaton told a news conference Monday he based his judgment on eight days of talks and visits with the leaders of North Vietnam earlier this month.

The Canadian-born industrialist said once Hanoi was convinced of a U.S. desire for peace all the details—such as the release of prisoners—would be easily agreed upon.

Eaton, 86-year-old chairman of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, said he found the leaders of Hanoi in agreement that they wanted to end the war but were determined not to lose it.

He said all of the leaders he met assured him that North Vietnam had no intention of taking over the south or dominating it.

Eaton said W. Averell Harriman could have negotiated an end to the war at the Paris peace talks but was not granted the power to do so. Eaton did not elaborate on this.

Harriman's successor as chief U.S. negotiator, Henry Cabot Lodge, did not want to end the war, said Eaton, a native of Pugwash, N.S.

London Press Chief's Wife Kidnapped

LONDON (Reuters) — Police with tracker dogs mounted a kidnap hunt today for an Australian press chief's wife missing after an apparent raid on her home.

But they treated with caution a telephoned ransom demand for £1,000,000 ($2,600,000). "It was probably a cruel hoax," police said.

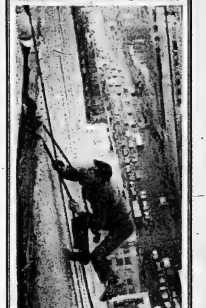
The missing woman is 55-year-old Muriel McKay, whose husband Alexander McKay is deputy chairman of The News of the World, the Sunday paper that claims the world's biggest circulation with more than 6,000,000.

McKay returned to his home in the London suburb of Wimbledon Monday night to find his wife missing. The front door was open, its lock damaged.

Inside, her handbag had been emptied on the floor, her jewellery was gone and the telephone was broken.

On the floor of the reception room was a broad-bladed knife, some string and a length of adhesive tape—signs that she might have been bound and gagged.

The ransom call to the house was answered by a policeman 15 minutes after news of Mrs. McKay's disappearance had been broadcast in a radio bulletin. "The man said he has Mrs. McKay and wanted a million pounds," police said.



Later a News of the World spokesman said a number of ransom calls had been made to the house, demanding varying sums of money. "We don't know how much credence to attach to any of them," he said, "but none has been ignored."

Police are checking into similarities between Mrs. McKay's disappearance and that of 33-year-old Rachel Jones, murdered after vanishing from her home less than a mile away in May.

At the Jones home, fires were left burning and the radio playing. Little had been taken.

Mrs. Jones's body was eventually found in a Scottish mountain hut, but the background to the case remains a mystery.

Climb for Life

Two Toronto window-cleaners dangled helplessly for two hours Monday until rescuers saved them from a possible 473-foot drop to the street below.

The two men who were not identified were trapped on a cradle used to clean windows when it jammed under an overhang.

After two hours, Harry Harrison, a maintenance worker, was lowered down on a rope. He tied a rope around each man's waist and they were hauled to safety.

Site of the near tragedy was the Simpson tower on Queen Street.

Red Cross Cuts Blood Allocation

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross has been forced to halve blood allocations to Metropolitan Toronto hospitals because of a decline in blood bank reserves, a Red Cross spokesman said Monday.

However, the restriction on blood supplies to hospitals has not resulted in postponement of any operations, the spokesman added.

Windsor Robber Is Slain

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An unidentified man was shot and killed by a city policeman late Monday following an armed robbery of a west-end jug milk store.

Police said today Constable Robert Boycott chased the man, fired two warning shots and then shot the man through the heart after the man aimed what appeared to be a revolver.

Police later identified it as a chrome-plated boy derringer.

Police said a man robbed Susan Barette, 18, the only cashier. When Constable Boycott challenged the robber, he opened his gun at Miss Barette's head then fled.

Police said the man apparently walked into the store around 10:25 p.m. as three other lone gunmen h, d done during the last two months at 7-11 Variety Stores in Windsor. In each case the gunman escaped with around $100 in cash.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Five years of bad cocoa crops in Ghana will probably mean smaller chocolate bars for Canadians, a number of chocolate bar makers said Monday. The shortage of cocoa beans has shot the price to more than 30 cents a pound from 13½ cents during the last four years.

Snowmobile Boom Boosted Christmas Sales Locally

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The rustle of gift-wrapping built to a boom across Canada in Christmas 1969 — with pleasant echoes for the Quinte area retail trade.

There are no statistics yet, but the Retail Council of Canada estimates Christmas shopping in Ontario is up about five per cent.

In Belleville, the Quinte trade hub, merchants also are still taking stock of the winter's biggest business snowball.

However, trade spokesmen agree, the volume of business was greater than ever.

And winter itself contributed much to the boom.

This is the year of the snowmobile, when Canadians scrapped tradition and took common phrases in their snowbound outdoors.

The Quinte area, with its easy access to rural landscapes and bush country, might well be a Canadian showcase of the snowmobile boom.

Christmas shopping in Belleville built to a peak in the last four days of the holiday.

"The retail standing is substantially ahead," confirmed Ben Corke, Downtown Business Association president today.

Mr. Corke agreed the sales volume was probably a record.

Douglas Shaw, president of the east end Belleville Plaza Merchants Association, held similar beliefs.

Christmas business showed "quite an increase," said Mr. Shaw.

However, the big push was not entirely unexpected. Business began gaining momentum in the latter half of 1969, he added.

The retail council supports this. Business, it predicts will show a five-to-six per cent increase over the whole year across Canada — up over the record $25.4 billion reported in 1968.

Mr. Corke also believed retailers in sporting goods centered a big slice of the buying boom.

Statistics on snowmobile registrations alone bear this out.

George Dixon, motor vehicle licence issuer in Belleville, believes there now are about 1,500 snow vehicles registered in the city area.

So great has been demand that licences have been sold out for the second time in a month.

Mr. Olsen says he has 50 applications on hand while perhaps another 100 inquiries have been telephoned to his office in recent days.

He expects more licence plates — but, even then, it may take some time to unplug the backlog. Orders for 8,200 licences have been filed with Queen's Park by bureaus across the province.

Robert Blaind, a veteran of the city's sporting goods trade, believes Christmas demand was "very, very good — in fact fantastic."

Contributing to the rosy scene is the fact that enjoyment of the sport only begins with purchase of a snowmobile.

Its participants must be fully equipped against the effects of speedy travel in a bleak environment.

The full outfit includes a hooded bed-to-neck winterized suit, goggles, boots, mitts and a helmet.

Purchases are multiplied by the number of people in each family purchasing a snowmobile.

The demand for such outfits still has not been satisfied but is "continuing" believes Mr. Blaind.

Ice Hasn't Bothered Ferry

Metis Makes Last Trip

PICTON — The bulk carrier, Metis, owned by the Canada Steamship Lines, paid her final visit of the year to the Lake Ontario Cement Co. last Friday. Battling through ice in the Bay of Quinte, the boat docked with relative ease in take on her load. Each year the Metis makes about 80 trips to this industrial plant where she is loaded with 6,000 tons of cement on every visit. She carries her cargo to ports in Rochester, Toronto and Windsor, for the most part.

This year's visit to the Metis has held the record of being one of the last ladies of the lake. Manager of the Lake Ontario Cement Co., Bruce Price, observed that this boat is one of the first to sail the lakes in the spring and usually the last to head for her home port in winter.

Breaking from four to five inches of ice on its trip up the Bay of Quinte, a bulk carrier docked to load ore on Dec. 10 at Marmoraton Mining Co., a short distance west of the cement plant. Company spokesman, Gord Johnston, revealed that 23 cargos have been loaded this year, each one averaging 26,000 tons. During 1969 more than a half million tons of iron ore were shipped from the docks of the Marmoraton Co. The shipment made on Dec. 10 marked the final cargo of the year.

Ice in the Bay of Quinte has not interfered as yet with the operation of the Glenora ferries. In the winter months one boat, The Quinte Loyalist, provides half hour service between Glenora and Adolphustown across 24 hours a day. Some ship to Loyalist, the ferry, Quinte, is used as an ice breaker and is a ready standby in case of emergency. The ferries have broken a wide channel across the bay, through a four to five inch thickness of ice. A 'bubble system' installed in the ferry slips several years ago, facilitates docking by preventing ice formation and also by preventing the boats from freezing in the docks.

Williams To Study Mott Plan

Lorne Williams, city recreation director, will leave Jan. 12 for Flint, Michigan, to attend the Mott Institute for community school directors.

Mr. Williams will graduate from the six-week course as a qualified community school director, capable of implementing the Mott program in local schools.

"We are approaching this area quite rapidly" in the Quinte district and I feel someone is needed with the background to adequately guide people here," Mr. Williams said.

The recreation director is using his holidays for the course and paying his own intuition and board.

The program includes two weeks of academic instruction and four weeks of field work in Flint schools.

Two Ontario municipalities now have community school directors. In both Kingston and Etobicoke, the municipality and the school board split the director's salary on a 50-50 basis.

They offer a purely recreational facilities. In Kingston, the director is also school attendance officer and works for the school board during the afternoons and the city recreational department in the evenings.

They are introducing programs we can't, because we haven't the use of school facilities," says Mr. Williams.

Implementation of the Mott program has been approved by the school board, local educational recreational organizations and the city of Belleville.

Christmas Pet 'Sale' Trims Society's Stock

"'Twas the night before Christmas" and the Ontario Humane Society placed "a few of its orphans in happy homes.

Yes, Dec. 24 was "The Day" at the animal shelter, according to shelter supervisor, Mrs. Vivian Ethier.

The Intelligencer ran a story on the number of playful pets the shelter had up for adoption, and Belleviliians responded.

"We were really pleased," said Mrs. Ethier. The shelter placed 19 dogs, 18 of them pups, and 13 kittens Christmas Eve.

"We only hope the novelty of having a pet doesn't wear off," she replied. "If people find they can't accommodate the animals, we would appreciate it if they would bring them back."

At the present time, the shelter has 22 dogs and 16 cats available for placement.

Adoption is a "year round" concern with the animal shelter said Mrs. Ethier and she suggested with the New Year coming in, "might be nice" to start 1970 with a new pet.

Tweed Council To Be Represented On Conservation Authority Board

TWEED — The regular mid-December meeting of the Tweed Village Council met in the municipal building with all members present. The minutes of the last regular meeting of late November were read and adopted.

Moira River Conservation Authority requesting council to make the appointment from their village to their board for the year 1970.

It was moved and seconded that Guy B. Hughes be reappointed as the village representative on their authority for the year 1970. The clerk requested to write to Fire Chief Ross McNaught, a letter commending the fire brigade work at the Gateway Restaurant fire.

The clerk reported that he had notified all persons, whose lands abutted on the water and sewer installation on College Street, of the amount of frontage that they would be liable for, to pay frontage tax under the local improvement act. The court of revision was to be held this council meeting. As no person was present to protest their measurements, the following resolution was moved: that the frontage measurements as set and on schedule dated Nov. 25, 1969 for the water main and sewer installation be adopted. It was decided that the reeve's honorarium for the year 1969 be set at $750 and adopted.

A bylaw was then introduced to set the remuneration for the councillors for the year 1969 at $500.

It was also moved and seconded that the town foreman W. J. Woods, receive $200 for the use of his car on village work for 1969 and adopted.

A large number of accounts were presented for payment and subsequently ordered paid.

Council adjourned at 8.00 p.m.

Township Council Auditor Tenders Resignation

TWEED — The Huntingdon Township Council met in the Ivanhoe Township Hall, for their mid-December meeting.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and adopted.

Stewart J. Cooke presented the 1968 auditor's report and also tendered his resignation as auditor owing to other commitments. The auditor's resignation was accepted with regret.

The Road Voucher, No. 12, for $8529.75 was ordered paid, also a number of bills which were presented for payment. Hastings Federation of Agriculture received a grant of $200.00.

The Council concurred in the resolution from the town of Stoney Creek that the Council go on record as requesting the Attorney General of the Province of Ontario to rigorously enforce the laws respecting illegal gatherings and civil disobedience and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Attorney General.

Council adjourned and will meet again January 5, 1970, at 12.30 p.m.

Duncan McDonald Says Trenton in 1970 Faces Three Priorities

Duncan McDonald today cited three areas he feels should be given priority by the 1970 council.

The newly elected mayor said that regional government, industrial development and a "long look" at the town's unserviced areas are the most important matters facing the new council.

Stressing that he would speak more fully on these matters in his inaugural address, Mr. McDonald revealed that he would ask the town engineer to bring in a report of all unserviced areas in Trenton, and give an estimate of the cost of servicing these areas.

He also noted that every municipality would be anxious to get the best deal it could when it became involved in regional government.

"Dr. Scott will try to do the best he can for Belleville and Mr. McDonald will do the best he can for Trenton," the new mayor said.

Mr. McDonald made these statements following Monday night's council meeting — the last for the 1969 session. During the 30-minute meeting, council approved the balance of November accounts.

The council session was the last official act of Mayor James McDonald, who was defeated in the Dec. 1 election by Trenton councillor Duncan McDonald.

Duncan McDonald and the 1970 council will assume office Jan. 5, 1970, when inaugural ceremonies will be held in the upstairs hall at the Trenton Community Gardens.

Three newcomers will hold council seats in 1970. They are postal clerk George Greer, dentist W. R. (Bob) Patrick, and insurance agent Veil Robertson. Greer, Patrick and returning incumbent councillor D. M. (Cliff) Parker were elected for two year terms Dec. 1. Neil Robertson received a one-year term — the remaining of Duncan McDonald's term, which he resigned to seek the mayoralty.

In addition to Mr. Robertson, councillor Paul Tripp and Stan Gelichenor also have one year left on their terms. Public Utilities Commissioner Clifford Baker gained re-election Dec. 1 and will rejoin Frank Barry on the commission.

Monday's inaugural ceremonies begin at 11 a.m.

Clerk Comptroller O. W. Larry will swear in the 1970 councillors. Devotional exercises will follow and then the new mayor will give his inaugural address.

The only point of issue at Monday night's brief council session was whether Duncan McDonald should receive a full year's salary. He resigned his council seat Nov. 5 to seek the mayoralty.

At the request of Councillor Gerald Weaver, who was absent, Ted Parker brought the matter before council. Councillor Weaver favored paying Duncan McDonald a full year's salary, but was supported only by Councillor Douglas Kinney.

The view of the remaining councillors, including Mr. Parker, was that since councillor McDonald was no longer a member of council, he was not entitled to a salary for the period following his resignation.

Lake in Danger Of Dying by 1980

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Dr. David Rosenthal, chairman of the biology department at Trent University, Monday predicted that much of Stoney Lake would turn into 100,000 acres of rotting vegetation and dead animals in the 1980s if action is not taken.

He told a group of city Rotarians Monday it will cost only all the available oxygen, killing all fish and other lake life.

Basing his opinion on the work of his predecessor, Dr. Roy Edwards, and his own experience, he warned that the complete death of the lake was the logical conclusion of pollution.

Dr. Carlisle said bacterial pollution was a minor threat to the life of the lake but that continuous entry of nitrates and phosphates from kitchen and human wastes feeds the algae that in turn destroys lake life by using available oxygen.

But Dr. Carlisle said the Kawartha Lake system, of which Stoney is part, could still be saved.

He said more is known about the Kawarthas than any comparable waterway in the world and suggested a federal government-subsidized program to clean up the system.

Basis of the program would be sewage holding tanks in all villages and at all cottages with subsequent removal by truck. The sewage would be treated for forest areas for use as a fertilizer.

Police Still Baffled By Woman's Identity

Six days after she was found suffering exposure to sub zero weather, the identity of a woman patient in Belleville General Hospital continues to mystify police.

After another full day of inquiries on police communication networks around the province, investigators today said they were no further ahead in verifying the woman's name or personal background.

The woman, found in a field near Madoc Christmas Eve is recovering from frostbite to her hands and feet.

Investigations yesterday took Toronto police to a bank, a hospital and a downtown hotel.

The inquiries were based on names found on hotel and other business payment receipts, pay slips and a Bank of Commerce pass book found in the woman's possession.

Earlier indications the woman might be from Smiths Falls, from Listowel, near Stratford, and also have reached an impasse. A check with Listowel police on missing persons in that area have yielded no results.

Other names found on documents in the woman's purse were Mrs. Joe Consento and Esther Sackrison.

Provincial police at Belleville have received a steady stream of calls for persons believing they might be related to the woman.

According to official frustration is the fact the woman becomes evasive when queried on her background, say police.

Growing Latitude Here Before Hall Report Says Musgrove

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

Discussing the evolution of education and the changeover from authoritarian attitudes to participating in the credit system, Centennial secondary school principal W. J. Musgrove told Belleville Rotarians yesterday the trend was to give students greater latitude.

"I suppose, ultimately, we have veto power — we will not let them burn down the school because we need it tomorrow — but we give them more opportunity to make decisions."

The pupils had always had student councils and a certain amount of student government, but these had been restricted by staff advisers and the principal saying 'do this and do that.'

Under today's system, Mr. Musgrove cited the case of students being permitted to organize a dance although he had suggested they had not allowed enough time for publicizing it. The event incurred a loss of $200 and when another dance was held subsequently he was able to point to this fact; the students listened and this time they made a small profit.

Other steps taken to "defuse" the aura of regimentation and authority included changing the role of inspectors with authority to rate teachers in part of consultants, and encouragement of experimenting. In history, for example, teachers were asked to discuss trends in history and how they applied to the present time.

"Good teachers always did this, but there is now a province-wide approach to this type of development."

Noting there was a feeling schools should be promoting students who had failed in certain subjects, Mr. Musgrove said in the past two or three years nearly all students were promoted in a great many schools by subjects and not by grades.

"In at least three of the schools in Belleville we have had promotion by subjects and I imagine all will have them next year. Timetables are being developed making it possible for a Grade 13 student to take an option in Grade 9 — or vice versa."

The Belleville principal, who is chairman of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Association, said the commercial, technical and academic deliberation of education in Ontario (under the so-called Robarts Plan) was now less clearly-defined under new concepts. Coupled with this was a credit system through which it will be possible to accumulate credits.

"Students are being given liberty in choosing their options and programs. They are being pushed out on their own to make their decisions and this is particularly so in the senior grades."

In the academic sphere some students in Grades 11 to 13 have study periods which they are allowed to use at their own discretion.'

Mr. Musgrove was critical of Lloyd Dennis, co-author of the Hall-Dennis report. He said Mr. Dennis attacked everything that took place in secondary schools in order to make his report acceptable.

"What he failed to acknowledge is that most of the recommendations in the Hall-Dennis report, as far as secondary schools were concerned, were being implemented or were moving in that direction. There was nothing that radical taking place."

Looking to the future, the Centennial principal saw schools co - operating more closely with the community; a student might work a year and go to school for a year, thus relating his job to the school.

He envisaged business and industry and the professions giving employees leave to return to school, using secondary schools for secondary work and advanced schools for advanced work.

Citizens...housewives for example, could also take courses, while more independent study by students would make teachers available for small group seminars.

Gunboats

Starboat without a few civil servants at least looking the other way.

French President Georges Pompidou is spending the Christmas holidays in one of his country homes, and will have to deal with the embarrassment caused by the affair, and a general feeling that the Israelis have made France look stupid.

A cartoon in the independent Hazrez shows one panel with a gunboat in a bottle corked by the head of French President Georges Pompidou. In the second panel the gunboat had disappeared and Pompidou's face, on which was written "embargo," showed surprise.

The newspaper's Paris correspondent said Foreign Minister Ebba Eban told French Ambassador Francis Hure that Starboat-Weill, which had bought the vessels, had an agreement to transfer their ownership to an Israeli company.

Quoting sources in the French foreign ministry, Maariv said Eban told Hure that the five ships, unarmed but capable of being used as powerful missile-launchers, would be used only for peaceful purposes.

Beat of the Naval Brass

Barry Bevin, commanding officer of the Quinte Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps in Belleville, directs a joint band practice between his own band and the members of the Scarboro RCSCC band at the Belleville corps headquarters.

Bands Join Horns in Salute

Approximately 20 Scarboro youths have made their way to the headquarters of the Quinte Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps for a few days of band practice on a joint basis.

And the sounds of music are literally pouring from the South Front Street building.

According to Barry Bevin, commanding officer of the Quinte chapter of the RCSCC, this is the fourth meeting between his band members and the Scarboro RCSCC.

On three previous occasions members of the Belleville organization have travelled to Scarboro to spend half a day working with their fellow musicians.

This is the first three-day meeting of band members between the two cadet corps.

The Scarboro cadets arrived Monday morning and were billeted throughout the city. The youths will head home on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Bevin explained that the aim of the joint band operation was to do a series of spring and summer concerts with a band of 60 to 70 members resulting from the blending of musical talents.

The concerts and parades would include naval ceremonial music, street marches and concert music such as "The Sound of Music".

"Many of the boys play in school bands as well," Mr. Bevin said, explaining that the diversified styles of band music would not be too difficult for the cadets.

This morning approximately 45 young men tuned up their instruments and, under the direction of Mr. Bevin, practised a number of tunes.

The series of concerts could be described as a tour, but this is only an aim of the band practices, not necessarily what will be the case when the warmer weather arrives.

"It all depends on transportation," Mr. Bevin said. "If sponsors will foot the transportation we'll come and play."

Wednesday morning's practice at the RCSCC headquarters will be open to the public should anyone want to hear the efforts of the young men.

While here the Scarboro youths have joined in other activities with the Belleville group, Hockey and competitions at the rifle range at the Belleville Armory have been held.

Safe Auto Crackdown To Be Held

Belleville city police have announced that they will be "cracking down" to ensure the condition of vehicle equipment in the city.

Police chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that officers are now beginning some impromptu spot checks on car equipment such as examinations of lights and brakes.

He said it was similar to what metro police in Toronto were doing at present.

The checks would occur at various times of the day and night and would be decided by the officers at random, duties permitting.

Mr. Crosbie said there would be no advertising of cars left overnight Jan. 1 only, because of the possibility of New Year's Eve activity.

Mr. Crosbie said he felt the police preferred to cease enforcement of jaywing on Jan. 1 to allow people, who might be taking taxis home or walking after party activity, the peace of mind of leaving cars on the street.

Future Metropolis

In contemplating a greater Belleville — the much larger urban area which the seventies inevitably will see established in the Quinte region — with this city as the hub — the contrast between what will be and what is here and now is clearly defined.

Not that anyone can envisage with certainty just how Belleville will appear in another ten years' time, but the broad concept of a medium-sized metropolis exists that would take in neighboring townships and would enjoy improved communications with Prince Edward County to the south, as well as north to such small communities as Madoc, Marmora, Stirling and Tweed.

A metropolis conceivably will emerge that will include such communities as Rossmore, Cannifton and Foxboro; these today are township responsibilities having no ruling bodies of their own like say Tweed, and which need to be brought more into the mainstream of area life. This could be accomplished without losing their own identity, and to their own benefit and that of the larger urban area contemplated.

Where communications are concerned there is renewed talk of a commercial air service being established to serve this region, operating from Trenton. Also envisaged are bridges linking Canada with the United States via Amherst and Wolfe Islands.

Such developments naturally will affect the economy of this region, acting as a spur both to industry and to tourism. To match these possibilities for a immediate area, Belleville sooner or later must do something about replacing the Bay bridge, built back in 1891 and today a monument to a docile public who in summer see nothing wrong sitting in backed-up traffic every 30 minutes while boat traffic sails past.

Belleville must move forward not in any headlong fashion — no community can afford such a dazzling performance — but rather quietly and in an orderly way, having regard not only for its own needs but those of the townships which one day may be a part of the city. In such development planning is the key, and close co-operation between all the municipalities concerned.

Up Up and Away

As announced recently the new year will see new salary demands by Belleville firemen and policeman which, if granted in their entirety, would necessitate an increase of four mills on the tax rate.

Some increase is inevitable, for in the case of the firemen Belleville currently pays less than several other cities of comparable size, and less even than Brockville whose population is little more than half ours.

Meanwhile, speaking of inflation, this can mean not only a hike in the price of milk, meat, biscuits and well, almost everything, but even the humble cup of coffee.

It is not so long ago that you could have a cup of coffee in a Belleville supermarket for nine cents . . . yes nine cents. Then it went back to ten cents (while somewhere else it was 15 cents). Now this same establishment has climbed on the inflationary bandwagon and is charging 15 cents.

If you have coffee break twice a day five days a week, that is $75 a year which for a pensioner, say, is no small sum.

Perhaps the time to really start worrying about inflation is when a cup of coffee costs a quarter!

Fish Story

"A brilliant piece of fishing . . . a fantastic job." That was the reaction of Vancouver Aquarium curator Vince Penfold to the recent capture of ten killer whales by eight Pender Harbor, B.C. fishermen. The whales — the jumbo jets of the sea — were corralled after a 15-hour battle in gale force winds and driving rain. Fisherman Bert Gooldrup described the catch as a "complete fluke", a combination of the weather that drove them ashore and luck. Fluke or not, the men of Pender Harbor are keeping a close watch on their catch and waiting for interested buyers. A Los Angeles marineland is reported to have bought three.

Homespun

"2 For the Road," a 60-minute musical and scenic jaunt across Canada last night, was an imaginative effort on the part of the CBC Sunday night. Against stark winter backgrounds the principals sang and danced their way into homes coast-to-coast, reflecting a uniquely Canadian atmosphere, casting a sly dig at the cost of the National Arts Centre in Ottawa and revealing to listeners such pleasantly homespun pieces as "Moody Manitoba Morning." All in all it was a nice bit of family entertainment.

Premiers' Warning

Are Canadians Being Taxed to Death?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — As the old year and decade tick out their time and the new approach on time's horizon there is a small light in the political sky.

It could be, at long last — and it seemed forever out of sight — a small gleam of hope for the taxpayer.

Initially it shone. If faintly, at the recent federal - provincial conference on the constitution.

It could grow brighter in February when the prime minister and the provincial premiers meet again, this time on the economy, especially taxes.

The gleam of hope is this . . . . after years — 25 of them to be precise — of conferences at which successive prime ministers and premiers have fought endlessly over who was to collect and what taxes, the 11 top political leaders reached the point of wondering how the taxpayers felt about it.

And if they paused to wonder, then who knows, they might even get around to worrying.

Bluntly, three provincial premiers, John Robarts of Ontario, Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, warned Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Finance Minister Edgar Benson that they could go too far and fast with taxation.

Premier Thatcher came down hardest.

"Canadians are getting more than fed up with ever-increasing taxes," he warned, "so let us not kid ourselves that we are going to keep on rolling over and playing dead."

It was time, he counselled the conference, that both Ottawa and the provincial capitals began thinking "about how to relieve this crippling tax burden, not pondering how to find new ways of piling more on."

In Ottawa — and perhaps, too in many of the provincial capitals — this was a startlingly new line of thinking.

Listen to the Commons and search Hansard year after year, and you will find only a frighteningly monotonous demand by front and back benchers alike in the opposition that the government spend more and more for this, that and everything.

These demands always are made on the "government," the opposition, Conservative, and especially New Democrats ever being careful to avoid mentioning that it's really the taxpayer who must pony up for everything.

And this from the opposition whose prime assignment, at least in political theory, is to guard the interest of the taxpayer from the greedy government.

Not that the government is not always greedy.

For even in the face of Ross Thatcher's warning, Finance Minister Benson was telling the provincial premiers that if they wanted more money, it was as simple as raising taxes to get it.

Benson himself proposes hefty raises, through his White Paper, piling it atop the increases he already has extracted through his additional two percent surcharge on income and his squeezing of death duties.

"We need the money," Revenue Minister Jean-Pierre Cote blandly has explained, just as if the taxpayers did not need it too.

What prompted Premier Thatcher's anti-tax outburst was Benson's proposal for a "refund" of some taxes to people of those provinces not entering new shared-cost welfare programs with Ottawa.

What got Thatcher and Premier Roberts and Bennett uptight was Benson's explanation that while these "refunds" would go to individuals — not to governments — they would not necessarily go to the people who provided them in their taxes.

That is, the taxpayers who put up the money in the first place could not count on benefitting from these "refunds" on their very own taxes.

"It is all like Alice-in-Wonderland for me," snorted Premier Robarts, marvelling.

"All part of Ottawa's wonderful world of mirrors," pulp-eyed Premier Bennett in awed wonder.

Next thing, muttered a worried Bennett, Ottawa would be sticking its foot in the doorway of property taxes.

Not to fear, Prime Minister Trudeau tried to comfort him, but Bennett and most of the other premiers did not exactly reflect glowing images of reassurance.

Only Newfoundland's Premier Shallwood was unconcerned about taxes running wild. When his province had entered Confederation 20 years ago, he reminded, there was some feeling that Ottawa would "tax the grass, the after-grass, the window panes, the boats and the goats, but it never happened."

"Do not think it can not ever happen," Premier Thatcher warned him. "Ottawa will do anything except give a damn about the taxpayer. We better all remember that they are always capable of massive electoral retaliation."

And so they are.

There Are Hippies And Hippies

Letter to The Hamilton Spectator

Three cheers for Warren Wilson's letter of December 11! In forthrightly cautious the mass media and the ordinary citizen to be careful about labelling the perpetrators of the crime against Sharon Tate and "company" as "hippies".

This kind of blind-labelling belies our usual bigotry and hangup of a similar nature, whereby any thought when approaching people that don't conform to "our" standards — whatever they are!

Just as there are good and bad guys in every walk of life — whether teachers, police, clergy, shoemakers or parents — so there are "hippies" everyday at it. The latter wear the usual attire, but inwardly they are trying to work out the anger, hostility or what-have-you of a misdirected humanity seeking. The latter do not have the same motives or go in the same direction. The genuine "hippies" whose spiritual pilgrimage is in search of love, truth, peace, beauty, do not like the dirty attire or methods, but that is immaterial to people who feel that one is more important than what one wears. However, such thinking is quite contrary to 20th century Western culture and we give ourselves away when we speak and label people first and then think.

NIAGARA SPARKLE

Niagara Falls during the winter months appears to have been conceived especially for photographers — Spray freezing on nearby trees provides a shadowdrop for the American Falls. Turned off for some time during the summer by U.S. army engineers to permit an erosion study of the rock bed, the recent wonder, with its counterpart on the Canadian side, is its old self again, attracting tourists and honeymooners from around the world.

Kingston Expressway Issue

Kingston Whig - Standard

One of the most difficult questions confronting municipal governments these days is the matter of planning for the future in the face of current problems such as housing and rising taxes. The nature of this situation is reflected clearly in the current discussion regarding the proposed $7.7 million east-west expressway for Kingston.

The expressway would be part of a "regional route" stretching from Collins Bay to a few miles east of Harrowsmith. The project would include the removal of the traffic circle. Supporters of the expressway maintain that it will: relieve traffic congestion on the Bath Road and LaSalle Causeway and in the downtown areas; attract people to the city from the townships; protect the downtown business areas; help speed up and thereby improve the bus service; and make way for off-street parking on both sides of Princess Street. The city's share of the expressway project would be $300,000 or roughly the duration of the project. The annual cost to each taxpayer would be about 33 mills or $33 based on an assessment of $3,500.

Opposition to the expressway project is based on three main points: the cost; the fact that 80 to 90 dwelling units must be acquired and demolished; and the fear that a new traffic bottleneck will be created on Montreal Street. On all three these aspects, cost would appear to be of primary concern to most of the people who will be affected by the project. In this regard Alderman Grant Timmins, in a recent interview, said: "The federal official can foresee the true costs of the expressway in five or even 10 years from now. The interest on the money being borrowed is estimated at $1.5 million . . . that is, if the interest rates stay at their present level." While no one can say that in one year the cost of widening the Bath Road has risen 50 per cent from $600,000 to $900,000.

If the recent public meeting is any indication, public opposition to the expressway plan appears to be increasing. The fact is that throughout Canada and the United States there is a good deal of divided opinion on the philosophy of the new expressways in cities. Experience in the U.S. has shown that urban expressways are not the answer to city traffic problems, particularly problems of down town traffic congestion. Nevertheless, in January the Ontario Municipal Board will decide whether a vote of the Kingston electorate is necessary before the expressway construction funds are raised. As Alderman George Speal has pointed out, the people have a right to attempt to influence that decision by means of letters or petitions. Whether they can remains to be seen.

A Bad Year On Broadway

Buffalo Evening News

Broadway is having a bad year, and a number of theatre people, interviewed by the New York Times, have speculated on the reasons.

One director noted that Broadway openings depend on investment money and that Broadway for the past year has simply been following the stock market down. It's characteristic that every play has to be such a gamble; playwright Robert Anderson once remarked that it's too easy to make a killing on Broadway and too hard to make a living.

Paddy Chayefsky probes more deeply, saying that "the purpose of any art form is to reveal to its audience some truth about their own lives, and very few people go to the theatre for that any more." Theatre, he says, has become part of the "horse-and-killing business," an industry designed merely to kill time in our age of affluence and leisure.

This gloomy insight raises disturbing questions about the nature of theatre and whether no one thinks all theatre fare should be filled with some deep significance. Surely there should be more to the theatre as a whole than mere diversion. Thoreau spoke of killing time without injuring eternity.

So much of modern theatre seems designed to merely shock or amuse; perhaps a real revival will come only when both playwrights and audiences learn, as in the days of Shaw, O'Casey or O'Neil, that drama can relate, edify, instruct, and inspire.

D. C. THRUSH

Letter to Editor

MPs' Salaries, Veterans and the Cost of Living

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On December 24 there were two contrasting news items in a Toronto daily newspaper that must have been distressing to those Canadians who read them and especially so to those of us who have served Canada in the past in an active theatre of war.

The first was that the Prime Minister of Canada was likely to appoint an independent commission to study the question of raising the salaries of our members of Parliament from $18,000 to $25,000 per annum (my opinion is and I am sure it is shared by many that the recommendations of this commission — if appointed — are almost a foregone conclusion).

The second was — as part of their much vaunted austerity program — the Trudeau Government early in January 1970 was sending out dismissal notices to some employees of the Department of Veterans' Affairs. It should be noted in this connection that the Government has unambiguously stated in effect that the 88 war amputees in this Department will be taken care of (this is — and I am now quoting the Deputy Ministers of Veterans' Affairs does not include "amputees of other disabled" in his department.

I personally have no facts or figures as to the number as to how many veterans and others (disabled or not) will lose their jobs nor have I any factual information as to what the net savings to the Government will be as a result of these firings.

I do however have information on some of the details of the salary and the prerequisites received by our MPs.

The $18,000 they receive is made up of $12,000 which is taxable and $6,000 which is not. Combined the two are equivalent of a fully taxed income of about $21,000.

In addition members get free air travel once a week between their constituencies and Ottawa. If they drive the distance they get 16 cent a mile allowance, as long as the total does not exceed the return air fare. They also get rail passes and expense money to cover transport between the airport and their homes.

A number of Liberal back - benchers have stated that they cannot live on this income plus the "fringe benefits" that I have listed. For example one of them (a lawyer) has declared that his income has dropped by nearly $20,000 a year since he became a member of the House of Commons.

Some obvious comments seem to me to be in order regarding his statements. In the first place he surely was aware of the salary structure when he stood for election. In the second place if he decides to step down (in order to be able to adjust his income again) there will certainly should be someone in his particular riding as equally capable and also willing to serve by the present remuneration.

Aside from other considerations, the question remains, is the present total remuneration paid our MPs adequate — considering their average duties and activities as members?

The result of an opinion poll asking the average Canadian (living on a modest income and struggling to pay the bills) would be most revealing.

I have cited these two news items and also included what to me are relevant facts and figures as well as relevant comment) as regards cutbacks, pose is simply to show that the present Government is not going to implement its stated views as far as austerity and inflation are concerned when it comes to the members of Parliament.

What is taking place in the Department of Veterans' Affairs (and this is only one department) as regards cutbacks, and on the other side of the coin the proposed increase in salaries for our MPs is the kind of conflicting logic, not to mention simple injustice, that I for one hope will be noted and remembered not only by veterans but by other voters as well.

Referendum Ultimatum

Trudeau Ready to Take Separatism Fight Into Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — If there is a federalism-versus-separatism referendum in Quebec, Prime Minister Trudeau will plunge into the campaign as the senior spokesman for federalism, informed sources said Monday.

But he will not get involved in any direct way in the Quebec provincial election expected in 1970, they added.

Federal authorities say Mr. Trudeau feels that he can carry his one-Canada fight right into Quebec—and win—if he finds this necessary.

They also maintain that the majority, and probably a big majority, of Quebecers are federalist.

They do not claim that Rene Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois is on the wane. But they do say that it is not making the gains among non-intellectuals it would have to make to achieve any marked electoral success.

It is perhaps notable that Mr. Trudeau at his pre-Christmas news conference referred repeatedly to inflation as Canada's most urgent problem for 1970.

Informants say this indicates that Mr. Trudeau does not expect a Quebec referendum or the separatists to make any significant advances in the Quebec election expected in the coming year—possibly in the spring or early summer.

Why this seemingly new confidence in Ottawa?

Officials stretch in this background:

During the Diefenbaker and Pearson governments, Ottawa always seemed to be reacting to Quebec moves—for instance, in the International field.

Generally, that situation has been reversed.

One word from Mr. Trudeau, for example, and foreign diplomats here suddenly cancelled their acceptances of invitations to attend the St. Jean Baptiste Society parade in Montreal last summer.

Mr. Trudeau said he had not been invited—he went, instead, by invitation, to out-of-the-way Beauce—and therefore did not see how diplomats could attend a function to which the prime minister himself had not been asked.

Officials say Mr. Trudeau has more and more forced Quebecers to choose between federalism and separatism by more and more sharply defining what the choice is.

As officials here see it, both the Union Nationale government and the Liberal opposition have been turning away from any courting of the separatists.

Real Caouette, federal Creditiste leader, is said to feel that Quebec is more federalist than most people, including Mr. Levesque, think.

He is busy organizing a provincial Creditiste party on the grounds that Quebecers may be disenchanted with both the UN and the Liberals—but not sufficiently to vote separatist.

On a similar basis, Mr. Caouette's party reaped 14 Quebec seats in the 1968 federal election.

PM Vacationing in Honduras

BELIZE, British Honduras (Reuters) — Prime Minister Trudeau Monday was vacationing in the Caribbean on Glovers Reef, a tiny coral island situated about 20 miles off Stann Creek town in British Honduras.

Trudeau flew in to Belize by private jet Sunday with an entourage of eight, including State Secretary Gerard Pelletier and Mrs. Pelletier. He then took off by launch for a week of fishing.

Trudeau, met at the airport by Premier George Price and Home Minister Landberg Rogers, said he had heard so much about the islands off British Honduras he had decided to see them for himself.

Poet Doesn't Like Poetry

TORONTO (CP) — Donna MacDonald, a 17-year-old high school student from Lancaster, Ont., near Cornwall, is proving that in order to be a good poet you don't necessarily have to like poetry.

Joanne Stuckey, assistant professor of English, and Eli Mandel, the Canadian poet, have called Miss MacDonald's poetry first rate. Prof. Stuckey went on to describe it as varying from "sincerely serious to delightfully whimsical."

"I don't think of myself as a poet," she said in an interview. "I really don't think about poetry: I just write. Sometimes I find it's very hard, frustrating. My poetry seems the same to me, all of it."

"Everyone I mention poetry people look at me sort of funny. No one there likes poetry very much. I don't like it myself very much," she said.

Information Canada To Be Fact by March 31

OTTAWA (CP) — Information Canada, the central federal information agency recommended in November by a government study group, will soon be a fact of life, informants say.

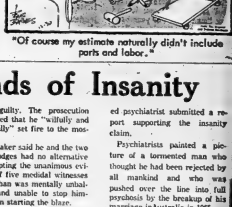
Planning for the new agency is in a fairly advanced stage. A committee of officials, long at work on organization, has completed its job and sent its conclusions to the Liberal cabinet.

Additional research to clarify and buttress the committee report is being done by a small secretarial headed by R. A. J. Phillips, a member of the cabinet's administrative arm.

If all goes well, Information Canada will be producing the federal government's public relations message prior to the end of the current fiscal year, March 31.

Informants also say the cabinet has not yet selected the agency director.

Besides Mr. Phillips, those in the running include Bernard Ostry, 42, former CBC public affairs supervisor, who served on the three-man study group that recommended the establishment of the central agency in line with Prime Minister Trudeau's wishes.



There is some jockeying, not to say lobbying, for the top job, which will be the equivalent to that of deputy-minister, the top administrator of a federal department.

No cabinet minister who values his political skin wants to take responsibility for the new agency, which seems destined to get a lot of attention on the floor of the Commons for opposition critics.

There seems little doubt that the opposition will put a caucus watch on the agency to see that it doesn't become a propaganda tool for the governing party.

Robert Stanbury, one of two junior members of the cabinet, may be given responsibility, according to most reports.

THE BETTER HALF — By Bob Barnes

"Of course my estimate naturally didn't include parts and labor."

Court Finds Mosque Burner Innocent on Grounds of Insanity

JERUSALEM (CP) — A three-man Jerusalem court today found Denis Michael Rohan innocent, on grounds of insanity, of setting fire to the Al Aksah Mosque and sentenced him to a mental institution for as long as his present condition continues.

Under Israeli law, the court does not set the duration of the time to be spent in a mental hospital. It left to the discretion of a committee of psychiatrists.

Rohan will be taken to the Talbiyeh mental hospital in Jerusalem. The ersualem district psychiatrist said a government psychiatric commission will review his condition from time to time, and if his mental state improves, it could recommend his release.

Presiding Judge Henry Baker said there was no shadow of doubt that the 28-year-old Australian sheepshearer set the Moslem shrine alight but that he acted on "an irresistible impulse" and was not punishable under the laws of Israel.

Rohan, sitting in a bulletproof glass booth he has occupied during 21 days of testimony, blinked his eyes when he heard the verdict but remained seated.

After giving his judgment, Baker told Rohan that under Israeli law he has the right to appeal the hospital confinement order during the next 45 days.

Rohan's lawyers have said privately that he would be happier to stay in Israel than be returned to Australia where he has bitter memories of an unhappy childhood.

In his judgment, which took nearly two hours to read, Baker ranged over the mass of testimony heard since the trial began Oct. 6.

Baker said the court found "proof beyond the shadow of a doubt" that Rohan made two attempts to burn down the sacred moslem shrine—once last Aug. 11 and the other 16 days later.

The Aug. 21 blaze severely damaged the 1,300-year-old mosque, and set off waves of anti-Israeli feeling through most of the Moslem world.

The Jewish state was accused before the United Nations of complicity in starting the fire in the Israeli-held Old City of Jerusalem.

Moslems and Arabs joined in demanding "jihad"—holy war —against Israel.

Baker went over Rohan's repeated claims that he was ordered by God to burn down the mosque and rebuild the temple of Solomon on its site. As a reward, Rohan said, God would set him up as king of Jerusalem.

Rohan's manner as he told these stories was described by the judge as "someone not of this world."

"I ignited the flame," Rohan testified, "to prove to the world that God wants me to build His Temple and that He will set me up as king over Jerusalem and Judea."

The trial began Oct. 6 and the Israeli government made it the biggest show trial since Adolf Eichmann's in 1962.

Rohan could have got as much as 44 years in prison if found guilty. The prosecution contended that he "wilfully and unlawfully" set fire to the mosque.

But Baker said he and the two other judges had no alternative to accepting the unanimous evidence of five medical witnesses that Rohan was mentally unbalanced and unable to stop himself from setting the blaze.

An independent court appointed psychiatrist submitted a report supporting the insanity claim.

Psychiatrists painted a picture of a tormented man who thought he had been rejected by all mankind and who was pushed over the line into full psychosis by the breakup of his marriage in Australia in 1965.

"His course of conduct laid down in one path only which he saw before him with his sick mind," the judge said. "He did not depart from that path in which he went by the force of impulse which dominated all his being until he had achieved his purpose."

Security Tightened

Agnew Continues Tour Despite Bombing

MANILA (Reuters) — Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew today began a hectic schedule by attending the inauguration of President Ferdinand Marcos and tight security measures following a bomb explosion Monday near the vice president's limousine.

Agnew, on the first leg of a 10-nation, 24-day Asian tour, planned to have talks with Marcos, visit a U.S. military cemetery and meet with South Korean President Chung Il Kwon, whose country he will not visit on this trip.

Strict security precautions were in force when Marcos, in a simple ceremony, was sworn into office as the first Philippine president to have been elected for a second term.

Referring to President Nixon's doctrine of self help for allied countries in Asia, Marcos said: "Today with us self-reliance is no longer an option. It is our fate."

"Let us be true to ourselves as the people of a poor nation struggling to be prosperous," he said. "Rich or poor, we are all citizens in poverty."

Agnew, accompanied by his wife and Apollo 10 astronaut Eugene Cernan, is visiting the Philippines at a time when anti-American sentiment is running high.

Nationalist, student and leftist protesters Monday jeered his motorcade, and a hit car was about to enter the gates of the U.S. embassy a small but deadly homemade bomb exploded two yards behind the vehicle.

Two students at the University of the Philippines were charged today with assault and illegal possession of explosives in connection with the demonstration.

Aside from the war issue, some Filipinos are angry with alleged offences committed by U.S. servicemen which they claim have gone unpunished.

A Philippines Senate committee last week urged immediate renegotiations of an agreement, which permits the U.S. military to punish any servicemen for offences committed on or off American bases.

Of the more than 30 servicemen accused of killing Filipinos since 1947, none has been found guilty. The Senate committee recommended that the Philippines take jurisdiction over all offences committed by U.S. troops, on or off the bases.

Agnew, in talks with Marcos, is expected to concentrate on the official purpose of his visit —to spell out his administration's policy that Asian nations assume more of the security burden in their areas.

He will leave for Formosa Friday. Afterward the vice-president plans to visit Thailand, Nepal, Afghanistan, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand.

Nixon Reluctant to OK Bill

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon today is expected to sign the controversial tax-reform bill and also put final touches on his budget proposals for 1970-71, before flying to California for a two-week stay at his San Clemente home.

Nixon is known to be unhappy with the tax bill, which eliminates $2,500,000,000 in revenues he had planned to use to balance the budget.

White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler said the president would act on the measure today. But he declined to give an indication whether the bill would be approved.

It was widely thought, however, that Nixon would approve the legislation.

In its early form, Nixon called the bill inflationary and said he would veto it. But it has since been modified by Congress, and the belief is that the president has no real political alternative but to sign it.

The bill increases social security payments for retired workers by 15 per cent, raises personal exemptions from the present $600 to $750 in stages over four years, extends the surcharge on income tax at five per cent for six months, and plugs a few tax loopholes for the rich.

While at San Clemente, the president also will draft his State of the Union message, in which he will review the first year of his stewardship and set down broad national goals for 1970.

Ziegler said the president will deliver his State of the Union message to Congress Jan. 22.

Resources Wasted

TV Abusing Responsibility Says Boyle

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Canadian broadcasters, particularly in television, have "abused the trust conferred" on them, Harry Boyle, vice-chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, said Monday.

They have been guilty too often of treating "audiences with arrogance, and even with scorn," Boyle said in a speech to an Association of American Law Schools meeting on mass media.

"The great opportunity which the inventiveness and skill of human beings presented us has been missed; the infinite resources placed in our hands have been wasted."

Broadcasters hold a responsibility to communicate, Boyle said, and society should be able to associate the name of broadcasting with "more than frivolity, the idle exercise of pursuit or power or a continuing insatiable desire for an increasing share of the economic pie."

"By what criteria do we judge the quality of a country's broadcasting?

"To be good—or even adequate—there must first be the widest range and variety of programs offered to listeners and to viewers, and safeguards must be taken against the narrowing imitative process by which so much broadcasting is merely a frantic effort to secure numerically for one set of broadcasters a certain total of audience.

Boyle said this concentration on ratings and popular, appeal has ignored broadcasting's responsibility to "reveal society to itself."

There was a responsibility for broadcasting to be more than an "escape media." The North American broadcast medium had spent millions promoting the theory that anyone had a right to "continue at a mental level of 10 years."

He also should demand that broadcasting should be "more than simply a harvesting of financial rewards."

It is an "arrogant assumption" that broadcasters know what is good for the public and that the public knows what it wants, Boyle said.

"The only sense in which the broadcaster should dare to believe we can give the public what it wants is by offering the widest possible range of subject matter and to let the public choose."

Hippies Could Take Lessons from Old Order Mennonites

TORONTO (CP) — Hippies seeking a utopian life might take a lesson from the Old Order Mennonites and Amish people in the Kitchener-Waterloo area of Ontario.

Author Edna Staebler, here recently to promote her two books on the Mennonites and Amish, Enterprise, and Food That Really Shmecks, said in an interview that they live the life that today's younger generation is dreaming about.

"They have a simple life and find great joy in permanent things," Mrs. Staebler said. "It's really a back-to-the-land sort of thing—they love fishing, good food and plain talk."

She believes in the simple life too.

It was in a cosy cottage on the rim of Sunfish Lake, a few miles north of Waterloo, that she wrote her collection of short stories about the Mennonite and Amish people and the Mennonite cookbook that gives away secret recipes for dandelion salad and shoofly pie.

"The Mennonites have retained the good-old-days way of life," she said. "They have the life that everyone else remembers."

She said she has never been aware of any "generation gap" within the Old Order.

"I've never been aware of any rebellion in the younger people. They're high-spirited and often 'downright mischievous, but they have a tremendous respect for older people and their wisdom . . . "

Mrs. Staebler said the conservative mode of dress has changed little since 1525, but quickly added that the 'appearance of the Amish men might be considered "with it" by today's youth.

"Their black jackets are not unlike the Nehru jacket that was so fashionable last year and their beards and long hair certainly don't look out of place these days."

The author said engaged couples often spend Saturday night together for "practical" reasons.

"They have to wait for the girl's parents to go to bed to be alone anyway and often it's too cold for the boy to drive home in his buggy," she said. "So he stays overnight—they sleep presumably—and it's very practical.

"If there's an accident, they go ahead and get married and there's not a raised eyebrow. But this sort of thing doesn't happen often."

She said that because most of the younger Mennonites decide to stay on with their people, the Old Order sect is growing.

"If they leave and go elsewhere, they can't adjust," Mrs. Staebler said. "They have this wonderful feeling of security within the order."

Unique Items For Bathroom

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton seems to be the seat of conservatism when it comes to bathroom accessories.

The latest Canadian home decorating fad calls for changing the bathroom's utilitarian image with "nun-sense" — unique accessory items such as gold-plated taps, mink-lined toilet-tissue dispensers and his-and-hers bathtubs.

But it seems few Edmontonians demand these kind of luxuries. Only one Edmonton company carries gold-plated taps—at $100 a set—for the bathroom that has everything.

Of course there are a variety of ornate medicine cabinets with gold and silver frames, and antique gold and brass accessories such as towel racks, mirrors, waste baskets and tissue holders.

There are even his-and-hers mirrors.

But when it comes to his-and-hers bathtubs, washroom accessory companies here generally agreed that they were "pretty conservative."

The Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating in Montreal says that if you haven't any "num-nums" in your bathroom you're not with it. They advise: "You had better visit your nearest bath boutique and get some."

Edmonton, however, hasn't even a bath boutique.

21-year-old Female Drug Addict Has Resigned Herself to Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — Libby, a pretty, delicate-featured blonde from Toronto, clutched her small teddy bear tightly and told in a barely audible voice how she has resigned herself to death.

The 21-year-old woman is a speed freak. And even in the vernacular of the drug-using hippie world, "speed kills." Libby freely admits she's an addict and is killing herself with methedrine.

"I know I'll die if I start putting the needle in my arm again but I really don't care," she said in an interview in the Vancouver YWCA's "crash pad," a large room covered with mattresses for wandering and destitute girls.

"I won't look for speed but if it is offered to me I'll take it," she said. "And I know if I get strung out on it again I'll die."

Sitting cross-legged on one of the mattresses, Libby looked up from Micmac, the small stuffed animal she was squeezing, and sighed: "Please don't be sad."

"Really, life is not that precious. I don't mind dying. Maybe it is better that way. I don't hate anyone. I don't love anyone. I don't want anyone to love me."

The teddy bear symbolizes something—Libby said she was given it when she left her parents' home in a small southern Ontario city shortly after Christmas in 1966.

Shortly after that she tried marijuana for the first time.

"There is a big gap between weed and speed," she said. "It took me a long time even to try acid (LSD) and I was doing all right being straight.

"I felt I had the tiger by the tail. I was a secretary in an insurance office, had an apartment of my own and I had some beautiful friends.

"I tried acid and went bad but I didn't need them—they did nothing much for me. Then my parents blew it. They had heard rumors that I was on drugs and they brought me home—police and everything.

"They were going to lock me up. They were going to put me in a mental hospital. I took off the same night for Toronto and met up with one of my friends. He was 22 years old.

"He crashed me up with speed and I got stoned. He cranked four others—started them—too. Some friend. He was an artist but now that is gone, now he's nothing."

Libby said many of her friends who experimented with speed became "hooked" and are already dead, dying or living like vegetables.

"There was one man who had been a genius—a wonderful mind he had, and he played the guitar so well. Now he doesn't play it any more, he doesn't say it any more.

The young woman said she was "cranking up" as many as seven times a day for two weeks at a stretch without sleeping for 48 days. Speed is a stimulant that throws the mind and body into overdrive.

"I eat and I pour vitamins away. You have no resistance to disease. If you get a cut or sore it never seems to heal. While I was strung out, the longest period I went without anything passing my lips, not even water, was five days.

"Your throat will not let it pass through. You throw up blood and everything. Then I went onto barbiturates to come down. Man! Then coming down. You'll, it just about kills you. Everything inside you is ripping out."

Libby, who arrived here in September seriously ill and searching for work, hadn't cranked up any speed for several weeks when she was interviewed. But she wasn't at all confident of her future.

"I haven't got enough faith in myself or the strength not to go back on speed. Death isn't the worst thing. When the people you loved, your parents, could not trust you all these other things don't matter. Being hurt by someone you love is the worst thing.

"I don't want love, I don't want anything."

It was time to go. Libby had a train to catch for Toronto and she packed her teddy bear in a small suitcase. As she left the crash pad, she flashed two fingers in a V.

"Peace," she smiled.

Christmas Theme

Guild Discusses Timely Topic

Mrs. S. Else of Northwood Crescent opened her home for the Christmas meeting of the Women's Study Guild, a brief business period conducted by the president, Mr. K. Daley, preceded the devotional given by Mrs. Else.

The program was opened by everyone joining in the singing of some old familiar carols led by Mrs. J. R. Reynolds with Mrs. L. Reid at the piano. Mrs. Reynolds gave a miscellany of Christmas — such as the religious significance of the use of X in Xmas; why the holly has come to be associated with Christmas; the legend of a little angel which illustrated how bells became a traditional sound at Christmas; and a poem entitled "The Memory Tree". This evoked many memories of past Christmases among the members. Mrs. Daley noted that, in Jamaica the most memorable part of Christmas was the sound of bells on Christmas morning ringing out the glad tidings.

Mrs. Reid introduced her part of the program, "The Real Spirit of Christmas," by reading several short articles gathered from magazines and telling briefly the story of a personal friend of hers who had risen above great tragedy and sorrow in his own life to achieve serenity, and live a rich and fruitful life in his retirement. While this man's son was in hospital, a friend had written the words of a song entitled "A Christmas Prayer" and given it to him. The son had composed music to it just previous to his untimely death, and a recording had been made of it.

Mrs. Reid handed each member a copy of the words so that they might follow the song as the record was played.

Afterwards, each guest was given a record which the father had sent to Mrs. Reid for the Study Guild. A short Christmas contest brought the evening to a close.

Mrs. H. Seldon, Miss J. Tickell and Mrs. Else served Christmas refreshments following the program.

Paris Couture Showings

Four uses of British wool cloths in the Paris couture showings for winter 1969-70 are illustrated here. Left, a floor-length coat by Hubert de Givenchy, double-breasted and leather belted, worn over a two-piece navy jersey outfit with skinny pants. It is in the famous downy blankety cloth "Garissimo" from Garigue, woven in England, medium green and cherry red.

Next, Madame Gres matches an above-knee length coat, with kimono sleeves, belt and four patch pockets, to a pair of pants in beige camel hair. Actually, it is a reversible fabric, backed with a dark green and red plaid only visible on the long accompanying stole in the same fabric, wool and camel hair, made in England.

When Pierre Cardin's skirts are not down to the ankle he cuts them as short as any mini, if not above. This (third from left) is mini, but not by far the shortest. It is worn with a wrist-length high buttoned jacket flared from the top and trimmed at neck, armhole and hem, with rouleau quilling of varying depth. The fabric, a heavy broadcloth, is in a beautiful clear shade of porcelain blue, woven in British mills. It is worn with opaque black wool stockings and glistening black head hugging bonnet and gloves.

At the end (right) Philippe Venet tops a contrasting two-piece pantsuit in copper-colored crepe with an ivory reversible wool jacket, double-breasted and gently flared from high collar band to mid-finger level hem. Fabric, a soft blankety British woven quality wool, the same color on both sides.

Husky Babies Not Healthiest

TORONTO (CP) — Unusually husky babies may not be as healthy as they seem at first glance.

Dr. J. D. Bailey, head of the department of pediatric endocrinology at the Hospital for Sick Children, says such husky babies often have defects in their body cells that make it impossible to store fat.

He says the babies grow too fast and have over-developed muscles. The condition often results in a liver problem.

The unusually husky babies can't store fat in their cells so it stays in the bloodstream. They use the fat, instead of protein, for fuel and that leaves the protein free to speed up growth and enlarge muscles.

But the excess fat can go to the baby's liver, causing a fatty condition.

NEW YEAR'S BUFFET DINNER MENU

Consomme Amandine
Glazed Baked Ham with Peaches (see below)
Pan Glazed Sweet Potatoes (see below) Creamed Mushrooms
Perfection Salad Mould French Bread
Trifle (see tomorrow) Milk for Children Coffee

By MARY MOORE

Because of their increasing number of grandchildren my sister-in-law and brother decided to serve New Year's dinner buffet style. For the children Wyn sets up a table in the sun room and all the little cousins can be as unwatched and piggy as they like. I thought you might like to copy their idea for your New Years dinner.

GLAZED BAKED HAM

Score fat surface of ready-to-eat ham and stud with cloves. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for one and one - half hours. Drain peaches from one 20 - oz. can. To syrup add ½ cup light brown sugar and 1 tsp. dry mustard and bring to boil. Baste surface of ham with syrup three or four times during the last ½ hr. of baking. Transfer to hot platter. Meanwhile warm peach halves through in double boiler. Make border of them around ham and if desired fill depression with a cherry or small pickled crabapple.

PAN GLAZED SWEET POTATOES

Cook 6 uniform small or 3 large sweet potatoes until barely tender. When cool enough to handle, remove skins. Cut in quarters crosswise. For Glaze: In a large frypan bring to boiling point 1-3 cup brown sugar solidly packed, 1-3 cup hot water and 3 tbsps. butter or margarine. Place potatoes in this syrup and cook uncovered gently until they absorb glaze, basting several times during cooking process. Serve hot. Pour or brush any left-over glaze over potatoes.

(See tomorrow for Trifle recipe — you will need to have on hand a sponge cake or jelly roll, sherry, eggs, almonds and whipping cream.)

Mother-to-Be and Father Too Seek Briefing

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I read your column all the time and enjoy it, especially some of the lovely poems that appear in it.

My husband and I are expecting our first child in February 1970 and I was wondering if you could send me some booklets on the birth of the baby, growth before and after birth, breast feeding, etc. We cannot seem to find any good leaflets on these subjects.

My husband is especially interested and I feel that information about babies can help us both grow in love and understanding of our new addition. — Lady In Waiting

Dear Lady: What a super approach to what can be a hilltop experience!

There's heaps written about it, in books, pamphlets, magazine articles. Ask your librarian.

From your local or regional health department, get the fine paperback "The Canadian Mother and Child," which is a gold mine of condensed information; and ask for the list of other publications by provincial and federal health departments.

When Junior gets here and grows up to the advanced age of one, get the follow-up book: "Up the Years From One to Six" and keep on with your joint adventure in child study.

* * *

Dear Doris: I'm a woman of 42; was divorced from my first husband and have remarried. My husband now has a life insurance. I don't know if he has my name on it or not and I don't like to ask him. This first wife's name is still on the paper he has here and she is dead. Maybe it has just been put in his three kids' names.

We get along real good but I hate to ask him. If my name isn't on the insurance I would like to get a little job and save me some money for when I do get left alone, before I get too old.

He just works for wages now and we haven't got any land of our own. — Just Worried

Dear Worried: How many miserable widows have wished, too late, that they had had the courage to "ask him"! The feeling is that by asking, one seems to be wishing "him" dead.

So the worry grows, the provision is not made, and the eventual task of sorting things out is full of unwelcome strife. If your particular "he" has not changed his insurance over it's high time he did, and you are courting folly to keep silent about it.

To open the subject, show him this column.

* * *

Confidential to "Party Planner": Glad the pyjama party was such a success. So can the toboggan party be.

When it's time to break up, cue one of your friends in to take her leave; the others will take the hint and start bundling up, especially if the girls need to be escorted home. Your other plans sound fine.

Ann Landers

Reader Doubts Ann's Source of Information

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column which reported the marriage between two homosexuals in Rotterdam made a friend of mine very angry. He says he attended the wedding and it wasn't Rotterdam, it was Amsterdam. Furthermore, he insists the priest didn't actually marry the two gay boys — they were guests at the wedding. While the priest was performing the service uniting the legitimate couple, the boys sort of married each other.

You claim you got the information from a London paper. Which one? I have a hunch your congratulations are premature. — THE FLYING DUTCHMAN.

* * *

DEAR DUTCH: The London Times. And I didn't congratulate anybody. I merely passed along the report as it appeared in this distinguished newspaper.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I comment on fried lda's letter? She is the lady who didn't approve of her fiancé's dishrag draped over the spigot. I could have kissed you when you told her to keep her pee-pickin' hands to herself.

I have a friend who practically rearranges my furniture every time she comes over for a cup of coffee. She goes through my magazines, moves out the ones she considers old, moves my lamps around to suit herself, changes the water in the goldfish bowl, combs the fringes on my rugs with a meat fork, and polishes everything in sight. Yesterday she helped herself to a piece of candy from my cut glass bon bon bowl. After one bite, she announced, "This candy is old!" Then she dumped all the candy into the garbage can.

The woman has a heart of gold and would do anything in the world for me, but I can't stand much more of her takeover ways. What can I do? — SHREVEPORT.

* * *

DEAR SHREVE: There's only one way to deal with this revved up, super-octane cyclone.

The moment she makes a move, remind her that she's a guest in your home and that you hate to see your guests work. Tell her it makes you feel like a poor hostess.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I think I can help the woman who complained about her husband giving her the silent treatment when he gets annoyed with her. She said he blows up over small things like if she forgets to put the cap back on the tube of toothpaste. When she ran out of beer he got so mad he clammed up for three days.

My husband used to act like that, too. It made me so nervous I developed red blotches all over my body and my hair began to fall out. My doctor said I needed psychiatric help.

When my husband saw the bills from the psychiatrist he suddenly began to talk like a streak for an hour at a time. Finally I had to tell him to shut up. Then I noticed something strange. As soon as he began to talk, my blotches cleared up and my hair stopped falling out.

Please print this, Ann. It may prove something. — WELL NOW.

* * *

DEAR WELL: Your letter proves that talk is cheap — or at least cheaper than psychiatry. It also proves that some women prefer crutches to silence. It is evidence that the guy at least acknowledged her presence.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Johnny has to stay quiet for another two weeks, but he's so demanding. I'm worn out. I hate to be cross with him after he's been so sick. He's gotten used to having me in there almost constantly."

Grandmother: "Tell him now he's better, he has to entertain himself."

A convalescent child will not like to relinquish the constant attention he enjoys, but he can be helped to do so gradually. Avoid long stretches of boredom and help him be patient by scheduling recreation times he can look forward to while he is waiting for you to finish your household chores.

Mother: "Instead of playing with Johnny all afternoon, I find it's better to space out the playtimes, say for 10 minutes every hour. With meals and baths and such, this keeps him from being alone and feeling bored for any length of time."

Women Commanded

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Women can look forward to almost unlimited horizons in the 1970s, judging from their sudden leap forward on the stage of world events in the late 1960s.

Three widely different women commanded a big slice of world political news in 1969. Israel got its first woman prime minister in the shape of Golda Meir, a 71-year-old grandmother who combines the qualities of a tough politician with those of a Jewish matriarch. India's Indira Gandhi retained her country's leadership despite a party revolution that threatened at times to unseat her.

And a brash, wild-tongued child of the Ulster slums named Bernadette Devlin became the biggest sensation to hit the British House of Commons at the age of 21 since William Pitt the Younger in the 18th century.

Bernadette, fiery civil rights leader who was elected independent MP for Mid-Ulster in April and subsequently made a sensational maiden speech at Westminster, was rarely out of the political limelight during the troubled year in religion-torn Northern Ireland.

The world was fascinated by this waiflike phenomenon. French newspapers dubbed her a modern Joan of Arc. Irish political opponents in Ulster, who alleged she was being exploited by extremists, called her a "Fidel Castro in miniskirts."

She cut a triumphal swathe through New York but was less successful elsewhere in North America on a fund-raising tour to support Roman Catholic civil rights in Ulster, failing to hustle up more than one-fifth of her $1,000,000 target. Her one-day foray into Canada produced only $1,000 or so.

In late summer she took to the barricades when violence flared in Londonderry and Belfast, later pleading to a British-appointed commission that she "organized" the hurling of petrol bombs at police. Her reputation recovered somewhat with publication of her free-swinging autobiography, The Price of My Soul, and there was even talk of Hollywood casting Barbra Streisand or Mia Farrow in her life story.

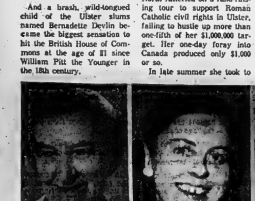
Mrs. Meir, an equally colorful character in her way, was nominated last March to succeed the late Levi Eshkol as Israel's prime minister. Israelis first regarded her as a stop-gap leader, but changed their minds when she expressed her "iron determination" to achieve a lasting peace with the Arabs.

Probably the only chief executive in the world to run a literal kitchen cabinet—she is liable to invite her ministers into her small kitchen for late-night policy sessions over coffee and cookies—Mrs. Meir won re-election in October despite a minority vote for her Labor-dominated coalition.

More than 70 per cent of Israelis declared in a poll that they approve her conduct in office. A former Israeli general said of the fifty-two year widow: "For this time, Golda is just right. She's tough and everybody knows she's tough."

Also displaying unexpected political durability was Indira Gandhi, though observers wondered how long she would be able to retain control over her fragmenting Congress party and the weakening of India's central government structure.

Light relief was provided on the political scene when Australia's federal minister for air, Dudley Erwin, resigned in protest at what he called a "political manoeuvre" hampering his access to Prime Minister John Gorton. Asked what he meant by a political manoeuvre, Erwin replied: "It wiggles, it's shapely and its name is Ainsley Gotto."



The attractive Miss Gotto, 23-year-old secretary to the prime minister, was said around Canberra to have a key role in who got the leader's ear and who didn't. A Fleet Street women's editor remarked it just showed the power any secretary could exercise if she were both pretty and efficient.

France acquired a formidable new first lady in 1969 in Mme. Georges Pompidou. As unconventional as her Christian name of Claude, Mme. Pompidou presented a chic society figure far removed from the self-effacing domestic image of Yvonne de Gaulle.

Other women making headlines in 1969 included Lady Sarah Crichton-Stuart, English society beauty who captured one of the world's wealthiest bachelors, the Aga Khan, and became a figure of veneration to millions of his Ismaili followers; Yoko Ono holding a "sleep-in" in Montreal with Beatle husband John Lennon, and Canada's Mohawk emissary Kahn-Tineta Horn, who invaded Britain in fringed miniskirt to draw attention to alleged injustices to Canadian Indians.

Women shattered the four square masculine stronghold of London's finance in late 1969 when Lloyd's, the famous insurance brokers, gave way to 11 women members, each of whom dug into well-lined purses for the $39,000 entrance surety. With the shipping sanctum of the Baltic Exchange already fallen to females, could the die-hard London Stock Exchange be far behind?

Regional Government Report Called Expensive Echo of McKeough's Views

WHITBY (CP) — Pickering Township Reeve John Williams suggested Monday that a provincial-municipal report on regional government west of Metropolitan Toronto is nothing more than an expensive confirmation of the opinions of Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough.

Mr. Williams' statement came after a meeting of the executive committee of the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study, held to discuss recommendations of the preliminary report issued Dec. 22.

The preliminary report suggests four alternatives for regional government in the Oshawa-Whitby-Pickering area. A final plan is to be presented in July after discussions with the municipalities involved.

One of the alternatives recommended is the formation of a medium size region which would include Pickering Township with the exception of the West Rouge area, which would be added to Metropolitan Toronto. The region would extend east to include Darlington Township.

Mr. McKeough said last Friday the provincial government is not prepared to let Metro Toronto expand beyond its present boundaries, with one possible exception—an easterly extension to take in the West Rouge area.

Mr. Williams, who favors the amalgamation of his township with Metro, said he was particularly disturbed that the comments came from the minister whose department initiated the development study.

"If the statements came from someone else in the government, and one who hadn't initiated the study, I'd say, okay, it's an opinion.

"However, coming from the person it did, I wonder if the study wasn't initiated to confirm his own opinion of how the area should be."

Mr. Williams and several other committee members questioned whether the study wasn't just an "academic exercise" for something already decided upon.

Asked whether he thought the projected final price tag of $850,000 for the study was a somewhat costly means of confirming an opinion, the reeve replied:

"What's a million, it's only money."

Whitby Mayor Desmond Newman, chairman of the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study, told the meeting he was "tremendously pleased" with the preliminary study.

"It has done everything we hoped it would do," he said.

Mayor Newman said he was pleased with the course of the study because it emanated from the municipalities involved and has not been controlled by the provincial government.

He said the next report of the provincial-municipal study commission, due in March, likely will discard some of the alternatives presented in the current report, while the third report in July probably will make a single recommendation for regional government in the 445-square-mile area.

Canadian Casinos Possible Shortly

OTTAWA (CP) — New federal gaming legislation comes into effect Thursday, Jan. 1, and it may open casino doors to Canadians in the 1970s.

Under the law, the provinces will have the authority to license everything from parish bingos to no-limit lotteries to Las Vegas-type casinos.

Quebec already is talking about gambling on a scale that would turn the Laurentians into an eastern Nevada.

Other provinces may be drawn into high-style gambling because of the fabulous effect on tourism. More than 20,000,000 visitors, or 45 times the state's population, spent $713,000,000 in arid Nevada in 1967.

Casinos in Eastern Canada probably would throw a wrench into repeated plans to make the French islands of St. Pierre et Miquelon, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, a gambling centre.

Quebec this month passed the enabling legislation needed under the new federal law to give a province power to license or even hold lotteries.

Other provinces probably will follow suit this year to enable their churches, agriculture fairs and so on to run bingoes and games of chance.

But they can go much farther if they wish and operate provincial lotteries, such as the state draws in New York and New Hampshire, or even casinos, sources here say.

The lotteries in New York and New Hampshire haven't proven the big money-makers some thought they would be.

Montreal's voluntary scheme ruled illegal this month, also didn't meet expectations despite monthly prizes of up to $100,000. The Montreal scheme is to be taken over by the province and may be operated legally after Jan. 1.

But the big money evidently is in casinos because of the spin-off spending on lodging, food and liquor. A casino can turn a seasonal resort into a year-round business.

Federal gaming laws have been closely and unpopular. The late RCMP commissioner Clifford Harvison said they make gangsters "the chief beneficiaries" by allowing shady operations through loopholes.

"Police receive very little support in their efforts to enforce laws which are, even by many policemen, regarded as somewhat ridiculous," Mr. Harvison said in his book The Horsemen.

The new law will put everything into the hands of the provincers. Bingos, wheels of chance, punchboards, draws, slot machines—one-armed bandits—will need a provincial license and will have to be operated in accord with provincial regulations.

Still illegal, however, will be foreign lotteries such as the Irish Sweepstakes.

Ticket-fixing Probe's Legality May Be Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Donald Graham of the Ontario Police Commission said Monday he understands some civilian witnesses plan to challenge the legality of a public hearing by the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission into allegations of ticket fixing by policemen.

Twenty civilians and 33 police officers have been subpoenaed to appear at the inquiry, opening next Monday, into allegations that senior police officers interfered with the prosecutions of prominent businessmen charged with impaired driving.

Judge Graham said he understands "a number of persons" are concerned that they would have no chance to present a defence at the inquiry, and plan to ask the Ontario Court of Appeal to prohibit the hearing on the grounds the police commission is acting outside its jurisdiction.

"It would appear to me there are people who would challenge the right of the Metro commission . . .

"But it would not be right for me to give an opinion as to what is right or wrong," the judge said.

The 20 civilians are involved in cases, some of them 10 years old, which were turned up in a secret investigation ordered by Police Chief James Meagher after allegations of police misconduct were made by former constable Peter Lotz. None of the 30 was convicted in court.

The police commission hearing, to be chaired by Judge C. O. Bick, was authorized under Section 12 of the Ontario Police Act. The section says the commission has the same power as a civil court to summon witnesses in regard to "any matter connected with the execution of duties."

Sydney Midanik, chairman of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association, said the inquiry should be held in public, but by an independent tribunal rather than by the police commission.

In any case, the commission would be obliged to protect the reputations of persons called before it, he said.

The police commission's jurisdiction could not have been questioned if the inquiry had been authorized under Section 48 of the Police Act, instead of Section 12.

Section 48 authorizes the Ontario Police Commission to make an inquiry, subject to the terms of the Public Inquiries Act. Judge Graham said the Ontario commission had no plans to order such an inquiry.

Ontario Liquor Stores To Be Made Self-serve

TORONTO (CP) — A long-range plan to convert most of Ontario's 428 existing liquor outlets to self-service stores was revealed Monday.

G. H. Sheppard, chief commissioner of Liquor Control Board of Ontario, also said in an interview that new stores to be opened in main areas of the province would be of the self-service type.

Eventually all urban stores would be converted to self-service operations as customers will browse among bottled goods and use shopping carts to take their purchases to cashiers.

Liquor outlets would remain as they are in centres where business is not heavy, Mr. Sheppard said.

Full Use of Schools Is Urged by Dymond

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Ontario communities should "wake up" and realize they have to make full use of school facilities for public expense, Mathew Dymond, former Ontario health minister, said Monday.

Dr. Dymond told a meeting of the Ontario Older Boys annual parliament that a closed school is a liability and too many schools are closed too much of the time.

"It's a waste of money for churches and other groups to build swimming pools and gyms while similar facilities in schools remain idle in the evenings and throughout the summer," he added.

He said the decision to open such facilities lay with the local school boards but that they chose not to open them.

Dr. Dymond suggested that a community body be formed to supervise non-school use of school facilities.

Changing Assessments Without Upsetting Voters Tough Job

TORONTO (CP) — The dilemma facing Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough in 1970 is how to smoothly shift the assessment of real property from municipal hands to provincial hands without upsetting the voters.

What many Ontario property owners fear when this administrative shift becomes effective New Year's Day is an increase in property taxes.

It is a problem he must approach gingerly, for in 1971—the year Premier Robarts is expected to call a provincial election —his department will begin the reassessment of all land and buildings at a price a willing buyer would pay a willing seller on the open market.

The only exceptions will be farmland still being used for agricultural purposes and the property of telephone, hydro and cable companies whose real value is still under study by special committees.

"We are prepared to meet through some difficult situations as property is reassessed at its full market value," Mr. McKeough said in an interview Monday. "We think we can avoid a tax burden shift, but we will have to see all the cards first."

Most municipalities have in the past assessed property for tax purposes at only a fraction of its real value. In the case of residential property the provincial average has been about one-third of its true worth.

A few municipalities recently have tried reassessment on their own, and in each case there has been a resulting shift in the burden of taxation away from commercial and industrial property on to residential holdings.

The province was forced to intervene in Ajax, just east of Toronto, where there was a public outcry when the residential assessment climbed from 52 per cent in 1968 to 69 per cent in 1969, while industrial assessment dropped to 30 per cent from 47.5 per cent.

Officials in Mr. McKeough's department told a legislature committee the severe shift must not and should not have occurred.

Mr. McKeough believes that if property values in Ajax and here should be no unfair shift of the tax burden from one property owner to another. But if there is, he is ready to use provincial power to correct it.

As assessed values increase, he said, there should be a decrease in the tax rate charged against the assessment to raise the same amount of revenue.

This does not occur, because he can increase the tax rate applied against commercial and industrial property to make up in payments to municipalities where there is a temporary injustice and thus soften the shift in mill rates applied against assessed values of different kinds of property.

Many of these things will be done, however, "until we see where the worst situations develop and how they relate to the total provincial situation."

An expert on assessment who he said will not be identified said the worst problems are likely to result from reassessment of Metropolitan Toronto property, but he expects will be the key to whatever changes the government decides to make to achieve a fair shift in the weight of taxation.

Provincial takeover of assessment and market value reassessment are steps in the government's five-year plans of taxation reform. Mr. McKeough argues that without control of assessment and an equitable value for all property, the province cannot keep its promise to relieve municipalities increased revenue through unconditional grants. Neither can the taxes on property be shared fairly.

The province will complete reassessments already begun by municipalities, but otherwise 1970 will be spent in preparation for the main job which starts in 1971. About 2,000 municipal assessors are being absorbed into Mr. McKeough's department and a new, fairer system of appealing and reviewing assessments is being developed.

Test to Be Made in 1970 Of New Assessment Formula

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — The provincial government will test a proposed new assessment formula in Peel and York counties in 1970, designed to alleviate the burden reducing taxes have been promised by Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said Monday.

He told a meeting of the Huron County Federation of Agriculture that the new formula will be based principally on a farmer's land, instead of an overall assessment including his land, house and farm buildings.

Mr. MacNaughton told the audience that Darcy McKeough, municipal affairs minister, told him of the test plan. He said the two counties were chosen primarily because there is a fairly even urban-rural population balance.

Clinton is 30 miles northwest of Stratford.

Flu Warning

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. K. C. Charron, Ontario deputy minister of health, said Monday Ontario has instituted a warning system to detect any outbreak of the Asian flu epidemic that has killed hundreds in Europe.

"Nothing has appeared so far and we are hopeful that everything will remain relatively normal," Dr. Charron said. But the situation was being watched carefully through officers of the district public health units.

Randall Suggests Ottawa Postpone Buildings

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government was called upon Monday to stop blaming the provinces and to show national leadership in the fight against inflation.

Stanley Randall, Ontario trade and development minister, suggested in an interview that Ottawa should postpone or scrap plans to build new federal office buildings in the capital.

He said the federal government should encourage private enterprise to provide government office space, either on a rental or, better yet, on a lease-back basis.

Ottawa should stop complaining about Ontario.

"I think it's time the federal government took a look at its priorities," he said. "We have looked at our priorities and I'm getting a little sick of these jokers from Ottawa coming down here and using us hell for leather for medicare and for everything else."

Mr. Randall rejected Prime Minister Trudeau's assertion that Ontario is not doing its share to fight inflation.

"Ontario's record is as good as any in the world in fighting inflation," he said. It was apparent that ordinary citizens are not working and it was time Mr. Trudeau displayed a little initiative.

Such initiative might well be directed at construction plans for new headquarters for the department of external affairs, defence department and Dominion Bureau of Statistics. These three buildings will cost Canadian taxpayers about $300,000,000 at a time when Ottawa is preaching spending restraint, Mr. Randall said.

He reiterated that amortized over 40 years these offices will cost about $12 a square foot a year. Equivalent office space in Ottawa could probably be rented for five times as much.

Even better, the federal government could encourage commercial interests to build the offices for the government on a 20-year, lease-back basis. This would cost more than renting but the government would own the building after 20 years.

Mr. Randall said the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education is acquiring a new headquarters here through a lease-back arrangement.

In the Ontario-Ottawa's decision to go ahead with new external affairs and defence buildings when, in the interest of austerity, it is cutting back its NATO forces and closing diplomatic missions abroad.

"That $40,000,000 Taj Mahal (external affairs building) could be postponed because it won't cost a dime for the taxpayers."

He acknowledged that the Ontario government had ended a two-year austerity freeze on construction of the Queen's Park project. Two new buildings are scheduled to be completed in November, 1971.

But the decision was made only after Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton had brought in a balanced budget for 1969-70, he said.

Role of Service Agents For Medicare Is Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman, NDP—High Park, Monday criticized the service agent system connected with the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan and called on the government to do away with it.

Dr. Shulman's remarks came following an announcement by officials of OHSIP that there has been some delay in paying claims submitted by farmers and consultation workers through the service agents.

In a news release, Dr. Shulman attacked the delay and confusion in the system. He said service agents will wait until they have accumulated a large number of claim cards before sending them to OHSIP for approval and payment.

He said these agents only act as a mailbox for OHSIP, Dr. J. S. W. Aldis, executive director of OHSIP, said that without the service agents "the problem of payroll collection would be nearly insuperable."

As a result, the government decided to rely on the agents who collect OHSIP premiums from people who are self-employed or retired, and cannot pay their premiums through payroll deductions or from construction workers who because of their seasonal work make deductions difficult.

There are at present two groups of service agents. The first is the Co-operative Health Services of Ontario, which comprises 22 rural co-operatives. As of Jan. 1 the number will be reduced to 12. The second group consists of health insurance agents acting as middlemen between OHSIP and construction workers.

Dr. Aldis said that by and large OHSIP is pleased with the job done by service agents as "they handle for us a segment of the population that would otherwise drive us around the bend."

WHY ARE MORTGAGE RATES SO HIGH?
ED McKENNY
MP—Hastings-The Islands

The reasons are numerous and largely stem from our prosperity — the "age of affluence" we are in.

In prosperous times our economy expands rapidly, as it has for the last few years. But boom has lasted so long many young families cannot remember a recession.

As the growing money supply in the hands of the consumers is exchanged for commodities from safety pins to houses, these commodities become in short supply, causing their prices to rise. The result is continuing inflation, now also a decade old.

In very simplified form, this is what has happened to our mortgage rates. Mortgages must compete on the money market against governments seeking money at higher rates, expansion loans to businesses and loans to builders. The rates have risen to meet the competition.

Will mortgage rates go down again? Likely, though few experts foresee near-future change. There is general agreement, though, that inflation will make it impossible to duplicate homes at current prices in the years ahead.

This means, of course, that a mortgage taken out now will be paid off in inflated dollars while the property rises in value.

With Only This Area Left To Be Filled In and Garbage Piling Up Dump Has Only Six More Months of Life

Where Next Is Question Facing City on Garbage Disposal

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The city of Belleville is fast running out of garbage disposal area.

Current estimates are that the present disposal area on the east side of the Bay Bridge Road will be completely filled inside of six months and so far the city has no idea where the city's garbage will go after the area is filled.

"I thought we had another short term location but I now hear that the Ontario department of energy and resources will not approve of the site," said City Engineer Wilbur Purcell.

"But we have to find an answer quickly — we are right behind the eight ball," said the city engineer.

The short term disposal area which had been considered by the works department was city - owned property which eventually would have been turned into park area.

But wherever the city's future garbage disposal area is, the operation will undoubtedly be a continuation of the present sanitary land fill technique which over the past couple of decades has proven so successful in the Zwick's Island area.

Close to 20 acres of the present Zwick's Island Centennial Park area was at one time nothing more than a marsh filled with bullrushes.

It was here that the city's sanitary land fill method of garbage disposal was initiated. The technique saw raw garbage dumped as fill in the swamp area where it was compacted by a bulldozer and then covered with earth.

When the marsh area west of the Bay Bridge Road was filled, the garbage disposal operation was moved to the east side of the Bay Bridge Road. It is this east side area which will be completely filled within the next six months.

The usual method of sanitary land fill garbage disposal is to dump selected garbage (no industrial wastes) into trenches as deep as 15 feet. The garbage is then compacted with bulldozers and covered with up to six inches of earth.

In the Zwick's Island disposal program the trenches were dispensed with as one of the main objects was to raise the level of the area for future park development.

Properly carried out, the sanitary land fill garbage disposal operation does away with the stench normally associated with open dumping.

Also it is cheaper than incineration. Some large municipalities are closing down their garbage incinerators, due to the stench and costs of operation.

But whatever the method of disposal, industry's "throw away" society ordinary garbage can be one of the biggest headaches with which a modern municipality has to contend.

In Belleville, garbage disposal means finding a place to dump approximately 80,000 cubic yards of refuse every year.

And the amount of garbage to be disposed of mounts with each passing year.

In 1965, an estimated 67,412 cubic yards of garbage was dumped at the disposal site east of the Bay Bridge Road. Three years later — in 1968— this amount had increased to an estimated 79,458 yards.

Area Single Parents Band Together To Help Fill Void in Children's Lives

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

As most people who have experienced it will tell you, after the initial shock of being divorced, separated or widowed has worn off "a kind of numbness sets in" on the shoulders of the one left behind.

Particularly if the one left behind is a parent, they emphasize.

The upheaval that a family suffers is one repeated with increasing frequency.

The Western world may carry the light of technological progress, but it can also boast the highest divorce rates. Separations run a close second— there are more than one and a half million in the United States every year.

Any parent in this situation will make clear that listing figures cannot emphasize the sense of personal loss, frustration and defeat that are a part of these statistics.

How, they ask, does a parent go on alone, when children demand instant answers and impose constant problems that must be solved now?

Perhaps a part of the answers can be found in an international organization called Parents Without Partners.

There are 436 chapters in the U.S., Canada and Australia, with more being formed every year.

The Belle-Trent Chapter, formed two years ago in the Quinte area, is one of the 17 in Canada. It has a membership of 32, with 15 more potential members waiting in the wings.

The only requirement for membership in the organization is that an individual must be a parent of a dependent child, single by reason of death, divorce, separation or never married.

Parents Without Partners attempts, through a varied program, to let single parents know they are not alone in the particular problems they face as raising their children in a society geared to couples.

Activities are planned for the whole family — from picnics and boat rides to educational programs.

"Things like taxes, travel, human relations — all become problems when you are a single parent," said one member. PWP features regular guest speakers to give some of the answers.

"But perhaps the biggest consideration of the organization is the children left with only one parent in a world that says no one should be alone," said past president of the local chapter, Gerry Rogers.

He expressed the overwhelming frustration of children in a situation they don't really understand.

"Through PWP, it is possible to find the answers to many problems the parent is faced with in helping children adjust to a bewildering and possibly frightening experience," added Mr. Rogers.

"A surprising number of children can grasp and are aware of what has taken place. With the programs offered by PWP, they can arrive at a better understanding of their problems and the special situation they have to cope with.

"But Parents Without Partners is not a lonely hearts club," said the past president.

"We stress this from the beginning this in no way is purpose of PWP. We are there to listen, and advise.

"All of us have been through the same thing, basically, and we learn to overcome our grief or bitterness in accepting the situation as it is, while working to improve and enrich the lives of our families and ourselves."

One of the members of the local chapter, a widow with four children, explained that to her, the biggest reason for joining was her children.

"The children are a part of almost all the planned activities, and benefit immensely. The younger boys find they have men to talk to, while the girls can talk over their particular problems with women in the group."

"You learn that you are not really alone anymore, there is always someone to talk to — the gap of loneliness is bridged."

Informal discussions, moderated by group members, are often held in members' homes, where problems can be talked out.

Meetings are held on a bimonthly basis, alternating between the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle St. in Belleville and the King St. United Church in Trenton.

For more information about the organization, call president, George Cole, 392-3746 in Trenton or vice-president Muriel Wilson, at 962-8709 in Belleville.

Pepin's Outlook

Stiff Competition Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — Stopping inflation now is of crucial importance to Canada if producers are to capture the increased share of world markets needed to employ the country's rapidly growing labor force, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin says in a year-end statement.

The statement issued by the minister's office sees strong growth potential for industry carrying over into 1970 and some recovery of world wheat and flour markets. A recent survey showed large companies plan to spend 11 per cent more on new capital facilities in 1970 than they did in 1969.

Strikes seriously hit the primary metal industries in 1969, but "if serious interruption to the production and movement of supplies to market can be avoided, growth of Canada's resource exports could show significant acceleration in the year ahead."

While Canadian exports rose strongly in 1969—and imports even more strongly, with higher outlays for freight, insurance and other services—Canada will face stiffer competition in world markets in 1970.

"In these circumstances," the statement says, "it becomes increasingly important to stop the erosion of Canada's competitiveness resulting from the continuing upward movement in costs and prices."

Consumer prices and the price factor in the growth of gross national product each rose by about 4.5 per cent in 1969. Average industry selling prices were 3.4 per cent higher. Similar inflationary conditions prevailed in other industrial countries.

"However, a superior price performance is of crucial importance to Canada. Simply to hold even on prices with our competitors will not permit Canadian producers to capture the increased share of world markets necessary to employ Canada's rapidly growing labor force and absorb other available productive resources."

Mr. Pepin's statement also said that the coming decade holds great promise for Canada, but the country must meet problems of urban growth, pollution and regional disparity.

"Success in these endeavors depends on the sustained and balanced growth of the economy as a whole. This is why it is so important to stop inflation now.

"For a trading nation such as Canada, which is becoming increasingly involved in international commerce, the key to economic achievement lies in maintaining and improving our competitive position in the Canadian market and in the markets of the world."

Prisoners Said Near Cornwall

KINGSTON (CP) — The search for three men who escaped from Joyceville Institution now is concentrated in the Cornwall area, where a vehicle believed to have been used by the men was found, prison officials said today.

The three men were noticed missing after the 10 p.m. cell check Sunday. A vehicle was stolen from a nearby farm shortly afterwards.

Missing are Roy Walsh, 26, of Halifax, John McNeil, 30, of Sydney, N.S., and Stanley McDonald, 24, of Tillsonburg, Ont.

Orr Not Only One Eyeing Record; Esposito Has 7 Shutouts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With Boston Bruins defenceman Bobby Orr now almost sure of breaking at least one National Hockey League scoring mark, another ocean of the record book may be rewritten a rookie goalie.

The goalie is Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks and the record he is approaching is that of most shutouts in one season.

The 28-year-old native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has blanked the opposition in seven games with less than half the 76-game season expired and another seven would give him a record.

The current mark of 13 shutouts in the modern era was set in the 70-game, 1953-54 schedule by Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs. In the preceding era when forward passing was not permitted in the attacking zone, George Hainsworth of Montreal Canadiens collected a record 22 shutouts in the 44-game, 1928-29 season.

Orr, now with 11 goals and 43 assists, needs just eight more assists to break the mark of most assists in a season by a defenceman held by Pat Stapleton of Chicago. Barring any serious injuries, Orr also is within easy reach of his own scoring record of 64 points set last season, tops for any defenceman.

Regardless of whether he sets a new shutout mark, Esposito's performance should at least earn him several votes for rookie-of-the-year honors.

Another rookie goaltender Esposito was drafted by the Black Hawks last summer from Montreal Canadiens who tonight play host to St. Louis Blues while Minnesota North Stars meet the Kings in Los Angeles.

Four matches are scheduled for New Year's Eve, with Montreal visiting Pittsburgh Penguins, Oakland Seals at Toronto, Chicago against the Rangers at New York and Boston at Detroit against the Red Wings.

Another rookie goaltender who made a good start this season expects to be out of hospital today and back on skates in four weeks. Toronto's Marv Edwards went into hospital last week for an operation on an injured knee and was up on crutches for the first time Monday.

Defenceman Pat Quinn may be ready for the Leafs New Year's Eve encounter after sitting out 10 games with a torn shoulder muscle. But veteran Marcel Pronovost, player-coach with the Leafs' Tulsa farm club, may still be required to fill in for Mike Pelyk, out with a fractured collar bone, and Brian Glennie and Rick Ley, both out with knee injuries. Pronovost has helped out on the Toronto defence for the last seven games.

The North Stars face the Kings tonight with a new coach behind their bench—veteran forward Charlie Burns.

Wren Blair said Monday the general manager and coaching duties were too much for him and he was installing the 33-year-old Burns as interim coach.

Burns, who twice coached San Francisco Seals to the playoffs in the Western Hockey League, said NHL coaching is "what I want to do." He has played in more than 500 NHL games and this season was used primarily as the Minnesota penalty-killing specialist.

Frazier Fight Fixed

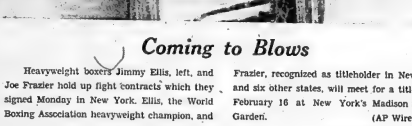
NEW YORK (AP) — "It was a fight that had to be made," said Angelo Dundee, manager of Jimmy Ellis, the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion.

Madison Square Garden knew that a long time ago and after 15 months of trying, the Garden finally got Ellis and Joe Frazier, who is recognized as heavyweight champ in seven states including New York, to agree to a Feb. 16 match to settle the issue once and for all.



"Now you show up, here!" said Frazier, pointing at Ellis, "Don't pull out, no me. No bloody noses in training or anything. Heck, I get bloody noses from colds or when my little girl pops me."

Frazier was loose and ebullient, obviously happy to finally nail down his on-again-off-again bout with Ellis. But nobody was happier than Harry Markson, Madison Square Garden's director of boxing.

Markson had been on the trail of the bout ever since Sept. 14, 1968, when Ellis successfully defended his WBA crown by outpointing Floyd Patterson.

The fight arrangements include agreement by the WBA and New York State Boxing Commission to waive the champion-challenger relationship for the bout. Both fighters will get equal billing, Markson said.

Coming to Blows

Heavyweight boxers Jimmy Ellis, left, and Joe Frazier hold up fight contracts which they signed Monday in New York. Ellis, the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, and Frazier, recognized as titleholder in New York and six other states, will meet for a title fight February 16 at New York's Madison Square Garden. ## Montreal: 9-3

Baby Habs Plus 8 Sock It to Soviets

MONTREAL (CP) — Anatoli Tarasov returns to the Soviet Union today with his seven-time world champion hockey team, but the Russian coach vows he will be back in March for the world championship at Montreal and Winnipeg "with a surprise for you."

Tarasov, solemn and obviously shaken by the 9-3 drubbing his squad took Monday night at the hands of Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, at first barred the silent Russian dressing room to the news media.

However, he later emerged to speak with reporters.

"When we win you newsmen don't want to come in," Tarasov said through an interpreter.

He refused to answer any questions about changes in his team for the world tournament and only reiterated his earlier remark about a surprise.

The Junior Canadiens, bolstered by eight minor league professionals, are defending Memorial Cup champions and of was the Junior crew that carried most of the load against the more experienced Russian team.

The youngsters had the delirious crowd of 18,507 fans in an uproar from the opening whistle as Richard Martin, a regular Junior player, opened the scoring at the three-minute mark of the first period.

However, it was Gilbert Perreault who proved to be the hero as he scored two goals and assisted on three others. Joining him in the two-goal bracket were Junior Robert Guindon and Rejean Houle.

Houle, last season's OHA scoring champion with 108 points on 53 goals and 55 assists, was on loan from Montreal Voyageurs of the American Hockey League.

Robert Lalonde, a Junior, and defenceman Andre Dupont, now a pro in the New York Rangers chain, were the other Montreal goal-scorers.

Alexander Maltsev, Sergei Soludukhin and Victor Polupanov scored for the losers.

Montreal led 4-2 after one period and 6-2 after 40 minutes. Maltsev and Lalonde each scored on a power play.

The Russians were outshot 36-30 on the night and 13-4 in the second period.

Young Jim Rutherford from Fort Worth, Tex., Red Wings of the Central Hockey League bore the brunt of the Montreal goal-tending chore until replaced by Wayne Wood at 12:38 of the final period. Rutherford turned in a sparkling performance, despite the fact he allowed all three Russian goals.

Vladimir Konovalov started in the nets for the visitors, played the first period when Tarasov threw some defensive men him and was replaced for the remainder of the game by Vadislav Tretjak.

The visitors played without veterans Anatoli Firsov, Vyacheslav Starshinov and Eugenie Zimin, all seasoned in international competition.

Tarasov said most of Monday night's performers were between 18 and 21 and goaltender Tretjak only 17½ years old.

Tarasov was quick to congratulate referees Marcel Vaillancourt of Sherbrooke, Que., and Mickey Redmond of Ottawa. He said they were the most competent officials he had seen work during the Soviet team's eight-game exhibition tour.

The Russians left with a 2-3 won-lost record against Canada's national team and two overwhelming victories over other OHA Junior A competition.

Asked if the junior team that carved Monday night's win compared favorably with the Nationals, Tarasov said they were not as good.

Easy Victories At Indoor Meet

SASKATOON (CP) — Willie Turner, former world record holder for 100 metres, and Grant McLaren of the University of Guelph, Ont., posted easy victories Monday night at the Saskatchewan Indoor Games.

Turner, who equalled the world record of 10 seconds for the 100 metres in 1967 while an Oregon State University freshman, Monday won the invitational men's 300 metres when his chief opponent, Lee Evans of San Jose, Calif., stumbled.

McLaren, 21, from Paris, Ont., sped past a tiring Jack Bachelier with 3½ laps remaining in the 25-lap men's two-mile event and finished 30 yards ahead of his University of Florida opponent.

Bob Seagren, who last January set a world indoor pole vault record of 17 feet 3¼ inches, took the event for the fourth consecutive year with a height of 16 feet, 6¼ inches.

"It was a disappointing effort," Seagren said. He also indicated he would retire next summer from competition.

"I trained hard for this meet and I was just not satisfied with my performance," said the 26-year-old competitor who was one of the top attractions for the 2,500 spectators who attended Monday.

Sam Carruthers of San Jose State, college freshman star in the pole vault with a height of 16 feet, one-half inch.

McLaren, noted for setting the pace in indoor races, stayed behind Bachelier for most of the race.

The winning time of 8:52.0 was well above the Canadian open record of 8:33.4, Bachelier had a time of 8:35.4, while Dave Ellis of Toronto, representing the University of Eastern Michigan at Ypsilanti, was third in 9:01.

"I just wanted to go out and do my best against the big names," McLaren said. He won the individual title in the Canadian intercollegiate cross-country championships at Montreal last November.

McLaren, a fourth-year honors zoology student at Guelph, finished second to the Ellis-Bachelier race during the Maple Leaf Indoor Games last winter in Toronto.

"Seeing as this was my first indoor meet of the season I feel I have shown Canada is a good indoor season this year," McLaren said.

In the men's 300 metres, both Turner and Evans got off to good starts, but bumped into each other on the first turn and lost their balance.

Sports On All Fronts

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — Allan Cup champion Galt Hornets lost 4-3 to the East German national team-in-the exhibition match here Monday. The East Germans took a 3-0 lead midway into the second period before the Canadians came back with two goals in the latter half of the period and one in the first part of the third period to tie the game. East Germany scored the winning goal with 11 minutes to go in the final period and held off a furious attack by Galt. Right winger Ernst Reiter scored two goals for Galt with defenceman Doug Kelcher getting the other.

TORONTO (CP) — The 1970 Canadian Open golf tournament will be held at the London Hunt and Country Club July 2 to 5, a week earlier than previously announced. Previously, the Canadian Open had been scheduled for July 9 to 12, putting Canada's $125,000 tournament into direct conflict with the dates of the British Open.

GUELPH (CP) — Lou Fontinato resigned Monday as coach of the Guelph Wheat Kings of the Western Ontario Junior Hockey League. Fontinato, who played with New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League before he received a serious back injury in 1962, said: "We've tried everything else to get them (Guelph) winning consistently except a change of coaches and I hope it will be for the best so far as hockey is concerned. The Kings won four of the first six games in the league but after that dropped 12 straight games. Fontinato coached Guelph to a fourth-place finish last season.

DETROIT (AP) — Alex Delvecchio, the seventh-highest goal scorer in National Hockey League history, is using a good luck charm from Miss America in trying to break a jinx and get his first goal of the season. The 38-year-old captain of the Detroit Red Wings leads the team this season in assists with 22, but in 30 games he has not added to his career goal total of 375. Pamela Eldred of Detroit, the reigning Miss America, gave the crown-shaped pin, which she wore in the Miss America Pageant in the fall, to the Red Wings. A hockey fan, she donated the charm while a guest at an NHL game last Friday night.

A Defenceman, at That!

Another 21-year-old in Front

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten years ago this week, the individual scoring leader of the National Hockey League was a left winger, about to turn 21 and playing in his third NHL season.

This week, as the decade comes to a close, another 21-year-old, in his fourth NHL season, is the leader.

The big difference now is that Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins is doing what no other defenceman in NHL history has done: leading the point parade at this stage of a season.

The player who ushered in the '60s with a rush was Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks. Hull, who turned 21 on Jan. 3, 1960, had 44 points 10 years ago this week, including 22 goals. He finished that season with his first of three scoring titles and led the league in goals with 39.

He was to lead the league in goals six more seasons, including three in which he burst past the 50 goal mark after tying the record of 50 in 1961-62. His 58 goals last season is the current record.

Orr displayed what was to come last season when he set two records for a defenceman: 21 goals and 64 points. The one mark he did not break was for assists by a defenceman.

Pat Stapleton of Chicago did that with 50, but with 42 games left to play, Orr needs only eight assists to break that mark and 11 points to crack his own record 64 points.

Orr has eight points ahead of the total centre Phil Esposito of Boston compiled after 34 games last season. Esposito went on to smash the points record with 126 and the assist mark with 77.

Orr currently has 54 points on 11 goals and 43 assists, an eight-point lead over centre Ron Goyetie of St. Louis Blues. Goyetie has 16 goals and 30 assists. Frank Esposito is third with 39 points.

Young Walt Tkaczuk of New York Rangers is fourth with 37 points, one more than Ab McDonald and Frank St. Marseille of St. Louis and New York's Dave Balon.

A decade ago Chicago netminder Glenn Hall, now with St. Louis, was the leader with six shutouts. Now, another Chicago netminer, still eligible for the rookie award, is leading in shutouts with seven, one more than Hall had in the entire 1959-60 season.

The leader is Tony Esposito, Phil's younger brother, who has also combined with Denis Dorjdy to give the Hawks the lead in goals-against average at 2.25.

Jacques Plante of St. Louis, on his way to his fifth straight Vezina Trophy award 10 years ago with Montreal Canadiens as leading goalie, now has the best individual goals-against average — 2.00. Plante, who will be 41 Jan. 17, is four percentage points below Esposito's individual mark of 2.13.

Top Hess Trotter Destroyed

TORONTO (Special) — The horseless carriage has cost Trenton one businessman Colbourne Hess the most valuable member of his harness racing stable.

Mountain Flight, leading money - winner in Hess' stable of a dozen horses, had to be destroyed Monday after it bolted from Greenwood racetrack onto a busy east - end intersection and was struck by two cars.

The five - year - old gelding trotter, winner of some $6,000 in his second racing season for Hess, was being hitched up to be jogged when it bolted and dragged its sulky over a nearby wire fence that sprang down under the horse's weight.

Five blocks later, after the sulky had broken loose, Mountain Flight was struck by two cars, breaking a front ankle beyond repair. The trotter was taken back to the track and given an injection.

"He wasn't, by nature, a nervous horse," a dejected Colbourne Hess said from his Trenton home. "Of course, I've got other trotters, but none like him."

Mountain Flight won $1,500 in 1968, his first racing season, and this year at Belleville, Kingston, and Toronto meets had won $6,800 in purses.

His fastest lifetime mile was a 2:08.4, run this summer at the Belleville Fairgrounds, and was the Quinte Riding and Driving Club weekly meet's best heat of the 1969 season.

Mountain Flight was not insured.

Supreme Sunday Effort Tires B's for Cobourg

COBOURG (Special) — One of their best performances of the Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey season may have cost the Belleville Ellis printers a 3-2 loss to Cobourg Cougars here last night Sunday.

Coach Floyd Crawford was pleased with his club's losing performance, and agreed the all-out effort in Sunday night's 3-2 upset of league - leading Kingston had taken some wind out of the Ellis sails last night.

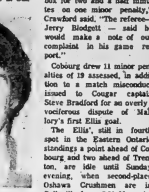
"Cobourg was the fresher club tonight," Crawford said. "This was our third game in four nights."

The Cougars, who vacated the league basement to Trenton Golden Hawks with the win, had been idle since Dec. 15.

"All the same, I'm pleased with our boys' effort" Crawford added. "We did everything but put the puck in the net to tie it up in the third period."

Two Ellis players who managed to turn the scoring trick were Brad Mallory and Terry Meagher.

Mallory's early second - period blast — Terry Meagher knotted the score 1-1 after Paul Racine had given the Cougars a 1-0 edge at 3.4 of the opening period.



Two goals by Gary Hart — one at 11.54 of the second period, and another at 16.34 of the final 20 minutes gave the Cougars the lead for good.

Meagher scored on a blast from the slot a minute later but Belleville couldn't manage the equalizer, despite pulling goalie Ron Jury for an extra attacker.

Meagher's pair of points may have put them atop the individual scoring race in the six - team league, pending release of official statistics later this week.

One leading Ellis scorer who didn't make last night's trip was John McConnell, one of Crawford's more promising rookie prospects.

Also missing without explanation was Brian Coughlin, benched by Crawford in Sunday night's win over Kingston.

TERRY MEAGHER
Another 2 - goal day night; win over Kingston.

"If either of them had shown, we might have won," said Crawford, who was forced to go with two lines, with Bob Young forward.

"We got the goaltending we needed, but we just made two mistakes in backchecking that cost us a couple of goals. But at least one of them was an honest mistake," Crawford, forlorn.

Crawford expressed some concern about a pair of missed third - period breakaway chances by linemates Danny Lapeeche and Teddy Waite.

"It's something we've got to work on in our practices. I think most of the boys are going in too deep on those situations."

But Crawford's main complaint, echoed heartily by Ellis manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews, concerned some officioe Cobourg tactics.

Both, claimed Cobourg's time - keeper had made Belleville penalties too long, and Cobourg ones too brief.

"Dali Lambert was in the box for two and a half minutes on one minor penalty," Crawford said. "The referee — Jerry Blodgett — said he would make a note of our complaint in his game report."

Cobourg drew 11 minor penalties of 19 assessed, in addition to a match misconduct issued to Cougar captain Steve Bradford for an overly vociferous dispute of Mallory's first Ellis goal.

The Ellis', still in fourth spot in the Eastern Ontario standings a point ahead of Cobourg and two ahead of Trenton, are idle until Sunday evening, when second-place Oshawa Crushmen are in Belleville for a 7.30 Memorial Arena game.

Gas House Teams Not Alphabetical

The Gas House Hockey League could be called the "Four-M" Club, with the name of each of the four loop teams beginning with the same letter.

But that's as far as the alphabetical order goes, as proven by the standings after last night's ninth week of league action.

The Merchants maintained their four-point first place lead by stalling a Mulroney's comeback bid at 5-4. Meanwhile, the Mustangs kept within striking distance by downing Marysville 4-2.

Wayne McTaggart's goal from Carl Boomhower with less than four minutes to play proved to be the winner for the league-leading Merchants, who also got goals from Jim Woodcock, Paul Goodfellow, Carl Boomhower, and Jerry St. Denis.

Mulroney's bid to escape the league basement fell short despite goals by Terry Casselman, Roger Crosby, Paul Ford, and Dave Emerson, all within the last 27 minutes of the game.

Meanwhile the second-place Mustangs were never behind in their 4-2 win over third-place Marysville, which came courtesy goals by Jack Garvin, Gary Reid, Tom Woodley and Don Irwin.

Paul Cooney and Barry Marshall replied for Marysville, who drew one of only three minor penalties assessed in the game.

Belvedere Best Both Ways In Quinte League

After their 3-0 win over Alumninum Stars last night, no Quinte Hockey League team has scored more goals or had fewer scored against them than Belvedere Hotel.

Goals by Elmer Cain, Bill Goodfellow, and Larry Marshall and Larry Dipietro's shutout was all the Hotelmen needed to retain their share of first place in the four - team standings.

Meanwhile, Central Taxi stayed in an 11-point, first-place tie with Belvedere, by earning a 3-1 decision over last-place Stinson's Construction.

Belvedere have now scored 23 goals, four better than Central, and tops after the first nine games of Quinte League action. Dipietro's 10 goals against are only matched by Central goalie Ron Genereaux's identical record, for an outstanding 1.33 average.

Defenseman Larry Peltier picked up two assists in last night's Belvedere win, with Bill Goodfellow, Joe Gaherty, and Jack Lucas each earning a helper.

Ron Morgan's crease-edge shot on a play from Maurice Switzer and Bill Barberstock gave Central Taxi an early 1-0 edge in the second half of the league's weekly doubleheader.

Rick Devaud knotted it 1-1 on a play from Bruce Symons and Garry Genereaux before Brian McCormick gave Central the lead for good on Court Bralley's centring pass from behind the net. Each team was playing a man short at the time, following a minor fracas between Stinson's Billy McGuire and Central's Tom McDougld.

Andy Prudden provided the Taximen with an insurance goal late in the game on a play involving linemates Terry Casselman and Doug Bolte.

The winners drew five of seven penalties handed out by referees Bill and Ted Hurst.

JUST TO PLEASE
THE EMPEROR!

Around 50 A.D., the Emperor Nero was served a delicious concoction of fruit and snow . . . the forerunner of our beloved ice cream. The Chinese added milk and Europeans brought the recipe to America where it's been a favorite since colonial times.

If the family prefers to buy their ice cream at the store instead of making it, turn that still-useful ice cream freezer into cool cash now with an Intelligencer Want Ad. Call 962-9171 for details and ask for Classified.

TV Column

Cavett Back for Third Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Cavett returned Monday night for his third go-around on ABC and seems, finally, to be the right man in the right time slot.

He has a series of chairs in a simple set to accommodate the guests.

The main difference is Cavett's quiet and effective way of stimulating bright and vital discussion. In his presence there was some standard banter in the Carson style with comedian-writer Woody Allen. The interesting portion came with the introduction of Metropolitan opera soprano Beverly Sills, who spoke of her family and the familiar generation gap. Miss Sills said she did not particularly want to communicate and that she liked the gap. "I hope it stays. What I don't need is a 20 year-old buddy."

Then came Jacqueline Gren nan Wexler, former nun, former president of Webster College and now the new bend of New York's Hunter College.

Mrs. Wexler defended the young, spoke of their need for involvement. It was a spirited and live conversation among intelligent people but shed some light on an over-discussed subject.

The commercial interruptions often broke up good, rolling conversations. But the tone of the 100 minutes has great spontaneity, and if Cavett's mix magic with people holds, the program may produce more insominiacs than anything since before Jack Paar quit the late night battle field.

Hair Preview Production Plays to Liberal Audience

TORONTO (CP) — The rock musical Hair opened at the Royal Alexandra Theatre Monday night complete with the hit songs and nudity which has made it a smash in cities around the world.

The preview production played to an audience drawn largely from the ranks of the downtview Liberal Association, which had booked the first night.

Former federal minister of transport Paul Hellyer and Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixen were among those on hand as the Mississauga Tribe—as the Toronto cast is known—disrobed onstage, kissed members of the audience, handed out flowers and swung from ropes.

Two critics from the Globe and Mail who attended the first night performance gave it generally good marks.

Jamie Portman, Drapeur wrote that "if the Liberal turned grouny audience of last night is any indication, there'll be a lot of freaked out respectable citizens on the loose in Toronto, with Hair's through with us."

The official opening of the show is scheduled for Jan. 11, although at least two more previews performances have been scheduled for political, social or charity organizations.

Weapons' Cost Above Estimates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of major U.S. weapons systems is running nearly 50 per cent ahead of original estimates and no central agency is keeping track of all arms development information, a congressional group has been told by Assistant Comptroller General Robert Keller.

Keller said Monday that the estimated cost of 38 major weapons systems is $82.-900,000,000; although initial estimates placed the cost at $42.-000,000,000.

Lasting Safety for Peasant Is Overriding Aim in Vietnam

How do the Vietnamese people in the countryside feel after another year of war? And what has happened to the Viet Cong? Two Associated Press men who have covered the war since 1962 assess the situation after revisiting battle scenes and provinces from south to north. This is the second of three reports.

By PETER ARNETT
and
HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — The promise of lasting safety for the South Vietnamese peasant and the assurance that the Viet Cong will not return to dominate his life are overriding aims of all U.S. and South Vietnamese efforts in Vietnam today.

The defeat of the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese army seem no longer paramount. Safety in the markets and fields, and the promise to maintain it, have swung while Vietnamese populations away from Viet Cong influence and brought a semblance of normal life to millions.

The villages have been the scene of major battles in the past, the peasant always a pawn. The promise that has won his cooperation is that there will be no more battles in his neighborhood.

It is taking a two-fold military effort to keep the promise. On the one hand, the U.S. and South Vietnamese forces are driving the Viet Cong from population centres into remote jungles, mountains and across the borders; with the other hand they are keeping them there.

American commanders say they would do everything that it takes, including fighting big battles, to prevent a comeback.

"The people and the Communist armies are being separated. The Communists can no longer be able to swim in the seas of people. We are pulling the population out from under them, and clubbing him on the head when he comes back."

That is the view of Lt.-Gen. Julian Ewell, commander of the four U.S. divisions that fight in the war zones around Saigon.

A survey by these reporters shows that in only a fifth of the 43 provinces do large, mobile Viet Cong forces remain among the population. From the air and highways it can be seen that these provinces have not knot up with the others.

The guerrilla units that once constituted the backbone of the insurgency are no longer in fighting shape. Most still exist but are under strength; to avoid destruction they have left their home villages to live in the swamps and jungles.

The Viet Cong's military weakness in the villages came as a surprise to the Americans and South Vietnamese who spearheaded the move back into the countryside.

The district of Tra On, in the Mekong Delta, considered under complete Viet Cong control last January, was taken without a shot in July. Heavy fighting was expected when government troops entered Quat Ri, a village at the Mekong River's edge. None developed and it turned out that Quat Ri and its 12,000 people had been ruled by 12 armed guerrillas.

In southern villages the Viet Cong considered themselves too weak to resist and left for the hills, hoping the government armies would pass through.

This must have come as a great surprise to them that this time we stayed," commented Capt. Ly Ba Nhiegu, whose paratroops assist the local militia of Dinh Binh hamlet on the central coast. "We sit down here with their wives and families, and they are stuck up there in the mountains, pretty hungry and alone."

The once-powerful Viet Cong district and province chiefs who commanded every level of society now are in many cases forced to rule their fiefdoms from exile, surrounded by North Vietnamese bodyguards.

In many areas it is believed the guerrillas made a major miscalculation.

They dropped the ball last November. They under-estimated our promise to the people to stay," says an American official in the delta. "They assessed our program wrongly. They thought it would just collapse and fizzle out like all other pacification programs.

"Earlier this year Viet Cong strategy was just to clobber American units and kick them around and cause as many American casualties as possible. Then belatedly they had to recognize they could not get back into their places—we had moved in."

By the best available estimates there are 80,000 armed guerrillas and just as many members of the secret insurgent government. The guerrillas are being killed over and over again. There are far more dead than alive.

But only one in five of the known active supporters and secret organizers has been eliminated. "We have not crippled the Viet Cong infrastructure by any means," says a senior American in Saigon.

While down in their effectiveness now, the guerrillas and the secret organizers have much to sustain them. Oldtimers remember the guerrillas' success in organizing the countryside against the regime of Ngo Dinh Diem in the early '60s. The young ones who survived remember many local successes that culminated in the Tet offensive less than two years ago.

The presence of the North Vietnamese nearby encourages the Viet Cong, and they expect their brothers from the North to aid with replacements and weapons. The North Vietnamese talk about final victory. The guerrillas believe this.

But the Robin Hood aura that once surrounded the Viet Cong has been exploded. Five years ago, many people looked upon the Viet Cong as an organization that could make everything possible with superior skills, discipline and dedication.

"We used to admire these guys but now they botch everything," says a U.S. soldier in the field. "They plant a mine and blow themselves up. Basically they are amateurs now."

In some areas, the fury of the Tet offensive turned the people against the Viet Cong. Guerrillas have to commute into Hue to hand out leaflets; the population will not permit them to live there.

The real weapon of the future for the Viet Cong could be the complacency that may set in with quietude, as it has so many times before. Now Saigon's forces have a momentum. As long as Americans go along on ambush patrols and stay awake at night in the watchtowers, the South Vietnamese tend to match the effort.

When the Americans go home, when the patrols and ambushes become boring routine, any lack of enthusiasm may mean the difference between success and failure.

If the guerrillas survive until cracks show in the security screen they may have a chance of a comeback. "In a vacuum appears, they move in," said a U.S. battalion commander in Phu My district.

The underground in many hamlets and districts likely waits for the new day.

In areas where the population has trust in the district and province chiefs, and truly believes in the promise of a secure future, it is possible to take on the underground.

Secret blacklists name the hunted. Some of the most-wanted people are named on posters. In a district of 22,000 people north of Hue 695 names are on the blacklist. Since October 500 of them have been killed, captured or surrendered.

The armed forces that are the government's instrument in the rural breakthrough are undergoing an evolution called Vietnamization.

It will move most of the regular Vietnamese army divisions to the frontier shield that at present separates the population from most of the North Vietnamese divisions and their associated Viet Cong regulars.

Government territorial forces and home guards recruited and serving in their native provinces will protect the countryside inside the shield.

In two northern provinces this change has already taken place. A senior American officer calls it the war's most important single event.

There is another motive in organizing the population: a political vacuum in the countryside now that the Viet Cong has been pushed back or held down.

In Vinh Long province 100,000 of the 500,000 people have been recruited for the Home Guard. "We don't need that many people, the idea is to organize them to create a political base," an American aid official commented.

Some province chiefs feel that the great challenge of 1970 will be to interest the peasants in local politics. One American concerned in the war observes:

"If we can earn their allegiance and get them deeply involved with their local governments we have got it made. Then we will be in and the Viet Cong will be out."

Sicily Hit By Quake

TRAPANI (AP) — A strong earth tremor jolted western Sicily and sent thousands fleeing into the streets in chilly dawn weather today.

The tremor hit Gibellina and other inland towns which were destroyed by a quake in January, 1968.

Thousands still living in shantytowns despite billions of lire earmarked for reconstruction by the state ran out of the hills and spent hours in the nearfreezing cold.

Residents woke up suddenly as their beds vibrated and chandeliers, tables and other furniture trembled in the buildings.

The earthquake observatory in Trapani reported the tremor reached up to the sixth degree (very strong) in the 12-degree Mercalli scale. The Gibellina area has been shaken by more than 150 tremors in the last two years.

Alcoholic Denies He Has A Problem

If you are a "social drinker" you will admit it. You answer, "Yes. I take a drink or two. But I can hold it. Never take too much." But if one is an alcoholic, he (or she) rarely admits he has a problem. And students of the disease know that not until he admits it will he ever get well. And I say "We'll" advisedly, because chronic alcoholism is an illness, and the fact that it is solely up to us to do something about it.

I urge wives (or husbands) to run, not walk to the nearest Al-Anon group where they will obtain invaluable help from many other wives and husbands who have already travelled this "road to Hell." I urge anyone with this problem to write to Alcoholics Anonymous, World Services, Inc., Box 459, Grand Central Post Office, N.Y.C., N.Y. 10027, for literature on what is also called alcoholism. — Mrs. J.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can anything be done about varicose veins?

Last night I sat next to a man at a dinner party given by a colleague. He blandly admitted that he drank up to 10 bottles of beer every day — and almost twice as much on weekends. Yet he considered himself just a social drinker.

Here is the schedule of another man who thinks he is under complete control of his three martinis and two beers for lunch; two good "shots" of bourbon in mid afternoon; a triple-shot of bourbon before dinner, and a "good bill of drinking" at friends' houses at least three times a week. Each man is a "social drinker" teetering on the edge of chronic alcoholism.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I will not be able to make most people even vaguely understand the mental anguish we go through as "practising alcoholics" — or how truly ill we are in mind, body and spirit. Or how much more rewarding in the long run is to be given kindness and understanding and love at the same time we are made aware of our illness; one veins of the hands? My doctor tells me I do not have them. Just says they are unusually prominent and not varicosed. But they are so large and feel heavy and thick. And they hurt. Do you think surgery might help? — Mrs. H.

Comment: I have not had experience with varicose veins of the hand. Like your own doctor, I doubt that you have them. In many instances they are prominent, especially when the hands are down.

Feel them over your head for a few seconds. Chances are the varicose veins will "disappear" — and return again when your hands are down. Perhaps you have been overly conscious of their appearance. I doubt that surgery will help. What does your doctor say about surgery?

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 11 years old and would like to know, how many bones are in the human body. — P. K.

Comment: Bones? About 206. Perhaps while we are about it, you'd like to learn how many muscles we have. About 639. (Muscles and bones are partners, you know. One is of not much use without the other.)

Abolishing Capitalism Next Goal of Unions Says Separatist

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Abolishing capitalism will be the next goal of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, Quebec separatist Michel Chartrand said Monday.

"We want to get rid of capitalism as soon as possible," said Mr. Chartrand who is president of CNTU's Montreal central council. The CNTU has more than 200,000 members.

Armed struggle to destroy capitalism and create a separate Quebec "may be necessary" Mr. Chartrand told about 100 students gathered at the University of Waterloo for the annual conference of the Canadian University Press.

But he did not advocate violence, he said in an interview later.

However, Charles Frevost, spokesman for Front de Liberation Populaire, said armed revolt might be necessary to free Quebec for measures that might be taken against it, including action of Canadian troops. Such troops would be acting in American interests, he said.

Asked if his remarks meant the FLP is stockpiling weapons, he said: "That means everything." The FLP organized many Montreal demonstrations in 1969.

* * *

Mr. Chartrand said he thought "unions are able to make a contribution to the revolution that will get rid of capitalism as soon as possible, with the help of the new generation."

* * *

He said he considers capitalism and Quebec independence part of the same problem because "capitalism has an English base in Quebec."

"We don't only want to take a share in the cake—we want our own cake . . . we want to run our own show and if some people don't agree with that, we don't give a damn."

Mr. Chartrand said he does not fear a lower standard of living that might result from separation because "it cannot be worse than now" with 250,000 men jobless and no money available for housing.

Maybe it's more important to clear the slums than to build an international Expo," he said later. Canada's "economic dictatorship is brainwashing the people day in and day out (through) radio and newspapers." Because the media only tell people what benefits capitalists.

Mr. Chartrand said the CNTU goal of abolishing capitalism will be included in a declaration of principle to be issued next October. At present the organization declines itself against both Communism and Marxism.

Mr. Chartrand and Mr. Prevost both said they are socialists.

Quebec Investment Below Essential Level

MONTREAL (CP) — Investment in Quebec has "fallen far short of the level required to maintain unemployment at an acceptable rate," an analysis shows.

The analysis was prepared by the Quebec division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and released Monday night by Bent K. Larsen, the division's manager.

Mr. Larsen said the analysis also revealed that the "spectre of ultra nationalism and its repressive effect on investment" is operating against the full realization of Quebec's economic potential in 1970.

"One can no longer deny that investment is being diverted elsewhere because of Quebec's political climate. If this is to improve, clearly the time is upon us where discipline, responsibility , decision making and action must become a reality."

Greater co-operation and coordination between government departments in matters relative to business is urgently needed, Mr. Larsen added.

In the manufacturing sector, investment in new plants and equipment in Quebec has remained fairly constant at around $600,000,000 in each of the last three years.

Similar investment in Ontario, however, was $1,200,000,000 in 1967, about $1,000,000,000 in 1968 and $1,200,000,000 in 1969. Comparable figures for Canada were $2,500,000,000 in 1967, about $2,200,000,000 in 1968 and $2,500,000,000 in 1969.

Mr. Larsen said the federal government's austerity program combined with high interest rates and credit restraint will make Quebec's task that much more difficult.

While Ontario's unemployment rate has remained virtually unchanged at 3.1 per cent since 1967, said Mr. Larsen, "unfortunately Quebec's unemployment has been increasing rapidly in the last two years."

And whereas in 1967 the average rate in Quebec was 5.3 per cent, he added, in 1969 the seasonally adjusted rate frequently exceeded seven per cent.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Stop saying it's time we went home. We ARE home!"

Regina Worried by Wave of Armed Robberies

REGINA (CP) — Hired in recences.

1932 at $50 a month to be Regina's first policeman, James Williams had an apoplectic fit when he asked town council for a free uniform.

The one-man police force, whose duties included impounding stray dogs, ringing the town bell four times daily and rabbing occasional crooks, explained to the council then:

"It's a trifle uncomfortable when my one suit gets wet."

Today, with a payroll of more than $1,782,000 annually for 212 officers and 36 civilians, Regina residents are critically appraising the men who enforce the law.

The city's 39th armed robbery of 1969 occurred during Christmas weekend—there were only 19 in 1968—adding new fuel to a vigorous controversy over methods of combatting crime.

Regina Police Chief Arthur Cookson has blamed businessmen for sending unaccompanied girls to deposit cash receipts in banks and judges for granting bail to known criminals awaiting trial.

Some of those on the target end of the crime wave have lost patience. One downtown storekeeper keeps a shotgun in plain view behind his counter.

"Just call it a form of insurance," he said.

Demonstrations against the police, prompted largely by the fatal shooting Dec. 8 of 19-year-old Nick Mjasyk of Regina, have become frequent occurAn inquest resumes next week into the death of Mjasyk. He was killed by a police bullet when he allegedly fled from police who wanted to question him about the theft from a grocery store armed robbery.

The demonstrators, mostly young people, also have been protesting on behalf of Carl Harris, 23, of Regina, who received a statutory declaration that four city policemen beat him up Oct. 16 on Regina's outskirts.

The four he named—one detective and three constables—appeared in provincial magistrate's court Monday and were remanded without plea on charges of assault causing bodily harm. Their trial is set for Jan. 14 and 15.

Meanwhile, a pledge of general support for police efforts has come from a group called the Responsible Citizens Committee, formed in January to study ways of combatting the increase in crime.

City police have been absolved of responsibility in another incident.

Two men died Christmas Eve in city jail cells, but Coroner J. M. LeBoldus said the men, both in their 40s, suffered from heart conditions. Dr. LeBoldus said there was no evidence of foul play in either of the unrelated incidents.

"I just hope that a certain element of our citizenry doesn't think we are trying to hide things," said the coroner. He called the deaths an unfortunate coincidence.

But as one policeman said, the jail deaths can only have a bad effect on the force's image in the public mind. No inquests have been ordered into the Christmas Eve fatalities.

Deseronto Plans Carnival

DESERONTO — February 6, 7, and 8 have been announced as the dates for Deseronto's Winter Carnival. Ernie Luck, who is in charge of the arrangements, stated that citizens and all organizations are co-operating to make it a great success. It will be something of an occasion, as it will be the first time the new Community Centre open-air rink will be used for a carnival.

Details for the program are falling into shape, Mr. Luck said, and he promises some unusual events.

President Nixon is understood to believe that no thought should be given to liberalizing imports from Communist countries until settlement of the Vietnam war in view of the support Hanoi gets from the Communist countries of Eastern Europe.

Although administration sources declined to say what impact the new bill might have on U.S. exports to Communist countries, their private view is that it will be minimal.

The new legislation removed earlier controls from items which the Communists could buy in Western Europe or in Japan anyway.

Bingo Bothers Him

Police Chief Says Wishart Dodges Duty

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief Finlay Carroll Monday criticized Attorney-General Arthur Wishart for leaving "proper legal matters" to police in deciding if bingo is legal under federal legislation effective Jan. 1.

The federal bill, C-150, makes the game illegal unless licensed by the provincial government. In explaining that no licencing system has yet been established in Ontario, a spokesman for the attorney general's department suggested last week that it would be up to police to decide to close games down.

"We are an enforcement agency and if the law says something we do it," chief Carroll said. "When it comes to 'grey legal matters' we should be informed by the attorney-general as to which way we step."

"In this case it is thrown into the hands of the police chiefs," he said.

Chief Carrol said he intends to take no action against legal bingos run by charitable organizations in London until definite directives are forthcoming from the attorney general's department.

Indian Sacrifices Boy to Goddess

AGRA, India (Reuters) — A wealthy landlord sacrificed a 16-year-old boy by hacking him to pieces and offering his blood to a goddess in the belief she would make him a millionaire, police alleged today.

Two persons, one a Hindu priest, have been arrested in connection with the alleged sacrifice but the landlord was still being sought, police said.

The incident is alleged to have occurred in Kukarson village, near this city of the Taj Mahal, about three weeks ago.

Police said the landlord dreamed that the goddess, Chavan Devi, would give him a boon of 20,000,000 rupee ($2,800,000) fortune if he offered the boy as a sacrifice.

They said he told the village temple priest and another person about his dream and promised them 60,000 rupees each if he got the fortune.

The landlord then asked a shepherd from a nearby village to send his son for a special darshan audience with the goddess and he agreed, police added.

Strictly Personal

Vast Social Forces at Work

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the main reasons for our sense of frustration today is that we fail to understand the vast social forces that have been put into operation by our industrial system.

The demand for equality and for affluence, which is relatively recent in human history is more consequence of capitalism than of Marxism. For modern industry (a product of the capitalist state) calls for trained and educated people, rather than the passive "hands" of a century ago.

Now, people who can read and write — much less attend college — will not long remain satisfied with the same kinds of opportunities and jobs and status as the working classes were content with in the past. The industrial system itself, more than any "radical" movement, has broken down the old class distinctions of the 19th Century.

Moreover, the steady rise in the price of labor, the cheaper goods which the poor can buy, and all the benefits of mass-production, mean that there is far less difference between the classes in a developed industrial society than in the agrarian economies of the past. Even the quite rich today can scarcely find the kind of service (and especially domestic servants) that the middle classes took for granted.

So, while we are busy defending "capitalism" as an economic way of life, socially and politically, the industrial system pulls us, willy-nilly, toward a form of socialism—for which, in a supreme irony of history, Henry Ford is more responsible than Marx and Engels!

The very success of capitalism, working in its high productivity, has undermined the position of the middle-class es, by making more goods available to more people, and by raising the wages of the "proletariat" to a point where factory employment is far preferable to domestic employment — and where craftsmen like plumbers and carpenters charge through the nose for doing jobs poorly that used to be done well.

We are puzzled and irritated by these changes in the social pattern, and prefer to blame them on "radical" or "revolutionary" doctrines, when in point of fact they are the perfectly natural result of a high-productivity culture which is continually erasing the differences between city and country, North and South, bourgeoisie and worker. (The labor unions obey, for example, are among the most conservative. If not regressive, forces in the country; having made their gains they are determined to keep the black proletarist in its place.)

We can no more return to 19th Century capitalism than a Russia can make Marx's naive doctrines work for its industrial economy; and the sooner both countries learn it, the better, for all of us everywhere.

Red Diplomats Not Excited by U.S. Trade Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new law liberalizing U.S. exports to Communist countries has been received with somewhat less than enthusiasm by diplomats of the affected nations.

What those countries really are interested in is liberalising of imports to the United States or, in other words, getting most-favored-nation tariff treatment for their products.

This was made clear from a check with diplomats representing Communist nations in Washington. The exceptions are Poland and Yugoslavia, two nations which already enjoy most-favored-nation tariffs.

None of the diplomats questioned would say his country was not interested in the Dec. 23 congressional action which in effect permits American exporters to compete with the exporters of Western Europe and of Japan for the Communist market in non-strategic goods.

But, the diplomats argued, to buy in the United States—and to pay for the purchase—would require an increase in their exports to the U.S. They said this remains impossible as long as their products are subjected to the prohibitive rates of the 1930 Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act.

The difference between most-favored-nation tariffs and those of the Smoot-Hawley Act averages 50 per cent which reaches 60 per cent or more on certain items.

Low tariffs were withdrawn from Communist nations in 1951. The low-tariff treatment was returned to Yugoslavia when that country defied Moscow in the late 1940s, and to Poland when it appeared to have gained some degree of independence in 1956.

Older Boys Parliament Debates Taxing Church

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The mace was missing at the start of Ontario Older Boys Parliament session and the premier was thrown out before adjournment Monday, but while it sat, the mock house approved a resolution calling for continued tax exemptions for churches.

The missing mace was found in the government benches after a half-hour treasure hunt by the leaders of the government and opposition.

The church tax issue decision was less than surprising, coming from a group supported by five churches, but some of the debate indicated a feeling among the older boys that the churches are less than perfect.

Bruce Mellott of Oakville, minister of ecclesiastical affairs, suggested that the exemption apply only to buildings used for worship.

Mr. Mellott suggested in his opening speech and in statements after the session that if he thought the government would make better use of the money than the churches, he would be in favor of giving it to the government. He said churches waste money when several operate similar programs in the same field.

Premier Malcolm Hiltz of Sturgeon Falls, who summed up the session later as a "negative type of debate," answered a suggestion that a tax on churches would force cancellation of some experimental church programs for lack of money.

He suggested it might not be a bad idea to hinder some church programs.

And he questioned the legitimacy of church expenses that might include an "$85,000 organ" or church vacation building.

"There is no way that anyone can tell me the present programs of the church are for the good of the people as a whole," he said.

Support for the motion and for the churches came from Stephen Hershey of Hamilton, leader of the opposition. He argued that the members of the church are responsible for any lack in the church and if the church is inadequate it is up to the members to rebuild it.

Mr. Hiltz was ordered from the house just before adjournment by a motion on which the government was outvoted by the opposition. Shining in the fun, half the cabinet abstained from the vote.

Rain After Heavy Snows Creates Floods in U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Torrents of rain dissolving tons of snow have sent normally placid streams and rivers surging from their banks, forcing hundreds of mountain residents to flee their homes in Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Tennessee authorities reported three dead as a result of flooding Tuesday.

The rains, pounding some areas for three days, pushed creeks out of their banks and into the streets of a number of small towns in Virginia and water was creeping into several others in West Virginia.

Hardest hit by the flooding appeared to be Lee and Wise counties in Virginia and areas along the Cumberland River in Kentucky, where 300 persons were evacuated from their homes by National Guard troops.

Virginia State Police said Lee County was nearly isolated with all transportation arteries severed by flooding and landslides. In Pennington Gap, rescuers braved driving rain and darkness during the night to steer refugees from flooded areas.

A number of persons were rescued from atop their cars stranded in the middle of flooded highways.

In Roanoke, Va., a family of five, including three small children, crawled along a fire truck ladder to escape from their car, stranded on a bridge over the Roanoke River. Police said the car was washed away shortly after the last person was rescued.

Small mountain hamlets in all four states were evacuated. Shortly after residents left the Virginia hamlet of Fort Blackmore water swirled through the downtown section five feet deep.

Hundreds of West Virginians fled their homes early today and late Tuesday as cascading rivers in the north and south — fed by melting snow and a two-day downpour — flooded dozens of lowland communities.

Kidnapped Woman May Have Called

LONDON (Reuters) — The family of Mrs. Alex McKay, the missing wife of a British newspaper executive, today believed she telephoned them with a two-word clue to her disappearance.

Amid a stream of hoax calls Tuesday, one was from a woman who sounded like the Australian-born Mrs. McKay, 55, who vanished from her home Monday night.

It was answered by David Dyer, Mrs. McKay's son-in-law, who said today: "I am convinced it was her voice."

The only two words Dyer caught were "grey Hillman." Then the connection went dead. A Hillman is a popular British automobile.

Army To Try Second Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army has decided to court martial S. Sgt. David Mitchell on charges of assault with intent to commit murder in the alleged My Lai massacre in Vietnam, it was learned today.

The decision was made by Maj.-Gen. John Boles, commanding general of the 1st Armored Division at Fort Hood, Tex., after an investigation of charges against Mitchell involving 30 South Vietnamese civilians.

Assault with intent to commit murder carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, army sources said.

Last Saturday, Mitchell told reporters at the Pentagon: "I am not guilty of the accusations against me."

Mitchell would be the second soldier to go before a court martial in connection with the My Lai incident.

He was a squad leader in the platoon of Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., in the action at My Lai, a village near the northern coast of South Vietnam, on March 16, 1968.

U.S. Space Research Curtailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision to shut down, and possibly auction off, a major new research centre even before it gets into full operation points to possible broad cuts in the U.S. space program.

"We are not going to have a larger budget, congressional action on taxes has caused us to be cut back, and as a result, we have to find ways of economizing," said administrator Thomas O. Paine of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

First victim of the economy axe was NASA's ultra-modern Electronics Research Centre at Cambridge, Mass., a 29-acre complex of six buildings now nearing completion at a cost of $36,000,000.

Some 100 specialists in advanced electronics research already have been installed in the new facilities. An additional 750 are housed in temporary rented quarters. NASA had planned to invest about $60,000,000 million and employ several thousand persons to make this the heart of government study programs in the electronics field.

Public Leaders Survey Future

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Tomorrow shouldn't be markedly different from any other day.

But Quinte dwellers should mark it well.

The first sun of 1970 also rises to ripen a harvest of change on the Quinte landscape.

It will be of unprecedented dimensions, invigorating and vexing.

That's the indications from the men who will be closest to the action — the public leaders who will co-pilot the district through the first phases of the seventies.

Their predictions for the new decade are published on the first page of the second section of today's Intelligencer.

Dr. Richard Potter MPP scans the potential of Quinte riding. Mayor Russell Scott views Belleville. There are comments from Duncan McDonald, Trenton's new mayor, Sidney Township reeve Jack Bush voices his predictions — and concerns — along with his municipal neighbor, Thurlow township reeve Horace Casey. For Hastings County, the forecasts may contain variations. But the theme is common: The seventies will be a new experience for the Quinte area — an adventure in change in a climate of growth.

The expansion will be welcome. Change can be taxing and the seventies likely will bring vexing problems. But from the brew of events may come a richer, more vigorous formula for Quinte living.

Dr. Potter puts it one way: "It's going to be a very fascinating 10 years as far as we're concerned."

Spread over a 10-year tenure the fascination may thin with the years, and single incidents may not always be seen as significant.

In sum total, however, the stream of events could make the seventies the biggest happening in Quinte history.

Change and growth may well continue to evolve long after the decade ends. But it will be the decisions of the seventies that make the next 10 years crucial.

To quote Mayor Scott: "It's an opportunity for all of us. If we don't seize it now we could miss the boat and sit around for another 50 years and let the world go by."

At the core of events is the urban sprawl along the Bay of Quinte shoreline — from Belleville to Trenton, north through Sidney and Thurlow townships.

Here the style of expansion already has been set. Belleville

The creation of regional assessment offices to carry out municipal assessment functions has created a vast filing job for these supervisors at the Hastings and Prince Edward temporary assessment offices on Quinte Street in Trenton. Hard at their monumentous task are: C. Jevons (left), Leighton Thompson, Clarence Bird and Allan Smith.

Assessment Makes Its Switch

TRENTON — A delay in the construction of new premises has caused regional assessment officials to set up temporary headquarters at 51 Quinte Street.

Moving day was Tuesday and the staff of 24 will report to the temporary headquarters Friday. The temporary location is located upstairs in the old P Building.

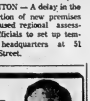
Hastings and Prince Edward regional assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson said officials were late in letting the contract for the building in which the new regional assessment offices will be permanently located.

He expected the structure would be ready by April and that the staff would be increased to approximately 40 at that time.

Of the modern temporary headquarters Mr. Thompson said: "We're cramped here, but I guess you could say we have 'real togetherness' because we have found that the space we need.

"But we have to make some concessions to facilitate the changeover from the old system in which each municipality was in charge of its own assessment.".

Mr. Thompson added that no re-assessment work would be done in 1970, explaining: "We will simply continue the operation as it has been, except that we will be working out of a regional office with a regional organization, and we won't start re-assessment of the area until 1971."



The new Hastings and Prince Edward regional assessment offices will be situated on the west side of Division Street near downtown Trenton, on the main floor of a three-storey office building.

To date this year South Marysburg has paid out $1800 for sheep and cattle lost to wolves. Only $800 was budgeted for this at the first of the year.

Two wolves shot yesterday in South Marysburg by hunters Larry and Keith Spafford will bring $25 bounties but it is felt that if the bounty was increased more hunters would spend time tracking down wolves.

An estimated 50 wolves are believed to be roaming Athol and South Marysburg township.

Great Strides Says Clarke

Hastings county board of education has ended its first year with "a feeling of accomplishment".

"We have made great strides," said board chairman James Clarke. "The county boards have made it possible to accomplish things that could not have been done otherwise."

No Great Problems: Buckley

"A hectic year, but a very smooth one too," was the way E. J. Buckley, chairman of Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board described the first year of operation.

One of the most spread-out educational jurisdictions in the province, the local separate school area extends from Lake Ontario to the boundary of Algonquin Park in the north.

"We have experienced little friction, when you consider the size and scope of what happened," said Mr. Buckley, in reference to the creation last Jan. 1 of the school board area.

Pleased with the smoothness with which the board has operated this year, the chairman noted that next year's task will be to "tighten up operations, and work for more efficient and effective control."

"The new Georges Vanier school attracted great interest this year," Mr. Buckley remarked. "Some doubt the effectiveness of many new educational ideas being used there. But that is the purpose of the new programs — to test new ideas in day to day operation."

He cited extension of kindergartens throughout the county, introduction of French in many elementary schools and the start made on provision of psychological services and audio-visual resources.

"Next year we hope we can move on to institute further services for children," the chairman said.

County boards of education, created last Jan. 1 by decree of the Ontario legislature, survived a year-long barrage of criticism, leveled chiefly at their size and remoteness from the ratepayers and the increase in the education tax last spring.

"The public is becoming more sophisticated, more aware of what is available," said Mr. Clarke. "People are asking for more educational services, but on the other hand, they object to higher taxes."

"This is our great problem, faced by all levels of government. We must balance the public's desire against its willingness to pay. Our board walks this dividing line, and if it doesn't put its foot too far on either side it has been successful."

Mr. Clarke suggested a method for "preserving the balance" during 1970.

"We can do it," he predicted, "by informing the public and consulting with the people."

Wolf Survey Urgent Says Reeve Ralley

PICTON (Staff) — An increased wolf bounty and an organized hunt to rid the county of the predators which are taking a heavy toll in cattle and sheep is favored by members of Prince Edward county council.

South Marysburg Reeve Allen Ralley told council at the December meeting that "wolves are so plentiful that you can get them from your back door."

He was concerned over the possibility of rabies and said a survey of the wolf problem in other municipalities could lead to a re-evaluation of the

Levees Planned Jan. 1

New Year's Day in the Quinte district will be the occasion for receptions and levees, held by the military and private clubs.

At the Belleville Club, members, their wives and guests are invited to a reception from 3 to 5 p.m. Thursday. A three-piece combo will provide background music for the event.

The Trenton Club's annual reception will be held at the same time at the club's Exhibition Park building.

The annual New Year's Day levee for officers and civic dignitaries will be held Thursday at 11 o'clock at the Officers' Mess at Belleville Armories.

The Officers' Mess at CFB Trenton will be the scene of the annual At Home for officers and their guests. The officers will receive between 2 and 4 p.m.

Youth Shot In Thigh By Accident

TRENTON — A Trenton youth is in Trenton Memorial Hospital today, following a hunting accident Tuesday.

Stephen Hoyt, 16, received a gunshot wound in the left thigh when a shot gun was accidentally discharged by one of two boys with whom he was hunting. The accident occurred just back of the Tate Sideroad, ½ mile north of Highway 2, three miles west of Trenton.

Brighton provincial police have not released the names of the other two youths and are continuing their investigation.

A Happy New Year

None the worse for vagrancy, he was greeted by Esther Draper, 35 Bongard Crescent, nine-year-old niece of owners, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Phillips of Kemptville. He'll be returned to them in time for happy New Year.

Boom! Permits Issued Make It Official

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

From the standpoint of new construction, 1969 was "a very good year" in Belleville.

Not only did the city rise up its second highest building total value in history, but a record high was established for new residential construction.

The total value of building permits for the year, according to the records of city building inspector Grant Stickle, was a whopping $9,678,270 of which new residential construction accounted for $4,117,400. Total permits were issued 675.

By way of contrast the building total for 1968 was $6,072,585 with 570 permits. The value of new residential construction last year was $3,452,500.

The record high for building in Belleville was in 1965 when the permit was issued for the new hospital. That year the building permit value was $14,471,388 although residential construction in the same period was only $1,822,200.

Apartment house construction accounted for a big share of this year's residential building total, the major project and one which is rapidly changing the West Hill skyline, being the new 82 - unit, eight-storey building on West Bridge Street hill.

The new structure, soon to reach its final height, is scheduled for completion some time in the late spring.

But with the swing to apartment living, this year also saw numbers of 12-plexes and six-plexes going up in the older residential sections of the city. The year saw permits issued for a total of 311 new residential units.

But high as the residential building total was for 1969, more than 50 per cent of the over-all total was made up in new industrial and commercial construction.

The year saw unparalled activity in the acquisition of new industry and several of the projected new plants are already well under way or nearing completion.

Among these is the new Brooke Bond plant in the city's northeast industrial park area, and the new Constellation carpet manufacturing plant on East Dundas Street.

Topping the institutional and commercial building list for the year was the new Unemployment Insurance Commission regional office on Dundas St., immediately east of the Belleville Plaza which provided employment for approximately 300 persons, many of them transferred here from Toronto.

Also adding to the industrial total this year but with permits not yet issued are the new Electronic Controls Ltd., and Wilson Sporting Goods plants, both of which will be constructed west of Sidney Street and just south of Highway 401.

Also Four Seasons Hotels Ltd., will build a motel — Bell training school on the city's waterfront east of the Bay Bridge Road. Upon completion Bell will utilize the motel facilities for the training and living accommodation of 3,500 company technicians annually, brought to Belleville for updating of their skills.

Announced early last summer, a construction start on the motel complex was held up through necessity of a zoning change which was granted by the Ontario Municipal Board in November.

Other commercial building activity in the city saw the construction of three new restaurant take-out facilities, two of them on North Front Street, and a third now nearing completion on Dundas Street East near the shopping plaza.

And what was termed the most ambitious single residential housing project in the city's history also got under way this year.

This was the Palmer Gardens subdivision in the Palmer Road - West Bridge Street area which eventually is to see the construction of more than 900 dwelling units.

These will include single family residences, duplexes, town housing and high rise apartments.

Construction of the single family residences is already under way by the principals, Gowanbrae Ltd. of Toronto. The high rise apartment structures will be built along Palmer Road opposite Centennial Secondary School and along Bridge Street across from the Belleville fairgrounds.

Subdivision plans also call for construction of 80 senior citizens unit- in an apartment complex on the Palmer Gardens site.

The year's residential building list also includes the construction of a 45-unit senior citizens housing apartment on Turnbull Street soon to be commenced, and 90 low rental town house units, some of which are already underway.

Official Plan: Will It Finally Come

Will Belleville get its long-awaited official plan next year?

It's still a matter for conjecture. But Belleville and Suburban Planning Board is advertising for a third planner to help speed up preparation of the plan.

"Progress next year will depend upon the hiring of a third planner," said assistant planner Frank Stokmans.

The terms of reference of Belleville and Thurlow councils, and the position has been advertised in Toronto papers.

During 1969, four subdivision plans were registered in the city; accommodating 1,000 housing units.

The planning board discussed and made recommendations on six subdivision applications, two approved five. One has not yet been registered.

Two amendments were approved to the old official plan of 1953. One permitted erection of the Four Seasons Motel and planning studies of the harbor and the other revised the major street pattern by deleting the proposed extension of Pine St.

Of 16 rezoning applications to come before the board, 13 were approved, two refused and one withdrawn.

One applications approved by the board was turned down by council. It called for rezoning of a site on Janlyn Cres. to permit row housing. Residents on the street objected to the Ontario Housing Corporation "geared to income" housing proposed for the area and council refused the rezoning.

During the year both planning director Bert Kenny and assistant planner Frank Stokmans became fully qualified planners and were admitted to full membership in the Town Planning Institute of Canada. Both academic qualifications and responsible planning experience are required for admission to the professional organization.

Growth Decade Ahead

and Trenton have made successive industrial coups. Urban settlement is mushrooming in the townships.

The expansion brought a heady spirit to local government at the end of the sixties. But it also helped confirm the catalogue of vexations city leaders must tackle in the seventies. Progress must be polite, controlled.

Again, Mayor Scott: "We've had the fanfares and flagwaving. I look forward to terrific progress and expansion. But our efforts must be concentrated in having this in orderly fashion."

And while local governments tackle the problems of planning, housing, pollution, taxsprials, garbage disposal and utilities services, the seventies will see new political preoccupation.

Ready to roost in the Quinte area, agree today's predicting politicians, is municipal reform.

"It's definitely coming," says Reeve Bush. "Our system of government is outdated."

The advent of reform already has been marked by light verbal duelling among Quinte municipal leaders. But the terms of the conflict have yet to be defined by most of those affected.

Warden Rodgers says frankly he can't visualize a "metro system" of government in the region.

However, before the seventies are too far advanced, a new level of government must emerge — if not by agreement, then by imposition.

If the impetus doesn't evolve locally it could be imposed by Queen's Park "in a way maybe we don't like," says Mayor Scott.

This also indicates the seventies will see more pressure as expansion demands planning and control.

How to bring the people closer to even more sophisticated administrations, also will be a problem of the seventies.

Some suggestions include more citizens' committees to assist and prompt municipal politicians, and regional provincial government bureaus with hot lines to Queen's Park available to taxpayers.

"I'd like to see much greater involvement of the individual with government," says Dr. Potter. "It's necessary that people participate . . . Only when we have that will we really have a true democratic system."

Inaugurals Jan. 5

Councils Start Monday

City council members who will guide the city's destinies for the next three years will officially take office next Monday.

The inaugural meeting of the new council is scheduled for the city hall council chambers for Jan. 5 commencing at 11 a.m.

The session is expected to be of comparatively brief duration with actual business kept to a minimum.

Featured will be the inaugural address of Mayor J. Russell Scott who will outline municipal requirements for the next three years, and the naming of representatives to the various city boards and commissions.

Signing officers for the new council term will be named and the borrowing and interim tax payment bylaws will be passed. First business session will be Jan. 12.

Trenton council will also hold its inaugural session on Monday — at the same time as Belleville.

But instead of waiting for a week to hold its first business session as Belleville is doing, Trenton councillors will come right back Monday evening for their first regular session of the year.

Enter 1970

To-night a decade comes to an end and newspapers and magazines have been busy presenting the highlights of these ten years now passing into oblivion.

In retrospect most of us know them by heart. The fifties, it will be recalled, closed with Fidel Castro consolidating almost 12 months of power which saw the beginnings of the first Communist government in the western hemisphere; ten years later it is still entrenched there.

The sixties have seen the rise and fall of the Kennedys, the Beatles . . . and some say the miniskirt . . . although, as in 1967, there has to be some doubt about its predicted demise. In outer space the United States reached its goal of casting off earth's bonds and landing men on the moon. But on earth the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse: War, Conquest, Famine and Disaster, still stalk the planet — with a fifth, Pollution, as companion in these latter days.

In Canada during this period we have witnessed the phenomenon of student power, protest, dissent; and by whatever term, and despite its overtones of anarchy, it has served to shake society out of its complacency. We have seen too the advent of the hippie, the drug cult, and now the communes involving the same category of young people living together in groups under one roof, some reports say in farm dwellings they have bought themselves. It is a new kind of society involving a new morality — and as it has been since the world's beginnings it has its good aspects as well as much that is evil.

If by living together in this fashion young people can discover a more meaningful way of life, an escape from the alienation which plagues so many in suburbia, in the pursuit of materialism and its false gods, then who is to say this is a bad thing? A current article in The Star Weekly about one of these farm communes in Ontario suggests its members are responsible and honorable people. By contrast, the commune raided by police in the Death Valley region of the American southwest recently revealed a very different situation, and led to the arrest of one Charles Manson and several young woman companions on charges of murder.

In Canada too we have the government of Pierre Trudeau which has started us down hitherto untrodden paths, cutting back on military commitments in Europe and diplomatic contacts in some areas while seeking to establish new ones elsewhere — notably The Vatican and Communist China.

Mr. Trudeau, self-styled pragmatist and — in the public eye at least — a "swinger" of the modern school, has shown himself to be a man of style and courage. He has proved this in his dealings with prairie farmers and youthful dissenters, and with the provinces and Quebec.

On the world scene, what lies ahead as we stand on the threshold of another decade? Of a few things we may be sure — further hostilities in Vietnam and no immediate prospect of a settlement between Arab and Jew in the Middle East, and quite likely more trouble in Ireland.

Thus Matthew Arnold's "darkling plain" is still to be seen everywhere. Throughout this sombre scene, however, there are also elements of hope and stability, of mirth and whimsy, of comic relief. There go the maxis — and the minis too, in all probability to remain in one form or another, as part of the world of the seventies.

Just In Passing

A few names we could all resolve to spell or pronounce correctly as we enter the seventies are Saint John (not St. John), New Brunswick, and St. Catharines (not St. Catherines, as we noted it spelled in a government establishment's house magazine recently).

The word 'exquisite' is pronounced with the emphasis on the 'ex' and not (as in a Kingston television advertisement) with the emphasis on the second syllable.

And is there no better term than to 'figure out?' Or that vulgar reference to the cost of a dinner (usually when speaking of a convention banquet) as, say, "$25 a plate."

Why bother mentioning the price at all?

Happy New Year

Co-operative Approach to Learning

Evolution of Education in A Participating Democracy

W. J. MUSGROVE, principal of Centennial Secondary School, is an address to Belleville Rotarians.

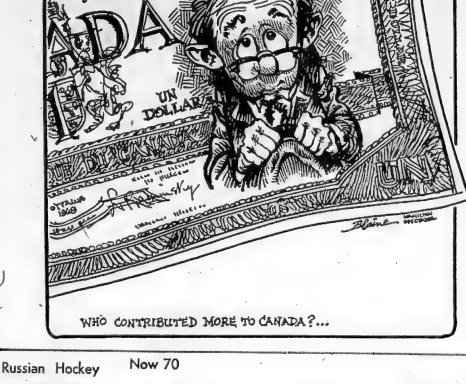
As we look back at the past perhaps the most dominant factor was unquestioned authority. Rules were established and you lived by them without considering their validity. Women wore hats to church or in some denominations men did. Many card players went to hell because they happened to be Methodists. If you lived by the established set of rules you were eventually successful.



Two characteristics were essential — the ability to learn all the rules and the willingness to accept them without question. Few questioned the authority of the government, the employer, the clergyman, the teacher or the parent. At school the important task was to dispense and learn facts which would ultimately lead to a diploma. It was not all bad. Some rules are essential. Some facts are irrefutable. But, if we may judge, the weakness lay in the theory that the world was black and white and that there were no greys. Curiosity was generally considered sinful.

Perhaps historians will look upon the last five decades as the second Renaissance. The traumatic experiences of two major wars and a world wide economic recession created an atmosphere of distrust of all authority. Monarchies were overthrown. Labor challenged employers. Scientists re-examined accepted hypotheses of the past. Business men discarded cash on the barrel practices for easy credit in economic defiance of old theories. Religious authorities began to review their philosophies. These changes which began slowly gradually accelerated as the new communications media, a product of the period, developed. It is this speed of change which sometimes seems beyond control that alarms many. There is a feeling that change without clear-cut and acceptable goals is worse than no change.

Possibly the future will see man assuming some control over the scientific monster he has created. Perhaps man will realize that rational rules are a necessity if he is to survive on an overcrowded planet. Authority of some type will be recognized as essential to provide a desirable stability. Religious philosophers may recognize that harmonious human relationship is the essence of their religion.

Let us apply these observations more closely to our schools. We are dealing with a new breed of young persons. The day of a child being seen but not heard has vanished. The acceptance of the opinions and ideas of his elders by the young person without question is a thing of the past. He accepts authority but wishes to participate in the rule-making. He is changing as his elders did from an authoritarian form of democracy to a participating democracy. The changes in the social structure have forced him to become more self-sufficient socially. The enormous pressure of a materialistic philosophy, coupled with the emphasis of the importance of the individual as opposed to the group in society tends to make him self-centred and to grasp idols.

The school still retains its function of imparting a body of knowledge. The approach is different in that it seeks also to develop procedures which enable the student to proceed independently. These procedures are equal in importance to the acquiring of skills and knowledge. The school also tries to develop the co-operative approach to learning. Since the learning procedure is a team effort each member must accept responsibility for his part.

Many Visit Ireland To Perfect Their English

Christian Science Monitor

For several decades now, Ireland has done anything but encourage the use of the English language. It has, in fact, sought to stack the cards quite heavily in favor of the old tongue, the Irish or Gaelic branch of the Celtic language.

This has had the honorable and understandable purpose of seeking to prevent this native speech from disappearing, as it still threatens to do.

There is, therefore, more than a little irony in the fact that the Irish capital is swiftly becoming a leading centre of English instruction for newcomers to the tongue.

Between 1963 and 1968, we are told by the Irish Tourist Board, the number of foreign students who went to Dublin to learn or perfect their English rose from 4,000 to 16,000, with even higher figure foreseen for this year.

Nor could they have chosen better. There is no more fascinating English dialect than the lilting brogue of Ireland, and Dublin is reputed the most charming of all.

It is said that nowhere in the whole world — English - speaking world is the art of conversation so well preserved as it is in Ireland. And if the art can take root elsewhere, we shall all be the richer therefore.

Russian Hockey Now 70

Ottawa Journal

The Russians are right. Their best hockey team shouldn't come all the way to Canada to play junior hockey teams — and second division juniors at that. Year after year the Russians have proved themselves better than Canada's best amateurs, at least in playing the powder-puff, no body - checking hockey of world tournaments. It couldn't have been expected that the Ottawa 67s or London Knights, reinforced by a few ringers or not, could offer any real competition to the Russians. The Soviets should play the top teams outside the NHL or even an all-star team of senior, mature players.

The Russian protests against the calibre of opposition would have been more impressive had they been made when they first learned of their Canadian schedule. But their delayed action doesn't change the principle: the Russians should be playing the big boys.

Noel Coward's Dazzling Talent

Hamilton Spectator

Noel Coward, whose seventieth birthday was honored by the London theatre the other day, has a long career behind him in which periods of rapturous popularity and public indifference have alternated.

Like many another, Coward started off young in the theatre. He was a boy of 11 when he made his first appearance in a children's fairy play. At 20, plenty of theatrical experience lay behind him and he was acting in his own play, "I'll Leave It To You." Four years later, with two or three more plays behind him, he starred in his own, "The Vortex", a resounding success in London and New York. He was 24 and had "arrived".

There followed a long series of plays and musicals. He was playwright, composer, actor, director and even tried his hand at the novel. A dazzling talent.

Perhaps of all his music, that in "Bitter Sweet" is, after 40 years, the best remembered. And of his plays, perhaps "Blithe Spirit" lingers longest in the mind.

Now at 70, Noel Coward may look back on a life of astonishing success. In the 1920s, his plays reflected the flapper age with its revolt against the old morality. This, oddly enough, is how many people still see him — and, happily, as Coward still sees himself — the voice of the brightly young Queen. May he long continue to be so.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thomas Alva Edison first demonstrated the incandescent electric lamp 90 years ago today—in 1879—when he was 32 years old. It was one of 1,000 inventions patented before his death in 1931.

They ranged from conceptions as simple as the megaphone to those as complex as the teleprinter. Edison invented the phonograph and experimented with talking and silent movies. The thermionic tube, without which radio would be impractical, was developed from an observation by Edison.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—RAF bombed Volwinkel rail yards north of Solingen, Germany, and Gestapo headquarters in Oslo; United States 5th Army troops reoccupied Barca, Italy; Hitler said the war would not end before 1946 unless by a German victory; Berlin was bombed by a record force of RAF Mosquitos.

Dilemma for Conservatives

Wilson Could Defer Election in UK Until 1971

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Harold Wilson's political enemies in Britain have been handed a Christmas package in the form of a new guessing game.

The game is to try to figure out whether the cagy Wilson will call a general election in 1970 or 1971. Up until recently, it has been taken for granted by most observers that it will be 1970, most likely in the fall.

But now word is being put about that the prime minister is under pressure from Labor party advisers to defer the balloting until the spring of 1971, around the end of his administration's mandate.

However the story started, it is bound to be disconcerting to such people as Opposition Conservative Leader Edward Heath, now enjoying a Christmas parliamentary recess skipping his seagoing yacht in races off Australia.

British newspaper savants say Wilson is being advised to delay the voting as long as possible in the hope that the electoral tide will get running in favor of Labor. It has been unfavorable for the last couple of years.

While the British economy has been rising under the impetus of belt-tightening measures by the Socialist government, the voters have been responding in reverse. Labor has been losing by-election seats right and left and, in the odd ones it wins, having majorities chopped drastically.

The popularity polls, don't give Wilson much of a guide to election timing, though he is supposed to follow them closely.

On almost the same day recently, one showed the Conservatives shooting into a 10 per-cent lead (amounting to a government debacle in an election) from about three per cent, while another showed them dropping to three per cent from nine.

In the circumstances, it's not surprising that Wilson is keeping his options open. A number are available.

He could call a general election in the spring of 1970, right after a sunshine budget proclaiming that, Britain's economic recovery enables the government to release taxpayers from some of the fetters of the last few years.

He could wait until the fall of 1970 when, supposedly, the economy will be in even better shape and the popularity polls shape up more pleasantly.

Or, he could play it more cautiously and wait until around the time his warrant runs out, a not-too-courageous move but one not unprecedented in Britain in recent years.

Meanwhile, Wilson has cleared the deck of some controversial legislation—abolition of hanging and wage restraint among them—and now is in a good spot to pick and choose his own time.

The ones who have to worry are his opponents. The Liberals won't be getting far. But the Conservatives, who hope to form the next government, are on the verge of launching a huge campaign designed to peak by next autumn. The idea of a 1971 election presents them with a dilemma.

Down with the Banner

Members of the Christian Service Brigade take down the banner that announced their four-day conference yesterday before leaving Albert College. The members are Graham Holley of Sarnia, Philip Barnes of Toronto and Rodney Ikeda of Montreal.

Christian Service Brigade Convenes

Approximately 100 youths from various parts of Ontario have vacated Albert College after the 11th annual leadership conference of the Christian Service Brigade.

The CSB is a Christ-centred weekday activity and achievement program for boys, with individual brigade units established in evangelical churches of various denominations throughout Canada and the United States.

Established in 1937, it is organized as a battalion for youths of 12 to 18 years of age and a stockade for those eight to 11 years of age.

It is geared to meet the needs of the boys' physical, mental social and spiritual development.

The participants in the four-day conference with the theme "leading now", received training to help them serve as junior leaders in their local battalions.

Together the youths, with representatives from as far east as Montreal and as far west as Windsor, took part in athletic activities, workshops and chapel sessions.

Highlights of the conference included messages by Rev. Eric Penny of Parkdale Baptist Church, Belleville, Rev. Ray Erickson, Bethel Church, Kingston, and Lieut. George Moore of the Burlington Police Department.

Record Steel Consumption Likely in 1970

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian steel consumption is expected to reach a record 8,700,000 tons in 1970 — about 500,000 tons more than 1969's estimated consumption.

Production, too, should set records. The latest estimate for raw steel output is 11,700,000 tons compared with an estimated 10,900,000 tons in 1969 and 11,100,000 tons — the previous record — in 1968.

Canada was a net steel exporter in 1968, and although strikes in 1969 helped reverse this picture, the Canadian record of steel productivity is generally conceded to be the world's best.

All three major Canadian steel companies have not only embarked on multi-million-dollar expansion and modernization programs, but have recently set aside nearly half as much money again for the control of air and water pollution at their plant sites.

Although 1969's Canadian steel production will undoubtedly be lower than 1968, one surprise is that it will be so high, considering that the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., at Hamilton, and Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd., at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., were closed by strikes for about three months.

D. S. Holbrook, chairman and president of Algoma, told a recent business outlook conference in Toronto one reason for good production in 1969 was that steel shipments in the first seven months — before the strikes began — were considerably above those in any previous comparable period.

In March, April, and May, total steel ingot production exceeded more than 1,000,000 tons each month, more than in any other single month in Canadian steel history.

Another indication of the tremendous build-up in inventories which helped Stelco, Canada's largest steel producer, weather the strike was the fact that although its raw steel production for the first nine months of 1969 dropped by nearly 20 per cent, sales for the same period were nearly $424,000,000 — down only about six per cent from the $452,000,000 sales in the first nine months of 1968.

As a result of the strike, the 18,000 steelworkers employed by Algoma and Stelco have a contract giving them about $1.30 more an hour over the next three years. Dominion Foundries and Steel Corp. workers, who did not strike, gained about the same increase from their company last summer.

Mr. Holbrook estimates that, partly as a result, steel imports will cost Canada about $80,000,000 more in 1970, with exports falling by about $70,000,000.

Almost as soon as the strikes were settled, the three major steel companies announced price increases of six per cent on rolled and galvanized sheet steel.

The steel companies maintain that even with the increase, Canadian prices are still almost 12 per cent lower than those at United States steel mills.

Stelco has estimated wage and fringe demands won by its workers will cost it $28,000,000 next year. The company says the new prices "are simply an effort to reclaim a portion of our costs."

But no one is seriously worried that 1969's disruptions will seriously impair Canada's steel-making industry in future.

Canada's three major companies had net earnings of about $69,000,000 for the first nine months of 1969 compared with $93,000,000 in the comparable 1968 period, with all the drop due to the strikes.

Farmers Urged to Protest Reduction in Milk Support

Farm groups and milk producers in the Quinte district have been urged to protest to their local members of parliament the $10 million November reduction in the federal dairy support program.

W. K. Wright, of the Prince Edward Milk Committee in his year-end report notes that the reduction came at a time when industrial milk producers were experiencing falling farm returns in the face of rising costs for the goods and services they buy.

He says statistics show that in the past two years there has been an over-all increase in Eastern Canada farm costs of 10.5 per cent.

In Ontario farm wage costs in the same two year period increased by 35 per cent.

In contrast, industrial milk returns, before transportation costs, dropped from $4.70 at the beginning of the 1968-69 dairy year to the level of $4.57 today.

In view of these figures, Mr. Wright says the dairy subsidy reduction seems ill-timed.

"In fact, I would suggest the various organizations and milk producers as individuals protest this reduction through submissions to your member of parliament and to the minister of agriculture, Mr. Olson."

"The Ontario Milk Marketing Board has already done this, but let us add more fuel to the fire."

Gunboats

American oil drilling operation off the Israeli coast.

A spokesman for the Netivei Neft Co. said some of the officers of the speedy 147-foot craft and a company representative would meet the press.

The Netivei Neft Co. was identified as a concern dealing with oil production in the occupied Sinai Desert of Egypt.

Although not listed in the official government yearbook, it was said to be government-controlled and financed.

The gunboats had been slowed by gale winds in the eastern Mediterranean, but the winds calmed at dawn.

The boats slipped out of Cherbourg harbor at 3 a.m. Christmas morning, evading the French government's embargo on arms to Israel. They were part of a flotilla of 11 built for Israel, but the other seven were delivered before the embargo was clamped on last January.

The French government said the boats had been sold to a Norwegian company for offshore oil drilling operations. It asserted the departure of the boats, manned by Israeli crews, was a complete surprise. But reporters investigating in Cherbourg found strong indications that a number of high French officials knew in advance that the boats would be leaving and did nothing to stop them.

Northwest Marks Centennial

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Tonight won't be just New Year's Eve in the Northwest Territories. It's also Centennial Eve as the territories usher in a year-long anniversary celebration, marking their 100th year as a part of Canada.

And it also marks the last evening of the town of Yellowknife, capital of the N.W.T., which becomes a city Jan. 1.

At midnight, Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien will throw a switch and the sign will glow in the Arctic night.

In stores, on cars and on buildings brightly-colored centential flags flutter. In the centre of the flag is the circular centennial symbol—three figures with linked hands expressing the unity of the peoples of the North.

Tonight Yellowknife citizens will gather at Frame Lake on the outskirts of town for a Centennial Eve bonfire, fireworks and a torch-lit snowmobile trail ride. Many later will welcome the New Year at dances or private parties.

A private reception for Mr. Chretien, Commissioner Stuart M. Hodgson, territorial councillors and civic officials is planned following a quick side trip to Hay River, 125 miles south, to open their Centennial Recreational Area.

Ham operators throughout the North have joined with the CBC to bring the radio messages to remote outposts such as Albert, 500 miles from the top of the world.

Harvester Uses X-rays

A potato harvester, which incorporates an X-ray unit to sort out potatoes from stones, was demonstrated recently in England. A team of six people is usually required on conventional machines, but only the tractor driver is needed to operate the new harvester. Everything dug up by the harvester is carried to the X-ray unit, which detects the difference in density of the various objects and thrusts aside objects other than potatoes. Waste matter is returned to the ground by a conveyor belt. (CP Photo)

Fund Could Stand Seven Years At Six Per Cent Jobless Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — An average annual unemployment rate of six per cent of the labor force would drive the unemployment insurance fund into the red within about seven years, a fund source said Tuesday.

He was asked to make such a projection in the wake of Prime Minister Trudeau's statement at a news conference last week that, in its all-out battle against inflation, the government would not balk at a six-per-cent unemployment rate.

An official with the unemployment insurance commission said a six-per-cent rate would likely cost the fund about $688,000,000 a year. Projecting contributions to the fund and taking other factors into consideration produced the estimated seven-year drop into the red.

This, of course, would not mean the fund would be bankrupt. In the 1960-61 fiscal year the government bailed the fund out with special advances. Nor did it mean the official was predicting such a rate of unemployment.

Mr. Trudeau said in reply to questions on how far his government would allow unemployment to increase:

"You know I'm afraid there are a lot of people in this country who are bargaining that, 'Oh well, this government can't hang tough too long because it will be frightened when it sees unemployment go up to six per cent.'

"If you are asking me to forecast five-ish now, it might go up I suppose close to six. I don't know, I hope not. But if the people think we are going to lose our nerve because of that, they should think again; we're not."

The last joint employment report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and manpower department showed 4.4 per cent of the labor force or 354,000 Canadians unemployed in the week ended Nov. 15. With seasonal factors taken into account, the rate was 5.1 per cent.

During the 1968-69 fiscal year the unemployment insurance fund made payments of $638,000,000 and ended the year with a balance of $302,000,000. Unemployment averaged 4.4 per cent.

In 1967-68 payments totalled $389,000,000, the balance was $303,000,000 and the unemployment rate 3.7 per cent.

The insurable ceiling for salaried workers is $7,800 a year. Claimants with dependents may receive benefits of up to $53 a week and those without may get up to $45.

The contributions of employees and employers, plus one-fifth of this amount paid by the government, flagged into the fund. The government plays administration costs.

The fund's balances reached a peak in 1957 of $921,000,000. Then unemployment began to rise, more was paid out in benefits rose and the balances dipped. In 1960-61, with an unemployment rate of about seven per cent, $616,000,000 was paid to 1,136,000 claimants and the fund assets became exhausted.

By 1964 the fund's assets began a climb to the present point. About 6,000,000 Canadians are covered by unemployment insurance.

Trudeau Says He's Ready With Anti-inflation Moves

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government will introduce new weapons against inflation in 1970 should its efforts to gain voluntary restraint on the part of labor, management and the provinces prove unsuccessful, Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday night.

Mr. Trudeau, in an interview from Ottawa telecast on CTV and called A Conversation with the Prime Minister, said he believed the government has a duty to protect people who cannot bargain with their employers to get better wages.

"It's not a choice," he told Charles Templeton, moderator of the program. "We have to protect these people, by keeping inflation down, by winning the fight against inflation."

He said only one-third of the workers in Canada are organized and can protect themselves by bargaining hard. The other two thirds of the population, including people with a fixed income, cannot sufficiently protect themselves against rising prices.

Mr. Trudeau suggested the government could introduce a tougher fiscal policy, take more stringent monetary measures or introduce higher and more selective taxes.

Another possibility would be lower tariffs which would "create greater competition on those who are trying to raise the prices on the Canadian consumer."

He said if Canada doesn't fight inflation it will lose foreign markets, face an exchange crisis and have to devalue the dollar. He said he also was worried about the threat of rising unemployment.

He said any hardships imposed by voluntary restraints would be compressed into a short period of time.

Unemployment, for example, might last for six or eight months but if the voluntary approach doesn't work and the government is forced to legislate restraint then "the unemployment and misery will last a year or two longer."

Hanoi's Troops Along Borders Real Threat to Saigon Regime

United States ground troops are withdrawing from Vietnam, while North Vietnamese units continue to operate out of sanctuaries along the borders. What threat do these units pose to the future security of South Vietnam? In this last article of a three-part series, two Associated Press men who have covered the war since 1962 assess the possibilities.

By PETER ARNETT
and
HORST FAAS

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam's war machine is fully geared against South Vietnam and from all that is known Hanoi's intent is still total military victory.

As 1969 ends, top-level analysts by U.S. and South Vietnamese intelligence officers indicates that troops and materials now being assembled at the borders constitute more than just a show of North Vietnamese strength.

Intelligence men say plans made in Hanoi last March, six months before Ho Chi Minh died, call for yet another major winter-spring offensive.

Step one has been to set up supply bases outside South Vietnam. Step two has been the attempt to put supplies near future battlefields inside the country.

Step three, by the current analysis, is the massing of small bands of troops. Step four will be the attempt to mass into large military formations prior to a general attack.

The North Vietnamese seem to be keeping to schedule even though some of the steps have fallen short because of stronger reaction from the U.S. and South Vietnamese.

"They are stockpiling more and they are on the move more than they ever were prior to the Tet attacks of 1968," says an American intelligence officer.

"The amount of equipment they pre-position on the battlefield will determine how large a force they can sustain."

In some places reconnaissance indicates the North Vietnamese regiments are about to take the last step of getting ready for battle.

The buildup reaches along the entire western border of South Vietnam, 700 miles from the Gulf of Siam to the demilitarized zone.

This threat more than anything else' worries American field commanders about getting sudden orders to withdraw from Vietnam.

All American combat divisions but one are deeply involved in the current prime military mission of finding and preventing the North Vietnamese from penetrating the security shield that protects the population.

The North Vietnamese have two advantages they did not enjoy when they geared up against the American troop escalation in the mid-1960s. At that time their supplies were bombed from the time they were received at the Haiphong docks. War for the soldiers began when they boarded trucks to come south.

With the U.S. bombing halt in effect since Nov. 1, 1968, war for the North Vietnamese begins now only at the western edge of the demilitarized zone when they enter Laos.

The second advantage is that the North Vietnamese remain invulnerable in Cambodia, which borders much of South Vietnam.

Once they kept out of sight there. Now they have openly occupied whole border districts and are seemingly oblivious to complaints from Cambodia's head of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk. At least half all war supplies are believed landed by sea in Cambodia.

To strengthen their plan for final victory, North Vietnamese strategists appear to be proceeding with much more caution than in the past. At the 1965 battle of the Ia Drang Valley they took on an American infantry brigade without waiting for their mortars to arrive.

Intelligence assessments say the new bases of Hanoi's forces have been built far more than one campaign. Their purpose seems to be to sustain the war for years. The elaborate supply complex built into the jungled mountains along the Laotian frontier and at the western part of the DMZ may be so well fortified they could survive any conventional bombing should it be resumed.

The North Vietnamese learned that large truck convoys were vulnerable. They now move traffic in short hops, dashing from one hideout to another. Roads begin and end nowhere, connected only by porter trails. Hidden ferries and underwater cables have replaced bridges.

The hotspots where action might be expected in the next few weeks reach from the ridges of the DMZ, across the foothills of central Vietnam to the jungled war zones around Saigon and down in the tangled swamps of the U Minh forest.

Increased traffic has been reported north and west of the DMZ. Here engineers have built their largest rear supply complex and as many as a thousand trucks may be working it. Even pipelines feed into the complex.

This base and a similar one to the southwest in Laos support 10 infantry and two artillery regiments. Some have flanked Vietnam's two northernmost provinces and are deployed in the hills. Their mission would be to infiltrate these provinces, terrorize the cities of Hue and Quang Tri, attack weak outposts and raise as much havoc as possible. Other regiments would engaged the U.S. 101st Airborne Division and the Vietnamese 1st Division holding the security shield in the hills above the population centres.

A member of the U.S. 25th Army Corps that oversees operations in the north says: "There are amazing parallels in movement to the pre-Tet 1968 period."

Farm Union Assails School Tax

OSHAWA (CP) — Delegates to a closed conference of the Ontario region of the United Farmers' Union Tuesday criticized the province's educational assessment.

The NFU is launching "an all-out war on educational tax assessment in Ontario," Walter Miller of Tara, Ont., NFU vice-president, said during a news conference following the two-day session.

He estimated, on an income basis, a farmer pays more than 3½ times as much for education as a non-farmer.

"It amounts to a double-barrelled taxation," Mr. Miller said.

"The farmer is taxed on his dwelling, his land and farm buildings.

"The present system of education (in Ontario) is geared to the needs of business and industry. Since they derive the benefits of this system, it seems only fair that they carry the burden of the cost."

Value-added Tax Possible New Levy

OTTAWA (CP) — A new federal tax levied at each stage of the manufacturing and sales-distribution process may be considered when Canada moves, possibly next year, to the next stage of tax reform, Informants say.

The subject of continuing the present 12-per-cent federal sales tax on manufactured goods, or modifying it or replacing it with a new kind of tax, is next on the finance department's agenda after Parliament has come to grips with income and corporation profits tax reform.

Criticism of the 12-per-cent sales tax is that it weighs more heavily on low-income family groups who have to pay it at the same rate as the rich, because the sales tax is a hidden tax.

This criticism would not be entirely met by converting to a new kind of tax now being employed by West Germany and other members of the European Economic Community.

But to some extent, the new tax would weigh heaviest on highly-developed and serviced goods.

The German mehrwertsteuer or value-added tax was introduced Jan. 1, 1968, replacing an old turnover tax which had been in effect for nearly 50 years.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson said when he introduced his white paper on income tax reform last month that "consumption" taxes will be the next field of study. He hopes to have his reform of income and corporation profits taxes introduced in legislative form next fall, when officials can turn to sales, excise, and possibly the value-added tax.

One of the features of the value-added tax is that authorities can determine exactly how much tax has been paid on every commodity at every stage of production.

U.S. Wholesale Price Index Shows Sharp Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government statistics show wholesale prices climbed 4.7 per cent in 1969 after the steepest rise in 20 years, adding more fuel to the argument over whether President Nixon's policies can slow inflation.

"It all adds up to the probability that the cost of living is going to continue rising at a fast clip," said Nathaniel Goldfinger, chief economist for the 13,600,000-member AFL-CIO.

But Labor Secretary George P. Shultz, in a separate interview, said White House policies of federal budget cuts, high interest and tight money are beginning to work. "Inflation isn't continuing unabated," Shultz said.

Nixon, in signing the tax reform bill Tuesday, indicated even tougher federal budget restrictions to offset the losses.

"It will make our fight against the rising cost of living more difficult," Nixon said of the estimated $2,500,000,000 a year government revenue loss from the new tax law.

With one month's figures to go, the labor department's consumer price index measuring living costs is up 5.3 per cent for 1969, steepest rise since the 5.9 per cent for all of 1951, a year in which Korean War wage-price controls were imposed.

"At this point, we have the beginnings of the worst of all possibilities—the danger of recession without any slowdown in prices," said Goldfinger in expressing the labor federation's opposition to the Nixon anti-inflation policies.

AFL-CIO President George Meany has said that only federal controls on all prices, wages and other income would halt sharply rising prices.

The Nixon administration has rejected any thought of wage-price controls.

Monetary Fund Sets Floor Price for African Gold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Monetary Fund set a floor price of $35 an ounce Tuesday for newly mined South African gold in a move to end a worldwide controversy.

The action seeks to settle the problem of getting the South African gold smoothly into the world's money system—the last unsettled question of the 1968 gold crisis.

Paul R. Volcker, U.S. treasury undersecretary for monetary affairs, called the agreement a way of "tying up something of a loose end in the two-tier system" set up in March, 1968.

The two-tier system was set up to curtail large loses of gold by the United States and European countries to the South African gold only to the private market and made no provision for putting newly mined gold into monetary reserves.

The IMF, apparently ratifying an agreement reached earlier by the United States and South Africa, said it would buy the gold at $35 an ounce—the value given as a monetary reserve—whenever the free market price drops to $35 or below.

When the official and private gold markets were separated in 1968, the free market price rose to $43 a month later.

Despite the protection for South Africa, Volcker said the plan provides no floor price for other countries.

"There's nothing in here that says if speculators want to unload in a hurry the price couldn't go below $35," he said.

The new agreement has more effect on individuals outside the United States than on U.S. citizens, who are forbidden to hold and trade gold.

Volcker characterized the settlement as a way of "normalizing relations between South Africa and the rest of the world so far as their monetary transactions are concerned." He said he did not view it as a subsidy for South Africa.

The IMF statement emphasized that South Africa would continue to use its gold reserves like any other nation although it would be restricted in the way it can add to them.

QUESTION: We are driving to Florida next month via Syracuse. Which states on the way down don't permit studded tires?

ANSWER: The state of Georgia is the only state on the way to Florida where it is illegal to use studded tires. The other states allow them between Oct. 15 and Apr. 1.

QUESTION: Is it legal for a 16-year-old to drive in New York State?

ANSWER: He is allowed to drive only in daylight hours with an adult and only if he has taken a driver's training course.

QUESTION: We are flying or driving to Miami next month. If we fly we would like to rent a car there for a couple of weeks. Should we order a car in Kingston so it will be waiting for us at the airport or wait until we get there?

The best part of any trip to Florida is Florida itself. The drive down is not always enjoyable, particularly during the months when a sudden snowfall in New York State can make a shambles of any vacation itinerary. But there is a solution — fly to Miami and let one of the car rental companies provide your transportation there. It costs more but you arrive fresh and rested. You can get 21 - day excursion fares during the winter at a reasonable rate. It is advisable to book your tickets well in advance. And it is even more important to hire your rental car before you leave. Failure to do so could result in discovering that no car is available. There are many advantages to using rented cars—not the least of which is the saving in wear and tear on your own automobile. Chances are that any car you rent will be a new model. It will be fitted with an automatic transmission and will probably have power steering also, but not always power brakes. One popular misconception is that only standard economy model cars are available for rent. In fact you can rent almost any car, including a Cadillac, as well as sporty models, for a little more than the standard model.

When you pick up the car you will be expected to sign a receipt for it. Two things are important. One is to check that the mileage shown on the form tallies with that on the odometer. The other is to walk around the car to make sure it has no dents or other damage. If it has, have it written on the rental agreement.

The car will be clean, the gasoline tank full. Regular rates always include gas so remember to pick up receipts or total will be reduced from the rental cost. Unless the car is identical with your own, it is advisable to be extra cautious for a few days. It is particularly important to make sure that you know where every control is located and what it does. During the first day you should try to make use of them all, so that you will act quickly in an emergency.

Since all rental cars are charged by the day and by the mile it is foolish and expensive to drive unnecessary distances. Careful planning of your route can save you dollars. If you are a member of the Ontario Motor League we can plan your route so you can see the most country in the shortest time and provide you with all the maps so you won't get lost. This is free of charge for members of our club. The public liability insurance onovided by the major companies will be about the same as you have on your own car and for a modest additional fee you can take out collision insurance. If you carry a credit card this simplifies the task of hiring and returning a car. If you are visiting Florida for a week or more it is advisable to rent the car for a full 7-day period. One reason is that it will only cost you the same as 5 individual days rental — quite a saving.

Research Animals Get Better Care

OTTAWA (CP) — Care for experimental research animals is improving at many Canadian universities, the Canadian Council on Animal Care has reported after a survey of 202 departments at 27 universities.

The report, released Tuesday, states that universities are making significant progress in implementing recommendations made by the council's animal care assessment panels.

It notes that 25 institutions have animal care committees with authority to establish policy on a campus-wide basis concerning procurement, facilities, personnel and the use of experimental animals. The larger universities have the better facilities, supervised by full-time professional experts, the report says.

Ottawa Growth Expectation Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — A government study of projected population and job growth in the national capital area up to 1986 lowers the horizon set out in another recent study by about 40 per cent.

The national capital commission, the federal agency charged with developing the region, released a study Tuesday projecting a 1986 population for the 1,900-square-mile area surrounding Ottawa and Hull, Que., of 860,000.

This contrasts with a 1969 study by a United States consulting firm which gave a 1986 population projection of 1,492,520.

The commission study forecasts federal employment in the region of 93,550 in 1986; the private study, 155,900.

FRINGE CUTBACK

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The generous collection of paid holidays that has made state employees the envy of many private workers is at an end. Gov. Louie B. Nunn has reduced the number of such days from 16½ to 9½ a year.

Noranda Raises Copper Price Again

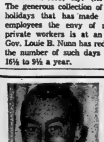
TORONTO (CP) — Noranda Sales Corp. Ltd. said Tuesday that effective Jan. 2 its copper price to Canadian users will increase to 66 cents a pound delivered from 57 cents.

The company said the increase was published on in order to bring Canadian domestic prices more in line with world copper prices.



"We're still well below the London Metals Exchange price," said a Noranda spokesman.

Copper on the LME was quoted Tuesday at 75.39 (U.S.) cents a pound. This is the price at which Noranda and other producers sell Canadian copper to foreign buyers. The price to Canadian users has traditionally been lower.

The newest rise makes copper 32 per cent more expensive than it was last summer. The price rose to 53 cents from 50 cents a pound in August, and jumped again in September to its present price.

The two other major Canadian copper producers, Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Ltd. and the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., are expected to follow the Noranda announcement with similar price increases.

Group Plans To File Complaints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — President Nixon should send a woman to the moon and appoint one to the United States Supreme Court, a women's rights group says.

The group, the National Organization for Women, also objects to feminine names for hurricanes.

"Equality for women would bring male liberation, too, since men also are victimized by laws and practices which limit the roles of individuals in modern society," said author Betty Friedan, president of N.O.W.

N.O.W.'s board of directors plans to file formal complaints charging discrimination against women by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in its training of astronauts and its selection of top-level administrators.

As for storms, the board urged the U.S. hurricane centre at Miami to "choose names other than women's names in designating unwelcome destructive hurricanes."

Every Operator is Busy for New Year's Rush

Hairdressers Busy For New Year's

The day before New Year's is definitely the busiest day in a hairdresser's year. Monday was the beginning of a hectic period for the local beauty salons which won't end until early Wednesday evening.

Bookings start months ahead of time — one local salon started booking for New Year's in September. It opens its doors today at 8 a.m. and takes the last appointment at 7.30 in the evening. Over 200 women will be accommodated by 11 operators and at another salon 13 operators will be serving 430 customers. Most of the salons are booked solid but a few cancellations have been made.

This year the trend in hair styles is ringlets. The sophisticated look and the little girl look are "in" for the younger set. Wigs and hairpieces are also popular with the younger set as well as the older women.

The Experts Say

Number and Variety of Drugs Increase Greatly

TORONTO (CP) — If you find out your son or daughter is using drugs, it's quite likely that the first thing you should do is get a grip on yourself.

"Sit down and think for a while. Pour a cup of coffee and think. When you are dealing with these problems, there are no standard reactions guaranteed to produce the same result."

The advice is offered by Lawrence Purdy, regional director of the Addiction Research Foundation, Metropolitan Toronto region.

Mr. Purdy says it is easier to tell people what not to do than to tell them what to do.

* * *

Not only are the reasons for and the results of drug use complex, the problem on today's scale is new and constantly changing. Ready solutions aren't available for the handing out.

"The number and variety of drugs has gone from two, tobacco and beverage alcohol, to 20 to 60 to 90. In just over two years, when the evidence of what was happening began coming in the number and variety of drugs has grown and the lack of clinical evidence on what is in the long run effective help has caught us unawares."

If you are a concerned parent, Mr. Purdy says try, for a start, not to be stampeded by scare stories about drugs and drug use. Try not to make judgments on appearances only and don't use spy methods to try to find out if your child is using drugs.

"If you want to alienate kids in a tense situation, all you have to do is start going through drawers and reading mail. This removes the relationship from a parent-child level and places it on a courtroom adversary basis. . . .

"If my daughter told me she was using drugs, I would want to know how she felt, and want her to know how I felt. I would listen carefully to what she was telling me and why. Had she enjoyed it or did she find it a drag as so many do? Was she waiting for me to ask her to stop?

"Why does she want me to know? Is she testing? This is what some of the drug use is all about, testing society, but some kids get in so deep they can't extricate themselves. . . .

"If you call the police or ask for admittance to a mental hospital, you can start a sequence of events that is hard to change and that you may regret."

In some cases the need for immediate physical medical attention is obvious. In other cases, you need some facts.

"The sense of urgency shouldn't be overlooked, but when you talk about drugs, you should know . . . how often or under what circumstances they have been used and what quality has been used."

If your relationship with your children is a solid one, you may never have to worry about a serious drug problem. If not, you may have to accept the fact that the whole family should be involved in treatment.

"Your reaction will be conditioned by what has been going on for the previous 10 or 12 or 14 years. . . .

"There are no easy answers. We know what to do if a leg gets broken. If something else gets broken, like the kid's self-awareness or trust, the damage is irreparable cannot be repaired by antibiotics and short-term psychotherapy. Nor can parents rent skills from someone else.

"Drugs can be a declaration of independence. They're saying we don't care.

"We've found people don't want family therapy, though drug use may represent a badly damaged family situation."

One part of the problem has been where to turn for help when it is needed quickly.

"Where do you send a 14-year-old who's dying of drugs? Mental hospitals have not been geared for organic plus psychological help, and general hospitals have not been geared for psychology. A few now are providing services they have never provided before."

You can probably find out who and where they are by calling local departments of health, a social planning council, addiction foundation or distress centre.

The same people should be sources of general information about drugs.

Mr. Purdy also advocates a little pressure on politicians who ought to be aware of the problems and of the need to do something to provide more help.

Hair-color Rivals Lipstick

MONTREAL (CP) — Catty remarks about women who secretly dye their hair are seldom heard these days as the use of hair-color begins to rival lipstick in popularity.

A survey sponsored recently by Cosmair (Canada) Ltd., an affiliate of L'Oreal de Paris, shows that 3,000,000—or 30 per-cent of—Canadian women between the ages of 15 and 75 color their hair. Sixty-six per cent of those who do are under 36.

Of the 3,000,000, 68 per cent were born with the shade of brown hair unkindly referred to as mousy. Thirteen per cent were blondes, seven per cent naturally grey, six per cent black-haired and four per cent auburn.

Once they decide to take the big step, women seem to become more conservative. Nineteen per cent selected lighter browns, their new shade. With only 16 per cent switching to blonde.

International Surveys Ltd. provided further insight into the hair-coloring market by asking their coverage sampling" why they colored their hair.

Thirty-one per cent claimed it was to cover grey strands, 18 per cent admitted they wanted to look younger, 18 per cent just wanted a change while 11 per cent said it was to improve their looks.

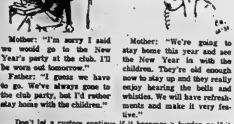
Of particular interest to Cosmair was the number of women who purchase kits and do the hair-coloring at home.

It discovered that approximately 2,000,000 women, mostly those under 25, color their hair themselves because it is less expensive.

The other 1,000,000, who were generally over 25 and had larger incomes, said they went to a salon because they feel professional treatment is safer.

Armed with this knowledge, Cosmair, which formerly served only the professional market, decided to branch into the retail market in November this year.

Based on research done by L'Oreal's 300 scientists, Cosmair will market hair-treatment products, such as shampoo, setting lotions and tonics, formulated for specific purposes and types of hair.



"You cannot expect to use the same product for dandruff that you would use for fine hair," says Phillipe Dalle, Cosmair president. "Special products have been designed to deal with the basic types of hair conditions."

The company also hopes to make color selection easier for women by providing stores with actual swatches of treated hair. Cosmeticians will be specially trained to help customers select the proper products.

That Canadian women attach a great deal of importance to the appearance of their hair was indicated in the survey. Ninety-nine per cent said they felt better when their hair was done and 94 per cent rated hair care as being as vital as face makeup.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I'm sorry I said we would go to the New Year's party at the club. I'll be worn out tomorrow."

Father: "I guess we have to go. We've always gone to the club party, but I'd rather stay home with the children."

Don't let a custom continue if it becomes a burden or if it interferes with your enjoyment of your growing family.

Mother: "We're going to stay home this year and see the New Year in with the children. They're old enough now to stay up and they really enjoy hearing the bells and whistles. We will have refreshments and make it very festive."

Excellent Advice for Start of A New Year

By DORIS CLARK

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word, or making a friend. — John Ruskin.

Dear Doris: I am 'enclosing a copy of Mother Shipton's Poem. If possible, could you see that "Hoping" gets the copy? — Mrs. R.

Dear Doris: Many times as a girl I have visited the cave where Mother Shipton lived and have wished in the stone basin she washed in. The prophecies have come true and Mother Shipton was burned as a witch.

The mineral water that drips over the rock nearby turns things such as knitting on needles, heads of animals and other things into stone after a while. — Yorkshire Girl

Dear Doris: As a Yorkshire man, I was especially interested in the request for Mother Shipton's Prophecies. The picture enclosed is of the wall referred to which petrifies articles left hanging there. — F. E. M.

Dear Doris: Mother Shipton's Prophecies which have been regarded as pure fiction, were republished about 1862 and caused great anxiety to many persons, who expected the end of the world in 1881.

The copy I am sending you was copied from an 80-year-old woman's scrap book. — N. R. S. H.

Dear Doris: Mother Shipton correctly foretold the day and hour of her death which was in 1561. She was the one of England's most renowned oracles.

When the time came that she had prophesied as her death "she took an warm leave of her friends, who were greatly attached to her, lay down on her bed, and died, at the good old age of 73 years." — F. K.

Dear Mrs. R., Yorkshire Girl, NRSH. and many others: Mother Shipton's Prophesies have been pouring in from all over the place. I had no idea this 16th century seer was so popular. Anybody want a copy of the things she predicted — dire and otherwise, including horseless carriages, radio, airplanes, wars, women wearing trousers, and the end of the world (which will come through on schedule)? The next time I send a self-addressed envelope and it is yours.

More Stealing Today Than in Depression

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the man whose mother-in-law shop-lifted the family gifts was a stunner. Her explanation: She was brought up during the depression and simply had not any money. People stole whatever they wanted.

I, too, was raised during the depression. Our standard dinner was boiled potatoes, and gravy made with lard, flour and water. Sometimes we had homemade bread and oleo on the table.

One day I took an apple when the grocer wasn't looking. My mother noticed the bulge in my pocket when we were half way home. We turned around immediately and went straight back to the store. I asked Mom if I couldn't just put the apple back. She said, "No. You must give it back and apologize." My mother didn't call it "snitching" nor did she use any other cute word which sounded less criminal. She said, "When you take something that doesn't belong to you, it is stealing." From that day to this I have never touched anything that didn't belong to me, and I have raised my children the same way. — REMEMBERING.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR RE: It might interest people who grow up during the depression to know that there was less stealing in those days than now — when our country is at the peak of its affluence. This raises some interesting sociological questions as to why people steal. The next letter should be of special interest to you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the letter from the guy who sits in front of the idiot box every night because it's better than talking to that idiot who calls herself a wife: Who is he kidding? He sits there because he is a slob. He is too stupid to read, too inept to pursue a hobby and too lazy to exercise.

The man who say "My wife and I have nothing in common" is playing the game called "If It Weren't For Her."

I'm reminded of the poem by John Martin called, "Martin Time." I hope the Book Tuber sees it:

"When time hangs heavy on your hands—
And you do not try to advance,
Go to someone who understands,
And have him kick you in the pants." — Chicgo

Four Canadian Women Share Limelight of the Year 1969

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

For the first time in 18 years, Canada's women's editors have been unable to name a Canadian woman of the year. This has happened in a year when two other countries, Israel and India, have women prime ministers.

In the annual poll conducted by The Canadian Press since 1951, women's editors of newspapers and radio and television stations are asked to vote for women who have made the most news in their fields, and a woman who has been most newsworthy woman of the year.

There were 32 votes for 16 different people as most newsworthy. There were 50 abstentions with a general comment that no one woman seemed prominent enough to vote for in 1969. Women of the year in other years have included former Ottawa mayor Charlotte Whitton, Judy LaMarsh and skier Nancy Greene.

Miss LaMarsh, former Liberal cabinet minister, was voted most newsworthy woman of the decade by a wide margin. She retired from politics last year to return to her law practice in Niagara Falls.

She led off 1969 with publication of her Memoirs of a Bird in a Gilded Cage. Her forthright discussion of her political colleagues and of politics during the eight years she spent in office started an uproar that kept her much in the news in the early weeks of the year.

The women voted most newsworthy in various categories are: public affairs, Grace MacInnis; sports, Nancy Greene; literature and art, Margaret Laurence; music, Monique Leyrac; stage, screen, radio and television, Genevieve Bujold; story of the year most affecting women, drug use among teen-agers.

Mrs. MacInnis has been the only woman member of Parliament since the 1958 election. She is the NDP member for Vancouver-Kingsway.

Although she does not consider herself a champion of women's causes, Mrs. MacInnis campaigns steadily for such things as maternity leave and more nursery care facilities. As a member of the Commons health committee she supported the move to more-lenient laws on birth control and abortion.

She has expressed concern about the increasing cost of living. It has been suggested that if the NDP should form the federal government, she would be given the consumer affairs portfolio. Mrs. MacInnis has so far said she is unimpressed with the department.

She was first elected to the federal House in 1965, after serving earlier as a member of the British Columbia legislature. She is the widow of Angus MacInnis, CCF MP for years, and is the daughter of the late J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the CCF party.

The most newsworthy woman in the field of sports is Nancy Greene, now Mrs. Al Raine. Canada's World Cup ski champion, Mrs. Raine has not done any competition skiing in 1969, but she has stayed in the news.

Early in the year she married Al Raine, executive head coach of the national ski team. She spent December awaiting the birth of their twins.

In the interval she stayed before the public as an endorser of products and as salesman for her own line of sports clothes. She was also a member of the federal "task force" study committee on sports which presented its report this year.

Margaret Laurence, chosen woman of the year in the literature and art category, brought out a new book, her third, called The Fire Dwellers. She now is writer-in-residence at the University of Toronto.

Much of the publicity she has received, though, was generated by the movie Rachel, Rachel, which was taken from her 1966 book, A Jest of God. Produced and directed by Paul Newman and his wife, Joanne Woodward, the movie was released late in 1968, but was nominated in the spring for several Academy Awards.

Genevieve Bujold, most newsworthy woman in the stage, screen, radio, television category, has worked in two films this year, neither as yet released. The earlier one was directed by her husband, Paul Almond. Called The Act of the Heart, it is due to be released early in 1970.

A greater amount of publicity came to Miss Bujold when she was chosen to play Anne Boleyn in a film of Anne of the Thousand Days, starring Richard Burton as Henry VIII.

Another performer in The Act of the Heart, Monique Leyrac, was voted most newsworthy in the music category. Miss Leyrac, whose specialty is singing French-Canadian songs, appeared on the Ed Sullivan television show in June.

For now she is living in France with her actor-director husband, Jean Dalmain, and their teen-age daughter.

CANADIAN WOMEN OF THE YEAR — The women voted most newsworthy in various categories are: (from left) public affairs, Grace MacInnis, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Vancouver-Kingsway; screen, radio and television, Genevieve Bujold, actress; music, Monique Leyrac, singer; sports, Nancy Greene, Canadian skier. Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Once Too Much For LSD Trial

"I'm curious about LSD," wrote an 18-year-old a few weeks ago. "I'd just like to take it once for kicks."

In a column I replied that curiosity killed the cat, and for some LSD users, experimentation was just as dangerous. But I have found that straight talk from one psychiatrist to another is often more efficacious than another "lecture" from a doctor. We are parent-figures, and negativism comes into play. Here then is a note that may be more effective in dulling the curiosity of some younger thrill seekers:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am replying to the 18-year-old, anxious to try LSD. I wish I could write directly to her and tell her about my experience with it — some of the arguments I could give now after being a LSD "casualty." Surely that would be enough to discourage a young would-be user.

I'm still in my 20s. I've been through it and I know from personal experience horrors of the delusions, the paranoid fantasies, the long periods of real depression and the months it took before I really had control of my mind again. It was a long time before they would let me out of the hospital on my own.

How can I put my personal experiences to use? How can I communicate to young people? How can I convince them of the dangers they don't believe exist? The chromosome-damage argument is no good any more.

Your language is much too mild. You should tell a young star, "You can lose your mind and body, too." You should say, "You can die a thousand deaths." You should tell him (or her) that jumping off a bridge or slashing one's wrists might be safer,"...How much stronger can I put it? — Miss X.

* * *

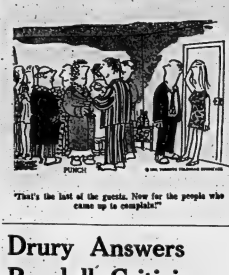
Dear Dr. Steincrohn: A member of my family and several friends are wearing copper bracelets, hopefully to slow down the progress of arthritis. One friend whose hand was crippled badly was able within six months to play golf again and has no pain. Will you please comment on the phenomena wrought by these little copper bands. Can they be purchased in the United States? — Mrs. Mc.

Comment: I've written about this before, but am happy to repeat. Any effort is worthwhile that will help to blunt the penalties of quacks who sell these (and scores of other) "magic" trinkets.

There is no scientific evidence that wearing copper has any beneficial effect upon arthritis. The one friend who was apparently helped would have improved without the band. More have done better on aspirin, or nothing at all except the passage of time.

I can understand that when a person suffers the pain of arthritis, without improvement from his physician, he will try anything once. But don't let that "anything" be something offered as a quack remedy. It's like putting your faith in a tribal medicine man — face painted and doing dance-gyrations — to drive out the evil spirits.

* * *



Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 15 years old. About three weeks ago I began to have large gland swellings in my neck and under one arm. They bother me, but my parents won't take me to the doctor because a neighbor said that as long as I have no fever there's nothing to worry about. What do you think? There you very much. — Miss D.

Comment: Your parents have something to worry about: Your neglective advice. Better insist that your mother or dad call the doctor for an appointment. Just to investigate. It's not necessary to have fever to make an emergency case out of it.

Drury Answers Randall Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities say they are exercising spending restraint, no matter what Stanley Randall says.

Ottawa's rejoinder to the Ontario trade and development minister was solicited Tuesday as part of a holiday-season argument about which government is scoring more points against inflation.

The debate was opened 10 days ago by Prime Minister Trudeau. It stalled over Christmas and resumed this week while hard political news was in short supply.

Mr. Trudeau, in the course of pledging the country anew to fight inflation in 1970, had singled out Ontario as a backslider.

A week later, Mr. Randall was approached on the subject of Ottawa's wrist-slap and poured out indignation at "these jokers from Ottawa coming down and giving us hell for inflation, for medicare and for everything else."

He turned to the attack and said Ottawa could show some anti-inflationary initiative, for a start, by scrapping plans for construction of buildings for the departments of external affairs and defence and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Office space could be rented at less cost to the taxpayers, he said.

Back in Ottawa Tuesday, C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board, responded to questions by saying the federal government had shown restraint by scrapping plans in November for one new office building.

The federal government is going ahead with construction of other buildings with essential specialized features that commercial rental offices could not provide.

As for Mr. Randall's contention that it would be better to lease buildings from outsiders, Mr. Drury said the government called for tenders for both construction and a lease-back building for the defence offices and found construction would be substantially cheaper.

Worst of the Year

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Once more the time has rolled around for compiling lists of 10 Bests. Editors, critics, and self-styled experts in every field are coming up with lists of 10 best movies, books, athletes, new stories, and so forth.

Well, in counteract this tiresome trend, I've made it an irregular custom to publish a suggested list of the 10 Worsts of the Year. This year, as so often in the past, the choices were almost too easy.

1. Worst Plaaco of the Year: President Nixon's television talk on Vietnam, which promised so much and delivered so little, sounding like a playback of President Johnson with only the accent removed.

2. Worst Politician of the Year: Senator George Murphy of California, whose bill to remove legal aid and counseling from the poor is the most cruel and regressive piece of legislation I can remember.

3. Worst Novel of the Year: Doubtless many just as bad were published in 1969, but I'm not aware of them. "Love Machine," which is certainly a non-book by a non-person, takes the cake.

4. Worst Movie of the Year: Again, perhaps not the worst, in absolute terms, but in terms of the difference between its value and the publicity received, "I am Curious (Yellow)" gets the dubious award.

5. Worst Play of the Year: Nine contestants ended in a dead heat, all of them closing after one or two nights on Broadway, making it a race for the most disastrous season in a decade, and prompting one to wonder again what producers and backers are putting in their cigarettes.

6. Worst Television Show of the Year: "Let's Make a Deal," which epitomizes the mindlessness, vulgarity and total lack of talent that pass for "entertainment" on commercial television.

7. Worst Speech Writer of the Year: Whoever is responsible for Vice-President Agnew's public utterances.

8. Worst Spectacle of the Year: The exhibit of the grossly enormous diamond purchased by Elizabeth Taylor Burton, viewed by long lines of gaping Yahoos of the sort who used to visit the two-headed calf tent at the carnival.

9. Worst Protest of the Year: The senseless destruction by the Weathermen faction of the SDS in Chicago, which did more to seem to vindicate Mayor Daley and his Police Department than any other testimony.

10. Worst Worst of the Year: The blindly stupid refusal of the Great Powers to work through the UN in achieving a settlement of the Israeli-Arab dispute, while providing arms to both sides for the sake of power politics that could eventually blow up the whole world.

French Congo Goes Communist

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) — The neighboring Congo Republic put on Communist trappings today. It proclaimed itself the Popular Republic of the Congo, adopted a Red Flag with hammer and sickle in the centre and made the Internationale the national anthem.

The former French colony whose capital is Brazzaville has been moving toward the left ever since 1963.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 1

Your birthday today: The coming year is all uphill; you must supply most of the energy and material to succeed in your career. Resolutions made today will be uncommonly difficult to keep, refusing to keep. For the next year and a half nearly everything encountered will cause you to be being either new to you or requiring unaccustomed action upon you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Sit out the day in meditation, conserving energy and reasoning. Review your promises, obligations, present resources and begin storing up knowledge during. Social advances are misdirected or misunderstood.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Do the unexpected. Spend your time in places you seldom see, amongst strangers or friends you have not visited for quite a while.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Wishful thinking is prevalent. Insist on having your say about what is to be done and by whom. Today sets a precedent for later reference, so be insistent with your own long range best interests.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Get help with any chores that are a burden. Then attend to your public image; how others see you. Accept an invitation to travel or to share an evening of fun.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your energy is spent running along with the pace of more active, less settled people. The sudden need for a journey or an impromptu arrangement may occur.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Keep your plans to yourself. Put your main effort into having fun with younger people, improving family ties, and leave business deals for another time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Be sociable even if everybody is in disagreement with your ideas. Skip spectator sports or entertainment. Do something that requires personal participation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Co-operation is the keyword although everybody you know is off on a different tangent. Little is to be gained trying to do business. Make it a family holiday or long weekend if possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Take it light and easy; seek company of old friends, people you have not seen for a considerable time. Invite visitors if you haven't already received invitations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): There are plenty of details to attend to now. Listen carefully to comments of older members of the family. You can learn something, get a new perspective on even very old matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Have a plan in mind, but modify it to fit the developing needs of your family. There is something new in the lives of your friends which you must recognize soon and act accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): After a slow start today turns socially active. New aspects of friendship come to your attention. Investment information proves very interesting. Talk over family matters with older relatives.

For January 2

Your birthday today: For you the coming year is merely a bridge from last year's beginnings to next year's dramatic changes. Be very sure you are fully ready before trying to make big moves now. It may be more constructive in the long run to stay where you are and gain more precise skills, more practice in your work.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Everybody seems hard to please at the moment. Avoid complicated discussions. There are too many trivial details to attend to. Let your inner sense fly show in your manners and attitude.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Accept a minor disappointment with equanimity. Your list of things to do or find out about comes in handy. Make sure you have all the papers for pending transactions.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Tact with relatives, in - laws, neighbors really is important. As some features of your plans may be unrealistic. Alternate courses are available but need co-operation.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Concentrate on matters to be done alone or with little close contact with others. Consolidate your accounts; avoid big changes or impulsive purchases. Pay no attention to gossip or teasing rumored.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Take your time and plan settlement of misunderstanding for tomorrow. Check the details of any work you are having done in order to avert future problems.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Expect confusion in your schedule. Arrange meetings for places in which you can be comfortable waiting for people who are late getting there. The morning is best spent in routine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your career needs a dull spot which offers the opportunity for thought on just what you are doing and what your immediate goals are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Relatives and associates can continue to claim attention. Take all suggestions into account. Work keeping to the essentials of your plans. Seek some diversion this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): While most other people seem to have heavy going, there's a feeling of dissatisfaction, of not quite getting enough value on your wares and services.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): There is some resistance to your progress; keep up your drive to get on with things. You fight a budget backfires. Spend enough to get the best and avoid future shortages at inconvenient moments. Your tact with in-laws should rise to the occasion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): While still working out your secret plans, try to put together a team to cope with the visible problems of the day. There is no time for loafing. Seek a change of pace in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Keep correct records today, whatever else you do in 1970.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"New Year's resolutions are extremely difficult for me. How can I improve the slightest bit without making you ordinary mortals wild with envy."

Moscow Is the Place to Be Tonight If Your Thirst's Big, Your Wallet Light

LONDON (AP) — Millions of Europeans will welcome in the new year with sniffles and sneezes from the Hong Kong flu but this will not halt the revelry.

Prices in most capitals are up this year and flu has reduced the reservation list. But night club and restaurant operators expect the champagne corks to pop briskly.

Cheapest place in which to celebrate will be Moscow. Whooping it up all night in the best Soviet restaurants costs less than $18 for all you can eat and drink.

Most Britons will spend New Year's Eve at home or singing Auld Lang Syne in the neighborhood pub. About 3,000,000 are bedded down with flu. But swinging London spots on Kings Road and night clubs around the city report heavy bookings. Cabaret prices are $18.50 to $21 for dining, dancing and floor show—drinks not included.

Formal gowns are required for New Year's Eve in Paris. With the flu wave passing, theatres, night clubs and restaurants expect full houses.

Maxim's is charging $58 for a gala dinner, and at the Crazy Horse Saloon—Europe's striptease headquarters—it's $29 for all you can drink.

In Italy, an estimated 5,000,000 are stricken with flu. Many workers, their pay already cut by strikes, have spent their Christmas bonus on medicine and so won't be throwing many things out the window, as they have since Nero's day.

Police in Vienna have banned firecrackers but cabarets say business is promising. Most Viennese will spend the night at house parties.

Germany's tradition of driving away evil spirits with cannon fire, clashing tins and firecrackers is dying out. Restaurants and night clubs anticipate a big turnout for all-night balls despite a heavy flu toll. Germans call New Year's Eve Silvester's Night after a fourth-century pope.

Russians are starting the night with vodka, switching to champagne at midnight and then going back to vodka for the serious drinking afterward.

One-quarter of Denmark's population is expected to be flu-struck on the eve, but night spot operators say they are optimistic.

Most Swiss stay home, but the wealthy ones are going to the ski resorts for New Year's Eve parties.

The Swedes also stay close to home, and so many have flu this year that drug stores have run out of aspirin.

Since Communist Yugoslavia doesn't recognize Christmas any more, New Year's Eve has become a family affair with Christmas trees disguised as New Year's trees, and Santa Claus turned into Deda Mraz—Grandpa Frost.

Hotels Try to Keep Patrons Out of Breathalyzer's Clutch

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Many Canadians who frequent night clubs, motels and hotels this New Year's Eve may make their last toasts with coffee while eating a free breakfast.

Many establishments are trying to make things as convenient as possible for their patrons to either stay in the hotel or motel for the night or, if they are driving home, to do so safely.

Some hotels are providing black coffee and breakfasts for customers while many are providing free rooms with dinner and dancing tickets. For married couples, a free babysitting service is available.

Almost all clubs report full or almost full houses for the night despite the breath analysis tests which will be given to suspected drinking drivers by policemen across the country.

A general survey shows this year's public mercy making may tend more toward dining and dancing than heavy drinking, which probably will be confined mainly to private homes.

Because of the shift to food, caterers are busy getting mid-night suppers ready for party-givers who plan to welcome 1970 with a delicious dish.

Many caterers say customers are ordering seafood dishes, steak and mushroom and steak and kidney casseroles as well as the traditional turkey dinner.

Temperatures across Canada New Year's Eve are expected to be cool with temperatures generally mild Thursday.

British Columbia residents are keeping their fingers crossed in hopes that New Year's Eve will not see a repeat of last year's snowstorm which forced thousands of would-be travellers to cancel plans for the night and stay home.

Rain and a chance of snowflurries are expected in some areas, but road conditions generally are expected to be favorable.

CN Rail reports it is using all available equipment to double the capacity on runs between Montreal and Toronto and within Ontario. For its New Year's meal the company is adding turkey and plum pudding to the menu.

CP Rail says bookings to Western Canada are light, as usual. Each daily train can hold up to 300 persons, but only about 250 seats are booked.

Air flights are almost sold out with people waiting on stand-by. Bookings are heavy all across Canada—in both directions

New Year's Day, United States college football games on television and royal receptions seem to be the prime attraction for those who have withstood the night's celebration.

In Ottawa, Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener is scheduled to be host at a reception in the Senate chamber.

Two special celebrations are scheduled this year—in Manitoba and in the Northwest Territories.

Manitoba marks its Centennial in 1970 and a campaign is underway to have Winnipeg businessmen light their premises at midnight.

It's also Centennial Eve in the Northwest Territories and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien will be in Yellowknife to throw a switch lighting a huge sign reading "1970—Centennial."

Lot Of Work: Scott

Upcoming 1,000 Days to Shape Belleville of the Future

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The seventies have 10 years to run.

Mayor Russell Scott wants just three of them — the first three.

The period coincides with the span of office he won along with city council last election day.

But the mayor insists those upcoming 1,000 days will produce the decisions shaping a new Belleville.

Because of the time and place, those foundations will be a keystone to Quinte growth. Belleville is the district's core. Its recent economic burgeoning is taken as a sign that the harvest of happy times will be district-wide in the seventies.

Mayor Scott, in office when Belleville and the Quinte district was shaken from its years-long economic snoozing, defines the situation this way:

"By 1980 it's possible to have one of the finest communities on the North American continent here — well planned, well-serviced, booming, and with reassured prosperous people.

"But it's going to take a lot of work — and it's going to take a lot of imaginative planning. In the next three years the groundwork has to be laid.

"It's an opportunity for all of us. If we don't seize it now we could miss the boat and sit around for another 50 years letting the world go by."

Resolving the issue means facing a flurry of problems. If it breaks through, the administration headed by Mayor Scott will have successfully tackled the most stimulating years on city hall record. The issues are multitudinous — planning, services, housing, inflation. And, while tackling such household chores, council also will have one eye unblinkingly issue plucking its sleeve — municipal reform.

For Mayor Scott, the "number-one priority" in area planning is what he calls the "urban problem zone" along the Bay of Quinte shoreline.

To be solved are the settlement of people, the flows of traffic, locations of roads and utilities" . . . how they go and how they get there."

Expansion — like that which wrapped up the sixties with glittering purse strings for the Quinte city — brings its challenges.

"We've had the fanfares and flag waving," he says of recent months. "And I look forward to terrific progress and expansion. But our efforts must be concentrated on handling all this in orderly fashion."

Among the problems:

MAYOR SCOTT

Taxes — "It's going to take a great deal of effort on the part of our council to hold the tax line — and we must concentrate on that."

Housing — "We have to develop low-cost saleable homes for our people. I want to do something definitive. One solution might be condominium housing on leased land.

Pollution — "We must co-operate with (Quinte MPP) Dr. Potter on the immediate control of pollution. It's ridiculous to have the finest inland body of water on the North American continent — the Bay of Quinte — and not be able to swim in it."

Urban Renewal — "We can not even think about going ahead with urban renewal until such time as we take care of flood control (on the Moira River). We have an engineering report (recently presented the Moira River Conservation Authority) and we must have its recommendations for flood control instituted immediately. Nobody is going to build anything big downtown until we have it. And nobody has done anything about flood control in the Moira River for the past 100 years — except make it worse."

The 1970s will "definitely produce some overhaul of local government in the Quinte district. What it's shape will be Mayor Scott does not prophesy.

But — on this he's emphatic — the solution must come from the municipalities. Otherwise, it may be imposed from above by Queen's Park — to common classification.

"If the stimulus for change doesn't come from the grassroots it will come from the top in a way maybe we don't like."

Planning on an area scale alone demands some one-thing more conglomerate than individual municipalities to report to.

"This means a new level of government — if for no other purpose than to take care of planning," says the mayor.

All municipalities in the Belleville-Trenton orbit must work together as an area for industrial expansion" at least he adds.

Increasingly in the seventies, the thinking will be less in terms of municipal boundaries.

More and more "the average person is not concerned as to where he pays his tax bill. He is concerned about what his taxes are."

The mayor's remarks indicate a stimulating infancy for the seventies around city hall. But council may not be above calling for help — and this could be one of the heritages of the seventies to Quinte local government, if the mayor's "philosophy meets approval.

Assisting council could be more and more citizens groups — pressed into service as special committees.

Already the city has seen a number of these citizens groups formed in various community problems and events.

Mayor Scott indicates he is enthusiastic about extending these early ventures in participatory democracy even further.

"There are a lot more citizens in the city capable and concerned in assisting us," he says. "Our council needs their help. These are the citizens who do not have the time to run full time for council posts. But they are willing to serve and I think we would be negligent if we didn't take advantage of the abilities of these people."

The idea is in keeping with political trends — and already the mayor is pondering one such committee — on pollution.

Such a group, he believes, could, among other functions, provide grassroots support for Dr. Richard Potter, whose anti-pollution campaigns have sought to draw significant government action for the Bay of Quinte and across Ontario.

Hastings Needs Orderly Growth To Ensure Equity for All Areas

By DONALD RODGERS

(Donald Rodgers is reeve of Stirling and is ending his term as warden of Hastings County. A fluent, frank debater during his wardenship he has been an articulate spokesman for county affairs. Following is his personal submission on the seventies.)

The sixties have been exciting yea rs.

In 1962-63 business was subjected to a period of tight money and a slight recession, but quickly recovered to enter a period of wage and price escalation. So much so, the decade ended with grave governmental concern about inflation.

Many notable changes in the areas of local government administration were also introduced: County school boards, provincial takeover of justice and assessment, the establishment of Regional hospital health and social services programs. New facilities such as hospitals, and homes for the aged provided with new additions.

And the Quinte area started to boom. New homes, industry and commercial services all brought their economic blessings and administrative problems. Many of these problems such as planning, extensions of utility services, roads, pollution will be carried over into the seventies. As the area develops these problems will have to be resolved.

When resolving them, other areas of concern will develop. These will entail discussions on such things as the amalgamation of local municipalities into larger units of administration, with a larger tax base. And, eventually, some form of regional government will evolve.

These problems will not be confined solely to the Quinte area. The next 10 years will see more tourist and cottage development in North Hastings than any previous period. Yet this region is derived benefit from this growth it must be planned in orderly fashion.

The next decade will require a constant flow of communications among neighboring municipalities, and between these areas and the provincial government departments concerned. There must be understanding and goodwill if the required progress is to be maintained.

I cannot visualize a metropolitan system of government in the Quinte area within the next decade, but I foresee a second level of government encompassing, not only this area, but a much larger unit of municipalities. While this in itself will create specialized problems, the over-all benefit will be required to balance and control the natural growth of the district.

I would predict (and hope I am correct) that the continuous escalation of school costs experienced in the sixties, will not be so pronounced in the seventies.

While it appears that tight and inflationary curbs will be with us for another year or so, I could foresee the last half of the seventies presenting a more attractive economic climate.

Locally, I doubt if the rapid industrial growth, now being experienced in the Quinte area will be maintained. But constant growth I can foresee and another 20,000 people in the Quinte area by 1980.

For the younger generation, I would predict that, in the seventies, male hair styles will be shorter, skirts longer and the footrot will be the latest fad.

Rural Thurlow Caught in Squeeze Of Inflation

Inflation — including spiraling taxes — is no friend of the farmer and small businessman.

And finding a plateau on the spiral where they can breathe will be one of the challenges of the seventies says Thurlow township reeve Horace Casey.

"If we're going to survive we're going to have to work toward some levelling off in taxes," cautions the reeve.

His township is one of the most heavily - industrialized in the area — but the heavy assessment is situated in the Bay of Quinte urban belt. For the rest, Thurlow is the farm land and rural hamlets that give much of the Belleville area its industrial country flavor.

Because of this his sympathies are unavoidable — despite the fact Thurlow is a key municipality in the coming Quinte growth pattern.

The small farms are being eaten up by their own expenses," says the reeve. "But people keep demanding more services — and the ones who don't have an opportunity to increase their income."

This also is creating a change in rural residency. Many farms falling vacant are being purchased by higher - salaried metropolitan dwellers who have no interest in the land save for recreation, he says.

"Almost every farm that's been sold has been bought by someone who just wants to live in the house for weekend."

This particularly is the pattern in Hastings County's northern townships.

Meantime, the growing settlement and industrialization in the Quinte urban area is going to demand more detailed planning, more cooperation between local governments and provincial departments.

At present, there seems "to be a little cooling off" around Queen's Park about regional government, believes Reeve Casey.

This does not mean any assurance of the status quo, however, in local government administration in the seventies.

"I'm certain there's going to be some municipal reform of some sort," he admits.

And among the possible big changes: Probability of a water pipeline from Lake Ontario is not ruled out by the reeve.

If community services are to be extended through the area "a large source of water" must be found.

REEVE CASEY

Municipal Reform

A Long Look Needed At Choices: McDonald

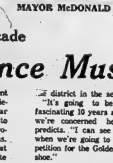
As the seventies begin for the Quinte district one preoccupation already is definitely on the lists for its mayors and municipal reform.

Otherwise, municipal neighbors could be involved in costly duplication processes attracting new assessment.

"We could compete for an industry today that's going to be part of us a year from now," says Mr. McDonald.

"This is why I would like to see things advanced as far as possible — so we can achieve results without a lot of cost.



"It is common with other local political leaders Mr. McDonald steers clear of predicting in the area of government in which other decades have never been able to grapple with — taxes.

"I just don't know where you could turn to make any change in the tax structure right now," he says.

Municipalities can't help themselves being involved in tax spirals.

"As long as there's a demand for services they're going to have to provide them— and they're going to have to pay for them.

"Unless there is assistance from (senior) government I can't see there's going to be any relief in taxes. There'd have to be a major change in the financial structure of the province.

MAYOR McDONALD

Population to Triple

Prime Growth Area Sidney's Role in 70s

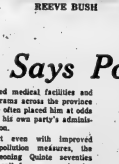
Tremendous industrial growth, fed by facilities that include a Lake Ontario water pipeline, will mark the seventies in the Quinte urban area predicts a key local politician whose municipal bailiwick may be transformed before the new decade is out.

If nothing else this makes change inevitable in the structure of local government in the district Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney township.



Sidney, the municipality which links Belleville and Trenton on the Bay of Quinte shoreline map, is a prime growth area in the Bay settlement zone — a fact of which the reeve is well aware.

Within that area, — reaching west to Frankford — the population already has doubled in the 10 years Reeve Bush has been elected to Sidney council. It's now 10,000 people — and it could triple before 1980, says the reeve.

This will need local planning, which, in turn will hinge on the availability of services.

It will bear tremendous demand for a basic human need — water.

To meet it, he predicts the likelihood of a pipeline to Lake Ontario within the decade — maybe in less than that."

REEVE BUSH

Increasingly in the seventies, the thinking will be less in terms of municipal boundaries.

More and more "the average person is not concerned as to where he pays his tax bill. He is concerned about what his taxes are."

The mayor's remarks indicate a stimulating infancy for the seventies around city hall. But council may not be above calling for help — and this could be one of the heritages of the seventies to Quinte local government, if the mayor's "philosophy meets approval.

Assisting council could be more and more citizens groups — pressed into service as special committees.

Already the city has seen a number of these citizens groups formed in various community problems and events.

Mayor Scott indicates he is enthusiastic about extending these early ventures in participatory democracy even further.

"There are a lot more citizens in the city capable and concerned in assisting us," he says. "Our council needs their help. These are the citizens who do not have the time to run full time for council posts. But they are willing to serve and I think we would be negligent if we didn't take advantage of the abilities of these people."

The idea is in keeping with political trends — and already the mayor is pondering one such committee — on pollution.

Such a group, he believes, could, among other functions, provide grassroots support for Dr. Richard Potter, whose anti-pollution campaigns have sought to draw significant government action for the Bay of Quinte and across Ontario.

Fascinating Decade

Province Must Improve Public Service in 70s Says Potter

A provincial government official assigned to Belleville, equipped with an ear for bending and a hot line to Queen's Park to quickly process a taxpayer's problems.

It's one public service that could help make the Quinte seventies "fascinating" in Dr. Richard Potter's book.

For the Quinte MPP it would help placate a peeve he publicly expressed at the end of the sixties — that senior government administration too frequently is locked away from public recourse — to democracy's detriment.

But that's only part of what the Belleville physician has prescribed for his seventies

Processes of government, time capsule, public undertakings and private expansion will leave rich and indelible marks on district in the seventies.

"It's going to be a very fascinating 10 years as far as we're concerned here," he predicts. "I can see the day when we're going to be competition for the Golden Horseshoe."

Area growth will continue — but there are some basics that must be met to overpower in the hurly-burly. People must not forget to participate in government and government in turn must be more available.

Dr. Potter envisions the day when Queen's Park appoints information officers in centres like Belleville to assist individual citizens solve problems needing government attention.

Such an officer would be non-political, existing as a sympathetic liaison between local citizens and distant government precincts. A direct phone line between the local office and Queen's Park would speed personal problems in abeyance before exquisite departments or politician.

Such a province-wide network would rejuvenate communication lines between grassroots and government, creating a sense of needed participation among the voters.

"In the seventies I'd like to see greater involvement of the individual with government. At the present time people don't get generally involved enough," says Dr. Potter.

Communication is lacking and the fault can only be compounded by the lengthy legislative sessions that now permit MPPs only sporadic contact with their constituents.

"People have to get directly involved," says the MPP.

RICHARD POTTER MP

"Generally we're all the same: We see what's wrong, but we don't always offer suggestions on how to correct it. When the people have involvement we really have a true democratic system."

A philosophic awareness will also be needed to balance the problems of economic success that will come with expansion in the seventies.

"One of the greatest concerns will be for us to ensure that we pass onto the next generation a better environment than we have today — this involves air, water and physical and mental wellbeing.

"It's up to us to ensure that we have these things well in hand in the seventies," says Dr. Potter whose crusades against pollution and for extended medical facilities and programs across the province have often placed him at odds with his own party's administration.

But even with improved anti-pollution measures, the burgeoning Quinte seventies will call for new service installations.

Dr. Potter is among Quinte politicians who believe a Lake Ontario pipeline may be the decade's answer to water supply problems.

"We will never get good-tasting water from the Bay of Quinte," he is convinced.

A basic move he would like to see the Ontario Water Resources Commission assume responsibility for supplying water and sewerage services to the municipalities — selling on demand.

It's not such a revolutionary idea, the doctor points out, Ontario Hydro has been doing it for about 50 years. By spreading the cost on a provincial basis services could be provided the less economically-privileged areas.

For the Quinte seventies such projects must be investigated. Some type of municipal reform also must come as expansion pressuries the need for police, fire protection, garbage disposal, pollution control, in a relatively small area of the Bay of Quinte shoreline.

"There's tremendous expansion," says Dr. Potter. Belleville is bursting at its seams. Thurlow and Sidney townships need services."

Upset Habs 5-0 in Montreal

Blues Win Took Three Seasons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Louis Blues have finally broken their winless streak against Montreal Canadiens but even a five-goal decision was not enough to satisfy one of their numbers.

"We still have to beat them when they have a full team," said Blues winger Jim Roberts after their 5-0 romp over his former teammates Tuesday night.

In 22 games since the Blues joined the National Hockey League in 1967, the Canadiens earned 17 victories and five ties but Roberts said the St. Louis players had not thought of Montreal's superiority as a jinx.

The Canadiens' victories included four-game sweeps in the Stanley Cup finals in the last two seasons and ties included one exhibition game last fall.

In one other game Tuesday night Minnesota North Stars and Los Angeles Kings battled to a scoreless tie. The one point kept the North Stars 13 behind the leading Blues in the West Division.

Roberts' reference to a "full team" acknowledged the absence of Canadiens' Jean Beliveau and John Ferguson, both out with injuries.

Blues general manager and coach Scotty Bowman said Montreal missed Beliveau very much.

"You only have to think back to last year's playoffs when he made the plays," Bowman said. The absence of Ferguson, Montreal's hard-hitting policeman, did not escape Bowman's notice either.

"He's not the kind of guy you'd miss every night, but on a night like tonight he would have been out there and our forwards wouldn't have been allowed to roam freely in the Montreal zone."

Ferguson is out with a fractured thumb, while Beliveau and the Blues' Red Berenson are both sidelined with ankle injuries.

Roberts started the scoring on a power play in the first period. Gary Sabourin followed up with two goals and Larry Keenan put another behind goalie Rogatien Vachon before the period ended.

Vachon was pulled from the nets in favor of rookie Phil Myre who has been with the Montreal American League farm club. Canadiens' other regular netminder, Gump Worsley, has not been dressed for the last five games and the club will not give any reason for his absence.

Myre gave up the fifth St. Louis goal to Phil Goyette in the second period while veteran Glenn Hall earned the shutout in the Blues nets. St. Louis outshot the Canadiens 27-26.

Bowman said the Canadiens played badly and he was surprised the crowd of 17,556 at Montreal didn't boo their team more than they did.

The St. Louis coach thought his team should have won their last six encounters with Montreal.

"We've outplayed them the last six times we've met, but just didn't get the breaks until tonight."

Goalies Gerry Desjardins for the Kings and Fern Rivard for Minnesota earned the shutouts in the sixth straight tie between the two clubs at Los Angeles and only the second scoreless game of the season.

It was the first NHL shutout for rookie Rivard who faced 28 shots in the second and third periods while Desjardins made only eight saves. The Kings outshot Minnesota 34-19 through three periods.

Four games are scheduled for tonight with Montreal travelling to Pittsburgh to meet the Penguins, Oakland Seals at Toronto against the Maple Leafs, Chicago Black Hawks visiting New York Rangers and Boston Bruins at Detroit to meet the Red Wings.

The Maple Leafs announced Tuesday they have been forced to sign goalie Jerry McNamara from Orillia of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series to replace the veteran Johnny Bower.

Goyette Hangs In

Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues scored his 17th season goal Tuesday night to move to within seven points of National Hockey League scoring leader Bobby Orr.

Goyette now has 47 points while the Boston defenceman leads the race with 54 on 11 goals and 43 assists.

Frank St. Marseille of the Blues earned two assists in St. Louis' 5-0 victory over Montreal Canadiens to gain fourth place in the scoring race.

Czechs: 3-2

McLeod Grins And Bears Loss

WINNIPEG (CP) — There is no predicting the mood of Jack McLeod, coach of Canada's national hockey team.

Sunday night his charges beat Czechoslovakia 3-2 and he was grumpier than a bear with a toothache.

Tuesday night his team lost 5-3 to the Czechs and he was far from unhappy with the performance of his players.

"It was one of those things tonight," said McLeod after the game, the second of five exhibition games the Czechs will play in Canada against the Nationals.

"We played well enough and had enough chances to win by six or seven goals. Then they get a goal that has got to be at least five feet offside, fire in a couple of long shots and that's it.

"It wasn't like Sunday when we had the lead and almost blew it by our own bad play. All we blew tonight was a lot of good scoring chances."

The "offside" goal McLeod was referring to was the first scored by the Czechs during their comeback in the third period after Canada had grabbed period leads of 1-0 and 2-1.

Jan Hrbaty took a long pass at centre from Josef Horesovsky and broke in alone on Nats' goalie Wayne Stephenson, beating him cleanly.

McLeod said the play was offside. He said the referee was standing there "and didn't do a thing about it."

Czechoslovakia pulled even with the Nats when veteran Vaclav Nedomansky blistered a shot from outside the blue line past Stephenson.

"Sure, I saw it all the way," said Stephenson who blocked 32 shots. "No excuses. It was just a good shot and it beat me."

But Stephenson said he didn't see the winner, fired by Frantisek Pospisil. He said the hard point shot hit something on the way and went into the net behind him.

Canada's goals were scored by Chuck Lefley and Steve King.

Lefley scored after he stole the puck at his blueline and broke down the ice unopposed, pulling goalie Miroslav Lacky and flipping the puck past him.

McLeod was impressed with the play of Lacky, a second-year man with the Czechs who missed out on the world tournament last year because of a broken finger.

He came up with a number of difficult stops, as Canada fired 32 drives his way, particularly in the third period when the Canadians were trying for the equalizer.

But the Czechs also skated better as a team Tuesday night and the effort helped them stay in the game through the first two periods.

Referee John Kubinek of Fort William and Michael Bucyk of Czechoslovakia called just three minor infractions, one in each period.

Canada took two of the penalties but was able to hold off the Czech power play effectively, allowing just two shots on goal each time they were on man short.

On the other hand, theone time the Canadians had the power play, they didn't get even one shot on Lacky.

Win First Trojan Junior Meet

Quinte's 'Gun-less' Hawks Have Perfect Day

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

Give Quinte Secondary School basketball coach Rick Locke "hustle" over "height" any day.

That's what Locke said won the first annual Trojan Junior Basketball Tournament here for his Quinte Hawks Tuesday.

"We've got no big gun — with us it's always a team effort," said Locke after his boys pupils had taken top honors in the Trojan meet by beating Brockville's Thousand Island Pirates 51-46 in the championship game.

Peter borough Collegiate and Vocational School Raiders won consolation round crests by beating Belleville's Centennial Junior Chargers 33-23.

There were eight entries in the first Trojan Junior Tournament, the basketball brainchild of Moira Secondary School Athletic director Gord Smith.

Scoring statistics in the championship game proved Locke's teamwork theory about his Hawks, who currently lead the Quinte District junior standings with a 4-0 record.

The starting five Hawks accounted for all the Quinte scoring as they made an early lead stand up in their 51-46 win over a taller Brockville team.

Guard Steve Nash's 13-point total began right off the opening jump-ball, when he beat in on a layup to catch the Pirates flat - footed.

Centre Barry Culkin (12), Kim Hunter (11), Stan Brooks (8), and Darvin Easton (7) finished off Quinte's perfect day that included a 40-24 win over Belleville's Centennial Chargers and a 42-28 verdict over Cobourg West.

Brockville's Thousand Island Pirates, also league - leaders in their eight-team St. Lawrence East district, earned a berth in the championship game by beating Peterborough 50-47 and host Moira Trojans 48-34.

Led by six-foot, three-inch captain Doug Latham, the Pirates staged a second-half come back after trailing Quinte by as many as 15 points, but couldn't get any closer than the final five-point difference.

Latham, one of only two holdovers on the Brockville team, scored 25 points in the final game to go with 25 against Moira and a whopping 34 against Peterborough to make him a shoo-in as the tourney's top scorer.

Darvin Easton totalled 21 points in Quinte's first two wins, with Steve Nash contributing 18, Stan Brooks 16, and Barry Culkin 13.

Foul trouble for Quinte's "big five" gave coach Locke fits midway through the second half of the 24 - minute final as Brockville began to narrow the gap.

"I had to make some changes I didn't want to at that stage," Locke said, revealing that three of his five first - stringers — Nash, Hunter and Culkin — had each been fingered for four fouls, one away from "gone over".

Orillia, winners of the championship Hawks were Al Hayman, Bill Kirkham, Neill Dunning, Eric Been, Bob Forder, Peter Calvert and Rick Meagher.

Peterborough got into the consolation final by ousting Kingston's Queen Elizabeth 49-27 after losing their opener 50-47 to Brockville.

Their 33-25 consolation title win came over a Centennial team that had eliminated Kingston Loyalists 46-32 after losing their first round game 40-24 to Quinte's champions.

Other first - round action saw Cobourg West down Loyalist 38-26 and Moira dump Queen Elizabeth 48-39.

Well in Hand

Quinte junior basketball Hawks had matters pretty well in hand Tuesday, winning three games and top honors in the first annual Trojan Invitational Junior Basketball Tournament. Here, Quinte co-captains Steve Nash and Barry Culkin book-end a ball-handling Stan Brooks.

McNamara Ready

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, with one goalie already out of action, have lost another and have been forced to call on an amateur club for help. Marv Edwards, out with torn knee ligaments, was joined on the sidelines by veteran Johnny Bower with a similar ailment. "It's bad news again," general manager Jim Gregory said Tuesday. Gregory's plight has forced him to sign Jerry McNamara of the Orillia Terriers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series. "McNamara will be our backup goalie for awhile," Gregory said. "If something happens to Gamble or if we have to rest him, we'll call up someone from Tulsa."

Woodstock Topples Oaks

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Don Jones, an 18-year-old forward with the Woodstock Junior C Navy Vets, is proving to be a good luck charm when called up by the Senior A's. Jones, promoted for an Ontario Hockey Association game against Oakville for the second time in two weeks, scored the winning goal on a third period power play Tuesday as the A's defeated the Oaks 4-3. Al Blair scored twice and Jerry Harrigan once as Woodstock posted its third victory in 24 starts. Jim O'Brien and Pete Bettio replied for the Oaks. Jones was called up from the Junior C team by the A's for a home game against Oakville Dec. 19 and he scored two goals as the A's dumped the Oaks 6-3. Woodstock netminder Brent Pennington made a big contribution to the win in the third period, twice stopping O'Brien an clean breakaways. Woodstock remains in last place in the eight team loop with six points, five behind Owen Sound Greyhounds. Oakville is tied for fourth place at 26 points with Kingston Aces.

Hornets Rebound for Win

DRESDEN (CP) — Galt Hornets, Allan Cup champions, came from behind a 3-2 deficit Tuesday night, scoring three times in the third period to defeat the East German national team 5-3 in an exhibition hockey game before 10,000 fans. The game was the third of an eight-game tour of Germany by the Canadian team. In the three-game series with the East German nationals Galt has lost one, won one and tied one. Tuesday night Galt led 1-0 after the first period and trailed 3-2 after the second. Rio Caron scored for Galt in the first period, Bob Smith in the second and Bill Hway, John Beechey and Pete Brennan scored in the third. Novy Fuchs and Truhl scored for the East Germans.

North Stars Offer Trial

Somebody Up There Likes Steve Rexe

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

Today, Steve Rexe is a Senior A goaltender with the third place Belleville Mo-Hawks.

But some people think the 22-year-old Peterborough native has the talent required to play in hockey's best circles.

One of these is Harold "Baldy" Cotton, director of field operations for the NHL's Minnesota North Stars, who has asked Mo-Hawks' general manager Robert Temple permission to give Rexe a trial in hockey's "big time."

"Five games was the span mentioned in Cotton's letter," Mr. Temple revealed. "We're all for Steve getting the chance, but it can't interfere with our schedule."

Going into a Friday night home game with Woodstock A's, the Mo-Hawks are holding on to third spot in the eight team OHA Senior A standings by two points over Kingston Aces and Oakville Oaks.

And with a highly respectable 3.17 goals against average in the goal-abounding senior league, Rexe looms large as one of the prime reasons for this year's Mo Hawk success.

Not since the club was formed four years ago with Rexe between the pipes for the inaugural Mo-Hawk season has the team enjoyed a winning record.

Not until this year, that is, which sees the Mo-Hawks sporting a 13-9-2 record to date.

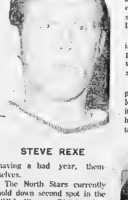
The NHL club interested in Rexe's services are not the only Minnesota Hockey League, and undisputed possession of the Western Division's basement.

For the past two seasons, lanky Cesare Maniago has been handling most of the Minnesota goaltending chores. A former Belleville McFarland, Maniago sat out last night's game while rookie Fern Rivard earned the North Stars their third win in a scoreless tie with Los Angeles.

When Rexe's shot at Maniago's job would come depends on the Mo-Hawk schedule, general manager Temple stresses.

"We're after at least third place and we can't afford to let Steve go at any time when he could hurt us. They can have him on dates convenient to us."

But, in the event Rexe's trial performance aroused further Minnesota interest, would the local seniors stand in his way to improve his hockey lot?



"No. But not this year."

Minnesota is not the first NHL team that thought the easy - going Rexe was good enough to play their brand of hockey.

Rexe was on the roster of the Pittsburgh Penguins at the beginning of the current season after playing the past two seasons with Canada's National Team.

But the Penguins released Rexe in November after he refused to spend a winter maturing in the Central League. That refusal left his professional playing rights up for grabs.

The latest development in his hockey career just gives his Mo - Hawk teammates more cause to label Rexe with their favorite nickname—"Suitcase."

STEVE REXE
having a bad year, themselves.

The North Stars currently hold down second spot in the NHL's Western Division. But it's their 104 goals against — third worst among the 12 league entries — that has caused Minnesota management to go on a goaltender hunt.

Last season, the 270 goals that went into North Star nets earned Minnesota the worst defensive record in the National

Last-minute High Jump Stand-in Sets Canadian Open Mark

SASKATOON (CP) — High Jumper Reynaldo Brown of Los Angeles turned a favor into a record, and sprinter Lee Evans of San Jose, Calif., redeemed himself with outstanding performances at the Saskatchewan Indoor Games Tuesday.

Brown, 18, making his first appearance at an indoor meet, set a Canadian open record of seven feet, 1¼ inches on his first try before 3,216 fans at the final session of the two-day meet.

He was a last-minute replacement for Otis Burrell, unable to attend the games because of a kidney infection. Burrell set the Canadian record at the 1966 Saskatchewan meet with a leap of 7-1.

Brown attends Los Angeles City junior college.

Evans, a disappointment Monday when he dropped out of the 300-metre event, won the 600-yard race Tuesday afternoon and later brought the crowd to life with a brilliant run as anchor man for an all-star team in the invitational one-mile relay.

He wiped out an eight-yard deficit, overtaking Pat Collins of Oregon State University at Corvallis to win the relay by 10 yards.

The All-Stars, with Barry Cunningham of Vancouver, Russ Schmeichel of Valley City, N.D., Carl Woods of Richmond, Va., and Evans, covered the distance in 3:21.0, well above the Canadian record of 3:14.1.

Oregon State finished second in 3:22.8 and the Pacific Coast Track Club of Long Beach, Calif., was third in 3:32.9.

Greg Marks, Willie Turner, John Lilley and Collins represented Oregon. On the Pacific Coast team were Tom Von Ruben, John Mason, George Scott and Mike Wagenbach.

Evans, who set a world record of 43.8 in the 400 metres at the Summer Olympic Games, said he was a victim of circumstances early in the first heat of the 600-yard event but still had the best over-all time of 1:10.9.

Evans stumbled at the start of the 600 when he clipped the heels of Von Ruden. He dropped in fourth early in the race but quickly recovered and passed Woods in the stretch.

Woods placed second in 1:11.1 and Von Ruden was third in 1:12.2. Schmeichel won the second heat in 1:13.8 but finished fourth over all in the 600.

Earlier, Lilley, who defeated Evans in the 600-yard event here last year, took the invitation 600 yards in 1:56. It also was run in two timed sections.

Ken Likkel of Washington State University was second in 1:56.3.

In the high jump, Brown had three attempts at seven feet, 3¼ inches, but knocked the bar off on each occasion.

Flood Threat Serious

NEW YORK (AP) — A court battle over baseball's reserve clause appeared in the making Tuesday when commissioner Bowie Kuhn rejected outfielder Curt Flood's plea to be permitted to negotiate his 1970 contract as a free agent.

Flood, dealt from St. Louis Cardinals to Philadelphia Phillies after the 1969 season, is reported to be planning a federal court suit challenging the reserve clause, which binds a player to his club until it releases him.

The 31-year-old veteran wrote to the commissioner requesting he be allowed to make a deal for himself and said he would make no comment on a court suit until he received a reply. Copies of Flood's letter also were sent to Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, and John Quinn, the Phillies' general manager.

Kuhn made public Tuesday afternoon Flood's letter and his own answer, which expressed sympathy with the player's position but did not comply with his wish to be made a free agent.

The New York Times reported in its Tuesday morning editions that Flood would contest the reserve clause, last challenged—unsuccessfully—in 1952.

Flood, neither confirmed nor denied the published report.

Mum on Game Plan

Chiefs Playing It by Ear

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Coach Hank Stram, his game plan shrouded in secrecy, declined Tuesday to lift the curtain for a look at tactics his Kansas City Chiefs might use in Sunday's American Football League championship game against Oakland Raiders.

Stram, who said he instituted the game plan away from prying eyes before the team left Kansas City for workouts in Santa Barbara, opened up again with all his psychological weapons in an attempt to keep the Raiders guessing.

Asked if the Chiefs might tend to throw more than the six passes they attempted in a 10-6 loss to Oakland three weeks ago, Stram shied away from a direct answer by saying:

"That will depend on the tempo of the game."

And, asked if the ground-based attack used in that loss might be tried against the Raiders a second time, Stram again sidestepped by saying:

"Our approach will be predicated primarily on what the situation dictates."

However, the prevailing opinion was that Stram was preparing a more diversified attack for the title game at Oakland.

NFL Showdown

Playoff Tests Brute Strength

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League championship playoff Sunday in Minnesota shapes up as a test of brute strength between two muscle machines that prefer to run the ball but usually score with the pass.

Bud Grant's Minnesota Vikings undoubtedly will try to run against Cleveland Browns with Dave Osborn and Bill Brown as Oscar Reed. In return, coach Blanton Collier may probe with running backs Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott as Bill Browns attempt to force an opening for Bill Nelsen's passes.

Scott, a former star with Ottawa Rough Riders in the Canadian Football League, scored two touchdowns in the Browns' 38-14 win over Dallas Cowboys in last Sunday's Eastern Division championship.

* * *

If the Vikings or Browns find they can do the job with the rush, they will play it close to the vest. But it is unlikely that either club will be able to run the ball down the other's throat. Statistics do show it is easier to run on the Browns than on the Vikings.

Unless the weatherman comes up with a blizzard at game time, 1 p.m., EST, both Grant, former coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the CFL, and Collier probably will go to the pass. If that happens, the real war will be fought in the pit as the anonymous interior linemen battle to give Joe Kapp of the Vikings and Nelson the precious seconds they need to set up and throw.

Kapp also had several seasons in the CFL with Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions.

Because surgery to both knees limits his mobility, Nelson must be given the same type of protection that New York Jets usually give Joe Namath. That means Dick Schafrath, John Demarie, Fred Hoaglin, Gene Hickerson and Monte Clark must handle Carl Eller, Gary Larsen, Alan Page and Jim Marshall. Individual matchups most of the time will pit Schafrath against Marshall, Demarie against Page, Hickerson against Larsen and Clark against Eller.

The Browns' line has permitted its quarterback to be dumped only 29 times. The Vikings have dumped the enemy quarterback 49 times in the regular season.

Eller has made the Viking front four famous with his "meet you at the quarterback" quip.

When the Vikings slaughtered the Browns 51-3 on Nov. 9 at Minnesota, they got to Nelsen twice and intercepted three of his passes. Kapp threw for three scores before turning over the job to Gary Cuozzo.

Kapp, the unpredictable, has been smeared 28 times by enemy rushers and blitzers and Cuozzo, his backup man, has been sacked six times. That makes 18 times the Vikings' foe of Grady Alder, Jim Vellone, Mick Tingelhoff, Milt Sunde and Ron Yary have let their passer down.

However, Kapp, seems to relish in the heavy going.

"If the goal line is close, I'll go get it," he said recently. "I'm a great believer in do it yourself—make it happen."

As Los Angeles Rams learned last Saturday, Kapp can ram the ball home in his own style. In 22 carries this year he gained 104 yards. Nelson wound up with minus 11 yards for five runs.

The Browns don't usually put on the big rush but the underrated foursome of Ron Snidow, Walt Johnson, Jim Kanicki and Jack Gregory rocked the passer 37 times plus getting to Craig Morton three times in Dallas Cowboys three times in Dallas Yary have let their passer down. and pressured him into only eight completions of 24 thrown and two costly interceptions.

Split on Tour

Baffled Russians Head for Home

MONTREAL (CP) — The Russian national hockey team left Tuesday night somewhat baffled by a lack of Canadian cordiality.

"We're puzzled and surprised in the way we were met here 15 days ago and again in the way we were sent off today," George Mosolov, president of the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation, told reporters through an interpreter.

The Russians left with a 4-4 won-lost record on their exhibition tour. When they arrived in Montreal from Moscow, an early flight arrival disrupted plans for an official welcoming party of Canadian hockey officials.

However, there was reason for their, bafflement on departure.

The office of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association called a news conference at the airport but failed to make arrangements for facilities or send an official to oversee the meetings.

As a result, Mosolov ended up answering questions in the busy departures concourse of the airport.

He said his club is returning home to prepare for the world championship scheduled for Montreal and Winnipeg next March.

But he left some doubt in the minds of questioners whether or not the Russian team will be back to defend its world hockey title.

"The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has worked out a schedule where the Soviet team plays back-to-back games three times with no day of rest," Mosolov said.

"Canada twice plays back-to-back and against weaker teams and thus the CAHA violates an International Ice Hockey Federation rule."

It is the responsibility of the host nation to set the schedule for each world tournament subject to approval by other federation members.

Mosolov said a representative of the U.S.S.R. will attend an IIHF meeting at Geneva Jan. 3 to 4 but he did not know if the schedule question will be discussed.

Mosolov refused to discuss whether or not the Russian and other European federations will follow their threat to pull out of the world tournament if Canada is allowed the use of nine professionals to bolster its national team.

The IIHF voted in Switzerland last July to allow Canada the use of nine pros providing none had one game of experience in the National Hockey League this season.

NHL Nixes Helmets

BOSTON (AP) — The National Hockey League rules committee Tuesday rejected a move to make the wearing of helmets mandatory in pre-season, regular and playoff games.

Weston W. Adams, chairman of the board of Boston Bruins, filed the motion. Boston was the only club in the 12-team NHL to vote in favor of it.

Bruins' defenceman Ted Green suffered a fractured skull last September in a stick-swinging duel during a pre-season game. He has not played since.

Adams said after the vote that he will continue to press for passage of the measure.

No Score !

ST. THOMAS (CP) — A Canadian record for non-stop basketball playing was claimed Tuesday night by a group of senior students at St. Joseph's High School.

About 35 boys and girls played in shifts, starting at 7 p.m. Sunday and ending at 10:05 p.m. Tuesday—a total of 51 hours. This was 30 minutes longer than the previous record, believed held by a school in Port Arthur.

No one kept score.

JUST TO PLEASE THE EMPEROR!
Around 50 A.D., the Emperor Nero was served a delicious concoction of fruit, ice and snow . . . the forerunner of our beloved ice cream. The Chinese added milk and Europeans brought the recipe to America where it's been a favorite since colonial times.
If the family prefers to buy their ice cream at the store instead of making it, find a still-useful ice cream freezer into cool work . . . with an Intelligencer Want Ad. Call 962-9171 for details and ask for Classified.

Last-minute Shopping Binge Rescues Canadian Retailers

By KLAUS JONAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian Christmas shopper went on a last-minute buying binge this year that rescued retailers from what seemed destined to be a poor selling season.

The binge started six days or so before Christmas and cash registers didn't stop jingling until 6 p.m. Christmas Eve.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press found most retailers saying the last-minute rush boosted Christmas business between five and 10 per cent over last year's.

"While no specific departments sold out, we are going to have a hard time putting anything on sale in January," said a spokesman for a large department store in Montreal.

Saskatchewan was the only Canadian province where retailers were disappointed.

Sales there dropped by about seven per cent from last year's level. A second look shows why. The province is sitting on mountains of unsold wheat and ready cash is hard to get.

"Generally speaking, Christmas sales were good," said R. E. Walker of Saskatoon, secretary-manager of the Saskatoon Retail Merchants Association.

"It's just that there hasn't been any wheat sold. The farm economy has backed up. The following winter months will be quite difficult for retailers."

Mr. Walker said over-all retail sales in Saskatchewan this year are down 4% to 5%.

Retailers in all other provinces were rubbing their hands. Everything was going splendidly, colorful and noisy sold.

Stores said they noticed that shoppers had become more selective, "they would not just buy anything," but that they were unimpressed by tight money and inflated prices. Many used credit cards.

"People were buying more expensive things," said Fred Ackers, owner of a Brantford, Ont., clothing store.

"They didn't seem to be resistant to prices as they were in other years. They bought $5 ties instead of $3 ties and $8 shirts instead of $6 shirts. I've never seen anything like it."

Men's apparel — colorfully way-out, was a big sales booster.

"Sales zoomed during the last week with strongest emphasis on the men's fashion department," said a spokesman for another department store in Montreal. "Colored shirts and broad ties went like hotcakes."

Other big winners this Christmas were color television sets, sophisticated toys, cosmetics and snowmobiles. The sale of footwear was slack. Retailers blamed unseasonably mild weather.

Full pockets of civil servants in Ottawa ensured good retail sales there. "As the public servants go, so goes Ottawa," said a bank spokesman. "The public servants had recent salary raises including some retroactive pay; so there seemed to be more money around."

Allan J. Brownlee, president of the Halifax Downtown Merchants Association, said that despite the looming Christmas business inflation must be considered in judging sales.

"A merchant sells $6,000 worth of goods today compared with $5,000 last year may find his actual volume isn't much larger," he said.

Ewe Are Early

With the sudden changes in temperatures that have been hitting most of southern Ontario lately, mother nature is just as confused as the weatherman. # Asian Flu Blitz Continues in Europe

By Reuters

Asian flu today continued its blitz across Europe, killing hundreds, infecting millions and affecting industrial production in several countries.

In France, they called it the grippe, and in Holland the Griepe, and everywhere the gripe was the same: sniffles, fever, head and body aches, exhaustion and sometimes—for the old and the weak—death.

No one is certain how many have died since flu bugs spread from southern Europe in November. The British ministry of health reported 298 deaths in Britain directly attributable to flu in the week up to Dec. 19. The figure for Christmas week is scheduled to be announced Thursday seemed certain to be far higher.

In Britain, Denmark, France, Sweden and West Germany personnel department heads estimated that between 20 and 30 per cent of their staffs were be hit, but spreading north staying at home.

London postal services were reduced. West Berliners were advised to stop shaking hands to cut the risk of passing on germs. And everywhere doctors and nurses found that they themselves were falling victim in ever-increasing numbers.

Medical officials gave these reports from European capitals:

Stockholm: The epidemic is limited to a peak, expected early in the new year. At least 10 dead in southern Sweden, 100,000 ill and hospital visits banned.

Copenhagen: One in five Danes ill since the beginning of December. During Christmas week, 12,000 cases in Copenhagen alone, with three or four deaths. "For some reason these epidemics never hit us as hard as they hit England," said one doctor.

Bonn: The epidemic "past its peak" in Bavaria, first state to through densely-populated Rhine-Westphalia.

Berlin: Many chemists short of anti-flu drugs, with police moving in to rush supplies directly from the manufacturers after warehousemen were decimated. At least nine dead.

London: Ambulance drivers demanded face masks and disinfectant sprays. Of 17 people who volunteered to spend 10 days helping scientists at the commons cold research centre only nine turned up. The others had flu.

Paris: On the wane now, but more than 10,000,000 of France's 50,000,000 population ill at some time in the last few weeks. The Pasteur Medical Institute working around the clock to produce 20,000 doses of vaccine each day.

The Hague: The Dutch have been lucky. "No epidemic," said a health ministry official—in fact, fewer cases than last year.

Bank Robber's Take Recovered At Station in Clothes Parcel

NEW DUNDEE, Ont. (CP) — A bank bandit who came within a whisker of being caught lost his loot Tuesday when he tried to ship it to Calgary in a package of clothes.

Police recovered $5,106 at Concord railway station just north of Metropolitan Toronto at about 5 p.m. Tuesday after they cut a warrant for a former Kitchener resident who now lives in Calgary. Police did not release his name.

Constable James Crighton of the Kitchener provincial police detachment was sitting in a barber shop next door to the bank while the robbery was taking place in this community 10 miles west of Kitchener. His unmarked cruiser was parked outside.

The constable learned of the holdup when a passerby who thought the bank was being robbed came into the shop.

"I came barrelling out," the constable said and found himself within 30 feet of someone who might be the bandit in a car pulling out of the bank parking lot and heading north.

Constable Crighton chased the car at top speed while trying to confirm by radio that he was chasing a robber.

The car eluded him at a hidden intersection north of New Dundee. The car, borrowed for a test drive from a Kitchener used car lot, was later found abandoned in Kitchener, just short of a police road block.

The robber entered the bank at 2:15 p.m. wearing a ski mask and carrying a sawed-off .410-gauge shotgun, police said. The only people in the bank were the manager and three women tellers.

The masked man "ordered the staff to line up against the wall and with the exception of one teller, he ordered (them) into a back room and closed the door," said Constable Crighton.

At this point a woman customer entered the bank and she too was shut in the room. Then the teller who remained outside, Mrs. Elroy Good, "was given plastic bag and told to fill it up with all the bills," Constable Crighton said.

The bills ranged from $1 to $100. Then the robber shut the teller in the room and fled to his meeting with Constable Crighton.

A loaded shotgun was later found two miles north of the bank in the snow beside the Petersburg road.

Police would not say how they knew the cash would be at the Concord railway station.

Burlington Folks Happy Refinery Won't Materialize

TORONTO (CP) — Texaco Canada Ltd. has given up plans to build a large oil refinery at Burlington and is seeking permission to erect the plant in Walpole Township on Lake Erie.

The company, in a letter to Ontario Energy Minister George Kerr, said it has withdrawn its application for rezoning in Burlington and is seeking rezoning of a 1,300-acre site in Walpole Township, west of Dunville.

The proposed new site is in the area where Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. plans to build a major steel mill and where Ontario Hydro is building a generating station at Nanticoke.

Texaco's bid to build in Burlington was rejected by the town council last year, because of fears of pollution of Lake Ontario.

An application to the Ontario Municipal Board to overrule the council was opposed by Burlington residents in hundreds of letters sent to the OMB which had planned hearings in early 1970.

The original site would have placed a third refinery on the shore between Burlington and Oakville, where Shell and BP already have refineries.

Texaco said in its letter, released by Mr. Kerr's office Tuesday, that its refinery will include the newest and most advanced technology to protect the Lake Erie environment and meet the requirements of the provincial government.

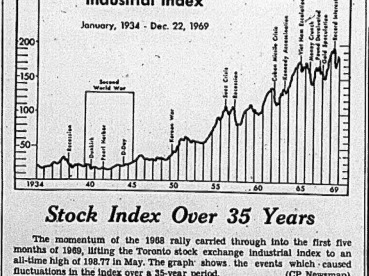
BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Texaco Canada Ltd.'s announcement Tuesday that it has decided against building a large oil refinery here has brought cheers from council members and ratepayers.

William O'Connell, president of the East Burlington Ratepayers Association, said:

"This is a great piece of news. I know the people will be happy."

Texaco has decided to seek rezoning in Walpole Township, west of Dunville for the plant.

Ratepayers in the eastern area of Burlington where Texaco had planned the plant had written letters to the Ontario Municipal Board protesting the location.



Les Preston, a Burlington councillor, said Texaco's change of mind could be attributed to unrelenting opposition by area residents.

"Obviously, Texaco saw the hand writing on the wall," he said.

"This is a real nice New Year's present. I'm very happy."

Another councillor, Jim Swanborough, who opposed the rezoning bid from the beginning, said:

"I'm not sorry to see it go at all."

Nabors Gamble Pays Off

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jim Nabors' multi - million dollar gamble has paid off.

Earlier this year the bashful star and from Sylacauga, Ala., astounded the television trade by announcing that he was taking an honorary discharge from the Marine Corps and his series Gomer Pyle. What baffled the trade was why a star would turn his back on an obvious gold mine.

As a series, Gomer held the distinction of many more years of life. In its fifth and last season in prime time, the series was the second most popular show, finishing behind Laugh-In.

But Nabors had his reason: I love to sing. And I thought a variety show of my own would be more rewarding to me personally. As to the money, I didn't know. But as it turned out, doing the variety show has meant more money for me."

So he is doubly pleased with the success of The Jim Nabors Show. The Nielsen ratings indicate that it is the most popular of the shows that opened this season.

"You know somethin'? I still find it difficult to believe this kind of acceptance. I still don't trust it."

That may be why he'll be spending his vacation from the variety show by playing Las Vegas in June, appearing with Carol Burnett at Caesar's Palace, and Harrah's Tahoe in July.
